MORROW WINS QUICK BACKING OF PRESIDENT

Hoover's Hasty Avowal of Support Is Linked With Dry Issue.

FURTHER IMPETUS GIVEN WET CAUSE

White House Statement, Although Expected, Stirs Speculation.

AMBASSADOR SEEN VICTOR IN ELECTION

Triumph Is Interpreted as Personal One, Not Due to Repeal Stand.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The promptness with which the White House yesterday threw its support behind Dwight W. Morrow, Republican senatorial nominee in New Jersey, was being widely interpreted in political circles.

The accepted view was that Mr. Hoover took the opportunity to emphasize that the Republican party is neither wet nor dry, that like the Democrats it shelters both proponents and opponents of the eighteenth amendment, and that insofar as the administration itself is concerned it is for law enforcement.

One can not recall, for that matter, that Mr. Hoover has ever gone any further than that in his prohibition utterances; but in the waging controversy the law enforcers incur the stamp of being dry—that is, of being in favor of the law itself.

Hoover Support Expected.

The White House statement follows:

"The White House will give every support to the Republican nominee for the Senate in New Jersey. The President and the administration have every confidence that Mr. Dwight Morrow will be the next senator from New Jersey."

When it comes right down to hard and cold facts, there is nothing startling in the statement. It would be an amazing thing if a Republican President did not support a Republican senatorial nominee, a regular one, of course.

But the circumstances are such that it is inevitable that the statement will provide food for study and controversy in political circles for many months.

The only issue Mr. Morrow had, beside himself, which can not be minimized, was the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

President on Prohibition.

There are those who argue that his views are absolutely in conflict with the attitude the administration has taken. To get this conclusion one must accept the proposition that the Hoover administration has been espousing the dry cause over and above the law enforcement cause.

On that point, there is Mr. Hoover's statement in his acceptance address and reiterated since that he recognized the right of any one to work for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Undoubtedly, if the very dry William M. Butler wins the Republican senatorial nomination in Massachusetts, the administration will also support him.

White House Impartial.

There was that about the Morrow case, though, which would have caused speculation and comment if the White House had not issued a statement. It would probably have been wilder, indeed, than that caused by the issuance of it.

Much was made by the workers of Representative Franklin W. Fort in the campaign of his friendship with the President. The impression was sought to be given that he was Mr. Hoover's candidate.

The President at least publicly cleared himself of having any preference in his statement Sunday and certainly he did not move a finger in the campaign. And none of the three candidates lauded him more in his campaign speeches than Mr. Morrow.

Morrow's Personal Victory.

The drys should not try to dampen the rejoicing in the wet camp over Mr. Morrow's victory. His nomination will give a prestige to the wet movement that it has never had. There will be all sorts of talk, born more of enthusiasm than logic, of his being the wet hope in 1932.

It is not believed, however, that his victory describes such a revolution against prohibition as the wets will claim. That is to say, it is not believed that the unprecedented plurality which was given to him was wholly that of dryseyites rushing frenziedly to the polls to cast their ballots against the monster which the wets claim is eating at the vitals of the country.

The wets would seem to have a more logical argument in the fact

Stimson Is Attacked By Johnson on Pact

Intolerant, Senator Says; Naval Limitations Made Mockery.

Senator Hiram Johnson, who is leading the fight against the London naval treaty, replied last night over the radio to Secretary Stimson, who defended the pact in a radio address last week.

The senator from California made no effort to soften the blows which he aimed at the naval provisions of the treaty, at the methods being employed to obtain ratification, or at Secretary Stimson's particular role. Seldom has a Cabinet officer been subjected to a more outspoken attack by a leader in the Senate, and forecasts are freely made that the battle over ratification will be marked by unusual bitterness.

After characterizing Mr. Stimson's speech as an attempt to "bludgeon into silence" any one who disagrees with him, the senator said:

"The distinguished Secretary of State, while indulging in platitudinous generalities and omitting detailed explanation of the treaty, displayed an angry intolerance toward any one who might not agree with him, and all who, under process, have been compelled to testify before the Senate committees contrary to his view."

Restating the criticisms aimed at the treaty during the hearings, emphasizing the American surrender, as he regards it, on the cruiser problem, asserting that the cost to American taxpayers will be $1,071,000,000, and adding that the escape clause makes a mockery of naval limitation, Senator Johnson continues as follows:

"Much lately has been said about documents related to the negotiation and consummation of the treaty. With studious misrepresentation, the

HOOVER MAY SAVE 1931 DISTRICT BILL

Executive Action Sole Hope of Measure as Conferees Are Discharged.

POLITICAL ANGLE SEEN

Only President Hoover can now save the dying District appropriation bill for 1931, it appeared last night.

So far as the Senate and House are concerned, both now have agreed to disagree on the bill, and conferees which they appointed to try and work out an agreement stand discharged.

Senate conferees were released yesterday after Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, reported that they and the House conferees had failed to reach an agreement. His report was accepted without a dissenting vote.

House conferees were discharged the day before when a similar report was submitted by Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska.

Discharge of the conferees, however, does not preclude further action on the bill. Reappointment of the conferees would be a simple matter for the Vice President and the Speaker.

While the Senate was considering the controversy over the bill yesterday, a committee of six from the Washington Board of Trade called on President Hoover and urged him to try and bring about a "fair and just" compromise that will save the bill.

If the President does take a hand in the situation, and there are many who think that he will, he probably will call some of the Senate and House leaders to the White House, or else send an emissary to the Capitol to see them.

It may seem incongruous, but there is an important political angle in the present situation. If the bill fails to pass it represents, in a sense, a failure on the part of the Hoover administration and one that the administration's oponents might very well use for partisan purposes.

"Why," they might cry, "the Republicans couldn't even pass a bill to run the National Capital!"

Whether they would or not, of course, is problematical. It is a fact, however, that leaders do not

INCOME TAX SLASH MAY BE ABROGATED

TREASURY FACES DEFICIT

(Associated Press.)

With Government expenditures climbing beyond budget estimates for the fiscal year 1931, continuation of the 1 per cent reduction in taxes on incomes made for the calendar year 1929 seemed improbable yesterday, although the Treasury will complete the 1930 fiscal year with a surplus.

The 1 per cent reduction on all normal and corporation incomes was granted by Congress at the recommendation of Secretary Mellon. He said the Government in the 1930 fiscal year ending June 30 would have enough surplus to permit the cut. The decrease falls in two fiscal years, $80,000,000 in each, and reduced estimated receipts by that amount.

Growing income tax receipts for the present fiscal year were expected to overcome the loss sustained through the lowered rates, but this situation was not expected to continue in the next fiscal year.

President Hoover in his budget estimate last December included figures in which the Treasury set the surplus in revenue for the 1929 fiscal year at $122,788,966.

Since that time the Spanish War pension bill, passed over the President's veto, has added about $75,000,000 to the Government expenditures for the coming twelve months, and the Farm Board expenses are expected to be $100,000,000 more than the Treasury had estimated.

In his budget message President Hoover estimated the Government's income for the year 1931 at $4,225,000,000, and while congressional appropriations for the year have not been totaled it was said that they already had exceeded that amount. From present indications the Government is faced with a deficit on July 1, 1931, but this same situation has occurred in previous years, and the Treasury has finished those years with a surplus.

President Hoover has called attention of Congress to the situation and advised that unless all unnecessary

BROCK, SCHLEE FINISH RECORD AIR EXCURSION

Land in Jacksonville, Making Round Trip in Less Than 32 Hours.

STORMS JEOPARDIZE HOP FROM SAN DIEGO

Battered Plane Crashes After Harrowing Journey Ends.

ONE STOP FOR FUEL; CLOUDS MARK CLAIM

Head Winds Over Mountains Cause Fliers to Cling to Parachute.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 18 (A.P.).—Battling storms and fuel shortages on their eastward trip, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee today completed the fastest recorded round-trip ocean to ocean flight across the United States.

They reached San Diego in the record time of 13 hours 55 minutes and 30 seconds without incident, but despite adversity which struck them soon after they started the return voyage and followed them to the end, the fliers managed to make it back in 16 hours and 50 minutes. Their elapsed time for the round trip was 31 hours and 58 minutes.

After fighting severe electrical storms and headwinds over the Rockies last night and being forced to land for fuel at Tallulah, La., this morning, they ran out of gas at the municipal airport here and crashed into a fence, narrowly escaping injury, and doing considerable damage to the plane. They had crossed the finish line at Jacksonville Beach, 12 miles away, a few minutes before.

Cling to Parachutes.

Leaving San Diego at 5:11 p. m. (P. S. T.), the airmen encountered their first difficulties over the mountains. Several times they said they thought they would be forced to jump in their parachutes. Riding from one storm to another they barely managed to get through. The landing at Tallulah was made at 9 a. m. When they reached Jacksonville they flew into dense clouds. Brock estimated he spent nearly 40 minutes seeking his bearings.

The landing at Tallulah prevented the West-to-East flight from being nonstop and threw a question on any claim for a record. Flight officials said the time for the flight would be compared with the marks set by Capt. Frank Hawks on an ocean-to-ocean basis, despite the fact that Hawks' route was about 400 miles longer than that taken by Brock and Schlee. Hawks made the westward trip in 19 hours and 10 minutes, flying from New York to Los Angeles. His eastward time was 17 hours and 43 minutes. His elapsed time was 43 hours and 59 minutes.

Beat Old Records.

The pair easily beat the previous records held for transcontinental flights between Jacksonville and San Diego, and San Diego and Jacksonville. The first westward trip from Jacksonville was made by Lieut. James H. Doolittle in 1922. Brock and Schlee cut more than seven hours from this record.

Maj. T. McCauley, of San Diego,

SLAIN CHICAGO WRITER LINKED TO GANGSTERS

Detective Says Carrier of Gun Claimed He Was Lingle Aid.

COURT TRIAL LENDS DARK RUMORS COLOR

ALDERMEN TO BEGIN POLICE QUERY AT ONCE

"Iron Man" Alcock Declares War on Captains Who Are Golf Players.

Chicago, June 18.—Sinister rumors of "Jake" Lingle's gangland affiliations became a matter of court record in criminal court today. A gangster, on trial as a guntoter, was quoted as protesting to the detective who picked him up that he "worked for Jake Lingle," the Tribune reporter who was killed in a downtown subway nine days ago.

The public clamor for action had another answer in the city council, which directed its police committee to prosecute thorough inquiry into the conduct of the police department under Commissioner William F. Russel, who yielded to popular pressure Monday and resigned with his chief of detectives.

Alderman Arthur F. Albert announced that he would launch the investigation tomorrow. Summoning his acting commissioner, John H. Alcock, and the department records for inspection, Mayor Thompson presided over the city council, but offered no nomination for Russell's successor. Alcock, the "iron man" of the force, remained in command as ranking deputy commissioner and issued orders that "golf-playing captains" would not be tolerated. How long Alcock will be chief the mayor refused to say.

Wet Referendum Urged.

The council adopted another resolution memorializing Congress to submit a national referendum on the restoration of State rights in the control of the liquor traffic. The memorial imputed to the prohibition laws the diversion of "millions of dollars from the Treasury into the pockets of bootleggers, thus subsidizing crime, which has become a major industry.

"These laws," it read, "have undermined all respect for authority, demoralizing the people, and have led to the destruction of constitutional rights, such as freedom from unreasonable search and seizure and the right of trial by jury."

The evidence linking Lingle to the underworld was brought out in the courtroom where Anthony "Red" Kissane, reputed Capone henchman, faced the jury trial he had demanded on an indictment for bearing a concealed revolver. Detective William Drury took the stand to tell of arresting the gangster on a street, searching him and finding the weapon. He said he asked Kissane what he was doing in the Loop.

"Working for Lingle."

"I'm working for Jake Lingle," he quoted the gunman.

Cross-examined by the defense attorney he said he had not investigated the reference to employment by

MRS. BYRD WELCOMES EXPLORER AND PARTY OFF NEW YORK SHORE

Slips From Harbor in Tug to Welcome Husband Out at Sea.

PARTY OF ADMIRAL ANCHORS NEAR BAY

New York Prepares Huge Demonstration for Explorers Today.

WASHINGTON PLANS BRILLIANT CEREMONY

Aviator Expected to Reach Capital for Honors at 9 Tomorrow.

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Richard E. Byrd, explorer of the air and of the earth, was steaming in to port tonight after his latest exploit—a flight that made him victor of the South Pole just as he was already conqueror of the North Pole.

Just 20 years ago today former President Theodore Roosevelt was given one of the city's most tumultuous welcomes on his return from sixteen months in darkest Africa. A similarly boisterous reception is planned for the man who has just completed sixteen months in the icy wastes of Antarctica.

Late today, Mrs. Byrd, who has not seen her famous husband for almost two years, stole a march on the other thousands preparing to greet him and steamed down the bay in a seagoing tug to join him outside the harbor. Accompanied by all the members of the expedition who returned ahead of its commander, she left the Battery in the tug almost before any one learned of the plan. It was learned she expected to board the admiral's flagship and spend the night there, returning to the city with him tomorrow.

Antarctic Ships Sighted.

Just as her departure was learned the Antarctic ships were sighted off Highlands, N. J., about two hours' steaming distance from Quarantine. It was understood, however, that the craft from the frozen South would lie outside the bay during the night and hold to their scheduled time of arrival.

The admiral and his officers and crew are due to arrive at quarantine at 10 o'clock, Eastern standard time, tomorrow morning. There they will be met by relatives, friends and officials in three tugs and will be taken aboard for a triumphal marine parade up the bay.

Governors Island will fire a salute of thirteen guns to the admiral just before the tugs tie up at the Battery and New York's citizenry get their first chance to shout a mass greeting to the explorer they have twice welcomed before, once when he flew across the Atlantic and again after he had flown across the North Pole.

Round of Receptions.

Three thousand troops will precede the admiral and his fellow explorers up Broadway through one of the paper snowstorms with which the financial district delights to hail its heroes, and at city hall the formal city welcome will take place with loud speakers carrying the addresses to the crowds in the plaza outside.

And then begins for Admiral Byrd a round of receptions, dinners and welcoming ceremonies that will last, almost without pause, until July 11, when he will be received by the people of Chicago.

A luncheon by the advertising club follows the welcome at City Hall. The press will be met by the admiral in his hotel suite in midafternoon, there will be a dinner by the merchants' association in the evening, and a special train leaves with the Antarctic party for Washington at midnight. And so the program will go for the next three weeks.

STOCKS HIT LOWEST LEVELS SINCE CRASH

Third of Losses Recovered at Noon; One Share Declines $48.

BANKS' SUPPORT DENIED

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Economic uncertainty again reared its unpleasant head in the speculative markets of the country today and sent stocks and several staple commodities to new low levels for the year or longer, before traders regained their nerve and part recovery was accomplished.

The general price level of shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange, as measured by the price index of 90 representative issues, was carried down to the lowest point seen since the second day of recovery from the levels of November 13, when the lowest levels of the autumn crash were recorded. By early afternoon, however, signs of a rally appeared, and before the close of trading about a third of the extreme loss had been gained.

Total sales exceeded 6,400,000 shares, the second largest day of the year, exceeded by the 8,000,000-share turnover of May 5.

Bankers were not inclined to regard the market situation as particularly acute, and it was stated emphatically in important banking circles that there was no consideration of organized support such as was applied to the market last fall.

It was rumored in brokerage circles, however, that individual banking interests were placing suporting orders for their favorite issues. A partner in one of the leading investment banking houses said that obviously the

POLICE PLAN SNARE FOR SLAYER OF TWO

New York Borough Closely Guarded to Capture Homicidal Maniac.

GIRLS TELL OF KILLING

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Police Commissioner Mulrooney today marshaled his forces to set a trap for a homicidal maniac who threatened to commit his third murder tonight in the Borough of Queens. Hundreds of police, many called in from vacations, guarded the borough, especially the isolated sections, to capture the slayer, who has shot two men in cold blood as they sat in automobiles with young women companions.

The police have a good description of the slayer who is believed to be a maniac with a craze for cheap melodrama. The description was given by the two girls who saw their companions slain.

One of the girls is Catharine May, 19. Last Wednesday she went riding with Joseph Mozynski, Queens grocer. While they were sitting in their car parked in an isolated section they were approached by a man who asked to see the driver's license. As Mozynski showed it to him the stranger drew a revolver and fired. Taking the frightened girl by the arm, he led her up to the road to a bus stop and told her to go home.

The other girl, Elizabeth Ring, 19, was the companion of Noel Sowley, 26, a radio salesman, when he was killed under almost identical circumstances Monday night. Fear kept her lips sealed until the body was discovered yesterday afternoon by boys picking berries.

The police seek a man dressed shabbily and about 40 years old. He speaks

"Honey" Mason Must Pay Fine of $1,500 or Go to Jail for 900 Days; Case Step in New Drive.

Arthur (Honey) Mason, colored, who was convicted by a jury in Police Court last May 28 on a charge of nuisance and five charges of second offense possession of liquor, yesterday drew the heaviest sentence ever meted out in Police Court on a prohibition charge.

Mason was sentenced to pay fines totaling $1,500, or serve 540 days in jail, and in addition received a straight 360-day jail term. If he does not pay the fine he must serve 900 days in jail.

Judge John P. McMahon who presided at Mason's trial sentenced him to pay a fine of $1,000 or serve 360 days on the nuisance charge, to pay a $500 fine or serve 180 days in jail on the first of five second offense possession charges and to serve 90 days on each of four second offense possession charges. Judge McMahon specified that the sentences were not to run concurrently.

Attorneys Bertrand Emerson and John Sirica, who defended Mason, noted an appeal from the conviction and sentence and Judge McMahon fixed bond for the defendant at $2,500.

At the time Mason was convicted Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart declared that it was the first offensive in an effort to drive out of the Third Precinct all speakeasies operating under the guise of business establishments.

Berlin, June 18 (A.P.).—Frederick M. Sackett, American Ambassador, today in an address told delegates to the world power conference that he knew of "no other manufacturing industry where the sale price of the product to the great mass of consumers is fifteen times the actual cost of production."

The conferees, representing the greatest power-producing interests of the world, applauded when the ambassador spoke his views, around which in the last 24 hours had centered a critical discussion.

Richmond today to take part in the welcome celebration. The Richmond Light Infantry Blues will serve as the admiral's guard of honor.

At 6 o'clock tonight the wrecking steamers Resolute and Relief were reported off Highlands to meet the Byrd vessels, but the purpose could not be obtained. The owners of the steamers said they had no information about the matter and it was generally supposed that they were merely going to stand during the night and perhaps tow the expedition ships into the harbor tomorrow. The Eleanor Bolling has been towing the City of New York, which has only an auxiliary engine.

Capital Prepares Welcome.

Following a triumphant entry into New York City today, Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd and his party of 80 will come to the National Capital tomorrow to receive the congratulations of President Hoover and other Government officials and a special gold medal from the National Geographic Society for his explorations at the South Pole.

Admiral Byrd, the 42 men who spent 14 months with him on the ice in Little America, and 38 other members of his command who served the expedition in New Zealand, or aboard his two ships, will reach Washington aboard a special train at 9 o'clock in the morning. Throughout their day's visit, the members of the party will be guests of the Geographic Society.

Aboard this train will also be Mrs. Byrd and Richard E. Byrd, jr.; Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd, mother of the explorer; former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, his brother, and Mrs. Byrd, with their two children, Harry Byrd, jr., and Miss Westwood Byrd; Capt. Thomas Byrd, another brother, and his daughter, Miss Margaret Byrd.

Meet Hoover at 12:30.

Special details of police have been assigned to hold back the crowds at Union Station and to escort the visitors to the Willard Hotel, where, by their request, the entire party will rest during the morning.

Admiral Byrd and his command will be received by President Hoover at the White House at 12:30 o'clock. An hour later the party will be guests of the trustees of the Geographic Society at a luncheon at the Willard. A number of distinguished Government officials will also be present.

The noted Navy explorer will pay his official call on Secretary Adams at 3 o'clock, after which the whole command will go to Arlington Cemetery. Wreaths will be laid on the graves of Admiral Perry, discoverer of the North Pole; Floyd Bennett, flying companion of Admiral Byrd, and Admiral Charles Wilkes, the American, who, 90 years ago, conducted the first scientific exploration in the Antarctic Ocean.

The remainder of the afternoon will be spent in sight-seeing and resting.

Program to Be Broadcast.

A distinguished invited audience will gather at the Washington Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock to honor the visitors as the climax of the day's reception. National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia System will carry the ceremony over national radio networks for those unable to get in the auditorium.

A detachment from the Washington Navy Yard will decorate the hall, while the Marine Band will play as the crowd assembles. Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, will preside and make a brief address, after which President Hoover will make the speech of presentation of the National Geographic Society's medal to Admiral Byrd.

The special award was designed by Laura Gardin Fraser for the explorer, because he is already the holder of the society's Hubbard gold medal, which has been given to only eight men.

Following a brief acceptance address by Admiral Byrd, the first motion pictures of the Antarctic continent, depicting the high spots of the expedition's activities, will be shown, same night.

Scouts Will Greet Siple.

Paul Siple, the Boy Scout member of the Byrd command, will be greeted by the Washington Boy Scouts on his arrival in the city. Saturday morning he will speak at the Central High School Auditorium at 11 o'clock.

BORAH RESOLUTION ON TARIFF ADOPTED

Senate Directs Commission to Report on Costs of Certain Products.

POSTAL HEAD TESTIFIES

(Associated Press.)

As the customs service grappled with initial problems under the new tariff act, the Senate yesterday adopted without debate or a record vote the Borah resolution to provide an immediate test of the new flexible provisions.

The resolution directs the Tariff Commission to investigate and report to the Senate at the earliest possible date the differences in cost of production here and abroad of shoes, furniture, bells, wire fencing, wire netting, cement, hoes, shovels, spades, scoops, forks, rakes, scythes, sickles, grass hooks, corn knives and drainage tools.

"If the flexible provision is going to do the wonderful things they say it will, let's get it to working," said Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, author of the resolution. He voted against the tariff bill.

Testimony by Brown.

While most of the articles named for the inquiry are farm implements, Senator Borah said he was particularly anxious to determine whether the 6 cents a hundred pounds levy on cement, on the free list prior to yesterday, was founded on the exact difference in production costs.

In a recent speech in the Senate he estimated the farmers would have to pay an annual additional cost of $16,000,000 for their cement under the 6-cent rate.

Bells, wire fencing and wire netting were added to the inquiry list in an amendment by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut.

While the Senate was disposing of the Idahoan's proposal, the House ways and means committee obtained assurances from Postmaster General Brown that if no minimum limit were placed on the importation of Cuban cigars the United States could negotiate a parcel post convention with Cuba guaranteeing collection of full duties on all shipments.

Cigar Import Issue.

Mr. Brown testified before the committee on the Hawley resolution to restrict cigar importations to not less than 300 to a package. In view of the Postmaster General's assurances, Representative Hawley (Republican), Oregon, said he would not press his proposal.

Under the old law, cigar imports were limited to 3,000 or more per package. The new tariff act eliminates this restriction. Hawley said his proposal was designed to prevent importation of small packages that might escape duty.

The previous limitation, Brown said, caused the termination of a temporary parcel post agreement with Cuba. The 300 minimum proposal, he added, would be "an insurmountable obstacle to the negotiation of a new parcel post convention."

In negotiating a new convention with Cuba, Brown promised a stipulation would be made that all cigar importations, regardless of the size of the lots, pay the regular duty.

5,000 Copies of Bill.

"In view of your statement, I believe this solves the problem," said Mr. Hawley.

The Senate yesterday concurred in a House resolution to provide printing 5,000 copies of the new tariff bill, after Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, inquired "what use" was to be made of them.

Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, suggested that "the minority members might send them out as a horrible example."

Tariff Body Changes.

There were strong indications at the White House yesterday that President Hoover would send to the Senate before he leaves on his Western trip next month, and possibly as early as next week, the nominations of several new members of the Tariff Commission.

Under the new tariff act the President has 90 days in which to reorganize the commission, but he may reappoint any incumbents he desires.

Just how many commissioners, if any, Mr. Hoover will rename has not been disclosed. Nor have any names of likely new candidates appeared in the speculation.

The six commissioners now holding office are Edgar B. Brossard, Utah, chairman; Thomas O. Marvin, Massachusetts, and Sherman J. Lowell, New York (Republicans), and Alfred P. Dennis, Maryland; Lincoln Dixon, Indiana, and Frank Clark, Florida (Democrats).

Garner Criticizes Hawley.

Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic House leader, in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, assailed moves by Chairman Hawley and other members of the ways and means committee to amend the law so soon after its enactment.

Calling attention to the Cuban cigar and other proposals, Garner said: "Obviously these frantic efforts to rush amendments to the tariff act of 1930 carry not only a rebuke to the imperfections of the act, but they ignore the Tariff Commission, which is not even given a chance to make a report on it and open the way for lobbying activities before the commission."

The Texan added it was "seriously doubted that any of the proposed amendments will be enacted."

Tea House Injunction Suit Is Threatened

The Chevy Chase Terrace Community Association will seek an injunction if necessary to prevent the erection of a tea house between Bradley lane and the District line, it was announced yesterday following a meeting. C. S. Watson was named chairman of a committee to confer with Montgomery County authorities and the Maryland Park and Planning Commission.

Completion of the paving of Chevy Chase boulevard was urged, and a resolution of protest was adopted because of alleged failure to enforce a 192" law compelling property owners to remove obstacles to clear vision along Wisconsin avenue.

FRANCE REASSURED ON TARIFF BY EDGE

Other European Countries Raise Protest Storm Over Measure.

RETALIATION IS URGED

Paris, June 18 (A.P.).—Ambassador Walter E. Edge introduced today what was intended as a calming note into the discussion of the new American tariff schedule.

A communique issued at the embassy said the new rates, if applied to the French exports to the United States in 1928, would have added only about 3.35 per cent to the total duty and added that "the revised American tariff signed yesterday by President Hoover can have no serious effect upon French exports to the United States."

"An outstanding feature of the new act is the authority given the President to reorganize the tariff commission in order that scientific and expeditious investigations as to the justification of rates can be immediately undertaken.

French Remain Skeptical.

It is concerning this discretionary power that French exporters have expressed the greatest skepticism. They have pointed out that thus far investigations such as authoried by the new law always have resulted in raising the rates.

They are afraid it will always be thus, since the standard of living in Europe may be expected to remain far below that of the United States for a long time, and wages consequently will be lower, with the result that the Tariff Commission will always find production costs less here than in the United States.

Rome, June 18 (A.P.).—The new United States tariff today continued to excite the Italian press, which insisted that Italy must make all possible efforts to conserve her American markets by intensifying technical organiations, revising production methods and reducing manufacturing costs.

Il Tevere said of the tariff, "It is the ultimate manifestation of the economic imperialism of the United States."

Prague, June 18 (A.P.).—Deputations from Czechoslovakia and German industrail associations today protetsed to the United States Minister against the new tariff of 80 to 120 per cent which, they declared, would strangle the export trade of Czechoslovakia to America.

Modus Vivendi in Danger.

Madrid, June 18 (A.P.).—The government today was studying requests that it break the existing modus vivendi with the United States as a protest against the new tariff. Officials said no hasty action would be taken.

Moscow, June 18 (A.P.).—Communist newspapers declared today that the United States was facing one of the worst economic crises in its history. Pravda, one of the organs of the Communist party, said the latest Wall street slump was merely a prelude to a more destructive and dangerous drop.

Brussels, June 18 (A.P.).—The Belgian cabinet has discussed the new American tariff policy fully, but announces that it believes safeguarding and retaliatory measures should await conferences with other European countries. Etoile Belge, Liberal-Conservative paper, today voiced a hope that the "American challenge" might create a movement toward European solidarity, resulting in a defensive agreement against American competition.

Woman Driver Spanked By Man After Collision

Haford, Calif., June 18 (A.P.).—It finally happened.

Exasperated by a woman driver, John Sorder, 44, forced her to the curb, yanked her from the car and turned her over his knee and spanked her.

At least that is the story of Mrs. Merle Fitting, who had Sorder arrested. She said she and a woman companion were motoring when her car collided with Sorder's. She continued on her way after the accident but was overtaken.

The court will decide whether the alleged spanking was justified.

SMOOT BLOCKS VOTE ON VETERANS' BILL

PASSAGE IS FORECAST

(Associated Press.)

The House bill to liberalize disability allowances for World War veterans, was taken up by the Senate yesterday with prospects for final action today despite failure of leaders to get an agreement for a vote.

Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, the chairman of the finance committee which redrafted the House measure, assailed the legislation after Senator Shortridge (Republican) (California, had called it up and asked for prompt disposition.

The Utah senator was beset by Democratic proponents as he undertook in an hour's address to analyze its provisions which he said amounted to giving an award to veterans who had acquired disease "as a result of their own vicious habits."

The legislation carries many liberalizing provisions, including authorization for veterans to claim service origin for diseases developed before January 1, 1930.

Smoot Blocks Action.

Demands have been made that the legislation to be put before President Hoover for his approval or veto before Congress adjourns. To that end, all hands urged speedy action yesterday, but Senator Smoot resisted. He said he would not filibuster against the legislation.

Senator Smoot argued that under the bill a soldier who never saw war service could collect $10 a month from the Government on account of disease "acquired through his own vicious habits, while a soldier who lost an arm or leg in the Spanish-American War can get only $60 a month at themost."

Senator Simmons (Democrat), North Carolina, remarked that perhaps an injustice had been done Spanish-American War veterans, but that there was no reason why "justice cannot be given the World War veterans."

Overwhelming Majority Apparent.

An overwhelming majority seemed apparent for the bill. It has been estimated the measure will cost $74,000,000 annually.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, demanded of Senator Smoot what he would do with those veterans who contracted diseases during the war and were not bedridden. Senator Smoot replied that existing law provided for their hospitalization.

Fears of a pocket veto have been expressed if Congress adjourns before the ten-day period allowed for the President to consider legislation.

The American Legion has requested Congress to keep in session until the President has acted.

Kidnaping Threats Bared in Ricci Case

Violin Prodigy Guardian Explains Refusal to Let Parent In.

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Miss Beth Lackey, guardian of Ruggiero Ricci, 9-year-old violin virtuoso, testified today that kidnaping threats had been received by her during the last few days.

She made the statement in answering a question by counsel for the boy's father as to why she had excluded him from her apartment. The father is seeking the custody of the boy through habeas corpus proceedings. Miss Lackey said that the times he had been refused admission strange men had been with him and that, alarmed by the kidnaping threats, she had refused to let them in.

Asked if she was afraid the father was going to kidnap the boy, she said she had "never given it a thought."

Officer of Fraternity Held in $3,133 Larceny

Baltimore, June 18 (A.P.).—George W. Hoffman, great chief of record of the Maryland Improved Order of Red Men, was held today, charged with the larceny of $3,133 from his organization. He was arrested on a warrant sworn to by Samuel T. Mason, grand sachem of the Maryland Red Men.

Mason told a magistrate the alleged thefts had been in process since last year and that Hoffman had admitted he was guilty before ten witnesses. Hoffman, however, said he would plead not guilty and obtain a postponement of his hearing.

Felix Davis, Porto Rican commissioner, introduced a resolution to change the name of Porto Rico to "Puerto Rico," a name consecrated by tradition and history.

Claims committee recommended payment of $5,000 to the widow of Henry Virkkula, who was shot and killed by a customs inspector in Minnesota. The committee found that his death was due to "negligence of a Government agent."

Chairman McFadden, of the banking committee, invited Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Secretary of State Stimson to give their views on his resolution to prohibit the purchase of German reparation bonds by national and Federal Reserve banks.

Representative Michaelson (Republican), Illinois, offered a resolution for an amendment to the eighteenth amendment to place exclusive power to regulate liquor in Congress.

WHOLESALE PRICES LOWEST IN 13 YEARS

FELT ALL OVER WORLD

(Associated Press.)

The decline in wholesale commodity prices which began last August was found yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board to have carried the general average of prices to the lowest level in thirteen years.

In its monthly review of business and financial conditions the board described the downward movement of prices as an important factor in the recent course of business. It said the downward movement has been in progress in all commercial countries in the world.

The price level in April was placed at about 7 per cent below that of last July.

"Gradual price recessions which were reported for all countries beginning last summer or earlier," the board said, "appeared to have accompanied a general slowing down of trade and industry to which the high level of money rates throughout the world, caused largely by the strong demand for credit from the American securities market was a contributing factor."

The board reviewed price changes in farm products, mineral and forest products and in manufacturers since 1922 and said the recent decline in livestock prices seemed to reflect decreased demand.

In discussing the drop in silver prices to the present level of below 40 cents an ounce, the board said it had been due to decreased use of metal for monetary purposes, and that the present price was 30 per cent below the prewar level.

Differences in the course of prices in different groups of commodities can be explained only with reference to a large number of circumstances affecting individual industries and markets," the board said.

Reduced industrial activity abroad, it was said, diminished demands for raw materials and was a factor in the price decline. Furthermore, unfavorable conditions in the United States bond market in 1929 made it difficult for foreign countries to arrange for long-time financing in this country and were a further factor tending to delay industrial recovery abroad and to depress the world level of commoditied prices.

It said that the firm expected to be able to liquidate its obligation "in due time to the full extent." J. C. Beauty Laurels May Go To "Also Ran" in Contest

Charges That First Prize Winner at Miami Is Married and Runner-Up Was Ineligible May Make Miss America of Third in Line.

Miami, Fla., June 18 (A.P.).—G. A. Trice, president of the International Beauty Pageant, said today that Miss Margaret Ekdahl, Tampa, Fla., would be named Miss America to enter an international beauty fete at Rio de Janeiro if selection of an entrant still lies with officials of the local pageant association.

The announcement was made after officials had considered charges of R. B. Brossier, Orlando, Fla., publisher, that winners of the first two prizes in the contest here some time ago were ineligible to compete. Miss Ekdahl won third prize.

Brossier charged that Miss Janet Eastment, Fort Worth, Tex., who won the crown of "Miss America" after appearing as "Miss Texas" was married. Rules of the pageant provided that contestants should be single. The publisher also charged that Miss Alberta McKellop, who as "Miss California" took second prize, was not a resident of California and was not selected by the people of that State to represent them.

Miss McKellop, in San Diego, Calif., today denied that she had misrepresented her status to pageant officials.

No response has been given officials by Miss Eastment to their request that she disprove the charges of Brossier or else return the silver loving cup and $2,500 first prize money she received with the title of "Miss America."

A trip to Rio de Janeiro for participation in a beauty contest there also was among the scheduled prizes for the girl selected as "Miss America."

CONGRESS BULWARK IN DRY REFORM PLAN

Representative Michaelson Would Give Sole Power to Legislative Body.

RESOLUTION IS OFFERED

(Associated Press.)

Exclusive power for regulating intoxicating liquors would be vested in Congress under a resolution introduced by Representative Michaelson (Republican), Illinois, yesterday to direct the judiciary committee to submit to the House a proposal to amend the eighteenth amendment.

Describing himself as neither a wet nor a dry, the Illinois member who was indicted and later freed on a liquor charge in Florida more than a year ago, said he had concluded the people in the country held the eighteenth amendment and dry laws "responsible for much of the graft, corruption and crime which has become general."

The resolution would lay the ground work for Nationwide or State referendums on the eighthteenth amendment and its substitution to give Congress exclusive power to "tax license, regulate or suppress the manufacture, sale, transportation, exportation and importation of intoxicating liquors."

In a statement inserted in the Congressional Record, Michaelson said the plan would "overcome the existing evils of the eighteenth amendment and the dry laws." The regulation of liquor traffic, he continued, was a police regulation and should not be in the constitution.

I think the people have reached the conclusion," he said, "that the endeavor to make the country dry by force is weakening the foundation of our political institutions and creating precedents which later will result in greart harm to the country."

Another proposal seeking to modify the existing dry laws was introduced by Representative McLeod (Republican), Michigan. His measure would prohibit padlocking.

District Places Ban On Too Loud Radios

Radio fans hereafter must have regard for the sensitiveness of their neighbors' ears, nerves or disposition or run the risk of a fine of $40 for tuning their loud speakers too loud.

The District Commissioneres adopted a new police regulation yesterday providing for the fine. It was recommended by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, drafted by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, and provides:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, copartnership, association, firm or corporation knowingly or wantonly to use, or operate, or cause to be operated any mechanical device, machine, apparatus or instrument for the intensification of the human voice or of any sound or noise in any public or private place in such a manner that the peace and good order of the neighborhood is disturbed."

HOOVER'S SUPPORT GIVEN TO MORROW

Observers Speculating on Prompt Action by the President.

LIQUOR ISSUE TO FORE

that Mr. Morrow, returning from London and surveying the political waters in which he was about to jump, decided that he had better be wet and that his judgment was borne out. Weight is given to this argument by the fact that former Senator Frelinghuysen, who had formerly been a dry, appraised the situation the same way.

It was a Morrow victory as much as it was a wet one, which does not minimize, however, the prestige which the wet cause has gained.

Simpson Outlook Gloomy.

The extent of his victory would seem, too, to carry evil portent for Alexander Simpson, who will carry the Democratic standard in November. He is also a wet, a dripping one, but that approximately 300,000 plurality for Morrow in the Republican primary reflects a determination of the New York crowd that commutes to New Jersey, the business crowd, one might call it, to advance Mr. Morrow in public life, this man of apparent political destiny.

New Jersey is unquestionably Republican in Presidential years. It was a "Presidential year" vote that participated in Tuesday's primary and which will turn out again in November.

You know, it is a funny thing about Mr. Morrow and the wets. He has set a large undertaking before them—change of the Eighteenth Amendment itself. It will be a long time before you can get good beer or the hard stuff that way. There is nothing like getting enthusiastic, though.

Man Hunted in Attack Is Found Shot to Death

Bank Messenger Dies Of Shock After Holdup

Pittaburgh, June 18 (A.P.).—A bank messenger who was held up and robbed Monday died last night from the shock. He collapsed shortly after the robbery and was unconscious until a few hours before his death.

The man was John B. Stauff, 37. A satchel containing $2,306 was seized from his hand as he was on his way from the South Hills Trust Co. Bank to a downtown bank. Before his collapse he identified Harry Andreni, captured after a chase by police, as one of the robbers. Harry Manning, 67, was held by police today as the second of the two bandits who held up Stauff.

MORROW PLURALITY PLACED AT 299,619

CONGRESS SEAT RACES

Newark, N. J., June 18 (A.P.).—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow's plurality in yesterday's Republican State primary for nomination as United States senator tonight had reached the total of 299,619, with 24 scattered districts missing out of the 3,304 in the State. Mr. Morrow's margin was unprecedented in the history of senatorial primaries in New Jersey.

The vote tonight stood:

Morrow, 417,058.

Franklin W. Fort, 117,439.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 47,780.

Morrow, 408,432; Franklin W. Fort, 114,755; Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 47,171.

Mr. Morrow ran on a platform advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment and return of liquor traffic control to the States. He swept every County in the State, including Somerset and Essex, the respective homes of Frelinghuysen and Fort.

Called Leader of Wets.

While Mr. Morrow's supporters attributed his overwhelming victory as much to his personal appeal as to his stand on prohibition, the Rev. Dr. James K. Shields, State superintendent of the Antisaloon League, said the primary returns had done much to encourage the wets.

Dr. Shields issued a statement saying that "whether he willed it or not, Mr. Morrow's statements had made him the natural outstanding leader of the wets in New Jersey.

"Long months of newspaper publicity had been steadily building up his reputation as the greatest man in America, the President not excepted," said Dr. Shields. "This had its undoubted effect in the results at the poll. His nomination is recognized and will continue to be emphasized by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and all the wets of the Nation as their outstanding victory since the adoption of the eighteenth amendment."

Telegrams Flow In to Morrow.

Dr. Shields added that Mr. Morrow already had been selected as the wets' "standard bearer in 1936, and if elected in November, they will immediately raise the standard in 1932." Politicians understood Dr. Shields to refer to rumors that Mr. Morrow is regarded as possible presidential timber.

At his home in Englewood Mr. Morrow received telegrams from all sections of the United States and Mexico congratulating him on his victory. A statement from the White House said he "would have every possible support" from the President and administration. Both his Republican opponents promised to support him in the campaign next fall.

In the senatorial election Mr. Morrow will be opposed for the six-year term by Alexander Simpson, Democrat; Miss Esther H. Elfreth, of Haddonfield, prohibition candidate, and Henry Jager, Socialist.

To Run Against Woman.

For the unexpired term created by appointment of Senator Walter E. Edge as Ambassador to France, Mr. Morrow will run against Miss Thelma Parkinson, of Vineland, who was unopposed in the Democratic primary. Mr. Edge's term has four months to run after next November.

Mr. Morrow spent approximately $44,000 in his successful campaign for the long-term Republican senatorial nomination, Douglas Thompson, his campaign manager, announced tonight.

Total contributions of $63,608, including one of $15,000 by the candidate, were received.

The figures included expenditures up to and including June 13, Mr. Thompson said. He did not make public expenses for the short-term campaign.

Final returns on yesterday's contest for nomination of representatives in Congress, for New Jersey tonight brought expressions of hope from antiprohibitionists that the elections next fall would send a predominantly "wet" delegation to Congress.

New Jersey has twelve congressional districts. Ten Democrats and eight Republicans were nominated without opposition.

Wet Gains Are Claimed.

In the only two Republican contests in which prohibition was an issue, Representative Ernest R. Ackerman, dry, defeated Wesley A. Stanger, a wet, in the Fifth District, and Peter A Cavicchia, wet, defeated Joseph C. Cassini, wet, and Meador Wright, dry, in the Ninth District.

Results in the Fourth, Eighth and Ninth Districts were believed to have put wet sympathizers on both the Republican and Democratic tickets.

In the Third District Assemblyman Thomas M. Gopsill, of Red Bank, won over Donald S. Bowie for the nomination to succeed Harold G. Hoffman, recently appointed motor vehicle commissioner, and in the Eleventh, Irving W. Taft defeated William W. Britten.

In Democratic contests, Archibald C. Hart, former prosecutor of Bergen county and former representative, defeated Edward A. Kenney in the Sixth District, and Edward Simms defeated John F. Cahill in the Tenth District.

facts have been distorted, and the simple request for these papers has been paraded in a certain part of the press as an unheard of and unwarranted procedure. The simple fact is the signers of the treaty themselves made public a document which referred to certain dispatches and other communications, and which contained in quotation the remarks of Premier MacDonald in relation to cruisers, and referring to Japan and the British Dominions. Of course, when the proponents thus put in evidence and in the public record this document, the opponents of the treaty demanded that all the related communications be produced. Parts of them, as confidential communications, were sent to the foreign relations committee by the State Department, and other parts refused as incompatible with the public interest.

Situation Called Remarkable.

"The remarkable situation is presented, therefore, of those who favor the treaty making public a part of the record and refusing to make public such other parts as they see fit to designate as incompatible with the public interest. Before any treaty can bind this country, the Senate must consent to it. The Senate is thus made by the Constitution a part of the treaty-making power. To deny it the papers and communications upon which the treaty is negotiated and finally signed, is to deny it the full information upon which its partner in treaty making acted.

To refuse the Senate, as in this case, where the country's future security is at stake, whatever may be relevant and pertinent, is to destroy its coequal power in treaty making and relegate it to mere subordination to the Executive. This the Constitution does not do. Where the signers of the treaty use a part and then refuse the remainder, there is in the refusal neither justice nor fairness nor candor.

"The statement of the situation and the attendant circumstances of the refusal are illuminating and require no comment.

"The internationalist newspapers, and those who seek the flattery of other peoples by decrying their own, are united now in a dismal chorus of denunciation of naval experts; and yet, while denouncing the vast majority, depend upon the small minority for ratification of the London treaty. In his radio address a week ago, the Secretary of State joined this chorus, and in staccato tones, talked of 'fighting men' and 'warriors,' who had before Senate committees answered the questions propounded to them and expressed themselves adversely to the treaty.

Officers Can't Hit Back.

"The first rule of good sportsmanship is never to hit a man who can't hit back. Officers of the United States Navy can not personally respond to the assaults made upon them by the Secretary of State and the sponsors of the London treaty; and the very fact of the assaults taints the cause in behalf of which they're made. The Secretary, however, after voicing his contempt of officers generally of the Navy, in order to justify his opinion of the treaty, devotes a paragraph in praise of one 'warrior' and 'fighting man,' who expressed himself as the Secretary desires. It is true that Admiral Pratt, who is about to become the chief of naval operations, has expressed himself in favor of the treaty; and it is equally true that Admirals Wiley, Robison, Hughes, Jones and Coontz, all of whom preceded Pratt as commander in chief of the fleet, and Admiral Chase, who is to succeed him, all expressed themselves as against the treaty.

"For each officer of the United States Navy who took the easier course, and agreed with the administration, at least six, with a courage that does them infinite credit, demonstrated the iniquity and inequity of the London treaty. These officers, true to the highest traditions of their service, with full knowledge of the possible consequences of their testimony, with the self-sacrificing patriotism that has ever distinguished the American Navy, dared to tell the truth.

"One group of these constitutes what is known as the general board, and they are the duly selected technical advisers of the Government in all naval matters. They told how this London treaty with the increased ratio to Japan was a disadvantage to our country, imperiled its seaborne commerce, and might endanger our national security, and with absolute unanimity they agree that the cruisers permitted us by Great Britain are insufficient for our naval needs.

Admiral Pratt Quoted.

"Admiral Pratt, it is true, approved, but unfortunately for himself, Pratt is of record concerning the ratio with Japan, and when he expressed himself in writing some years after the Washington conference in 1922, he said, in part:

"'We must insist upon the maintenance of whatever pleas may be made by any country that its particular interests require special consideration. This was one of the great points gained at the last conference. We sacrificed our projected battleship strength to gain it. We gave up our position as the coming leading naval power to establish it, and, having made the sacrifice, we should insist that it be maintained by the powers party to the treaty which established it. Although our assets are greater and our potential strength is far greater than that of any other single power, our desire to limit armaments is well known, as is also our wish to establish economy in the administration of government. These facts may be played upon in the endeavor to have the United States accept a position which she would be sorry for later. Pressure may be exerted to make us, in the interests of economy and good will, accept inferiority in future naval limitations proposed.

"'But we, when we were strong, accepted equality with England, and in the case of Japan we scrapped actual ships and dollars and cents for the sake of the cause of peace and economy, when Japan actually scrapped nothing except a paper program, with the exception of two ships partially constructed. Therefore, we can not and will not, I take it, yield the position we fought to gain. Moreover, there is no country, when conditions are analyzed closely and we consider imports, exports, loans, assets, trade in general, prestige, size, and so forth, who has a fairer claim to equality with the best, and certainly a preponderance of naval strength in the ratio of 5-3 with any others.

Japan Given Preponderance.

"'The 3-5 ratio gave Japan ample strength for defense, and article 19, which preserved the status quo of Pacific bases, drew our teeth both in a defensive and in an offensive sense, and really gave Japan a preponderance in the Eastern Pacific. We have no right now to put the United States in a position of inferiority in the matter of foreign relationships, and as is well known historically, a country's strength in international relations bears a direct ratio to its naval strength. The generations that come after us, if they be good Americans, will not thank us for having done it.'

"Just ponder these words of the chief witness of the Secretary of State: 'We must insist upon the maintenance of the ratio, regardless of whatever pleas may be made. * * * Preasure may be exerted to make us, in the interests of economy and good will, accept inferiority in future naval limitations proposed. * * * We can not and we will not yield. * * * The 3-5 ratio gave ample strength for defense, and article 19 (Washington treaty), which preserved the status quo of Pacific bases, drew our teeth, both in a defensive and offensive sense, and really gave Japan a preponderance in the eastern Pacific. We have no right now to put the United States in a position of inferiority. * * * The generations that come after us, if they be good Americans, will not thank us for having done it.'

"Ah, Admiral Pratt, some of us yet believe we should not yield to pressure, and some of us are still thinking of the generations that come after us!

For Americans to Place Honors.

"Americans may determine with whom the honors rest among officers of the Navy who have testified upon the London treaty. A few took their position—in good faith, we assume—where the road may lead to favors and preferment. To their undying honor be it said, the great majority, in the proportion of 5 to 1, of the officers of the United States Navy have gone the difficult road of opposition to influence and power, and have dared tell the truth, even at the expense of being derided by a Secretary of State. And after all, who best knows about a technical treaty such as this? We maintain with pride our splendid academy at Annapolis, where men are educated in naval knowledge and for command upon the seas.

Upon graduation, some devote their lives to the profession for which the Government has fitted them. These, grown old in service, recognizing but the one flag, with a thought single to their country's welfare and protection, tell us now to beware, would halt us on an emotional brink, where we find ourselves in part because of our feelings and in part because of our politics; and should we not heed the warning of these men to whom we entrust the Nation's safety in time of peril? Who makes wars? Our Secretary of State would imply our naval officers. Not so. Our country has fought many wars, and every one of them has been dictated by civilian officials—never by naval officers.

"The Secretary of State demands immediate ratification. He asserts that the consequences of delay would cause the treaty to be a matter of political discussion this year, and that what he terms irresponsible misrepresentation and a spirit of international suspicion and ill-will would be a part of every political canvass. This is the argument made by every foe of democracy. There never has been a piece of legislation which could not stand detailed scrutiny, but what its friends always insisted that it was of little consequence, and should be immediately passed and got out of the way.

Often Heard in Congress.

"And today, this is the specious plea most often heard in the Congress for immediate ratification. It is an argument ever to beware of in legislation, but when is added to it the statement that the treaty may be discussed with our people, and, therefore, should be ratified before that discussion is possible, men who believe in the people and their right to govern should instantly repudiate it. I express my humble opinion that the demand for immediate ratification and for no delay is not fear that this treaty may become a part of a political campaign, but fear that it may not become a part of the ensuing political campaign. It is a treaty that was made, not because of its merits, but because by certain people it was deemed necessary to have a treaty. It becomes thus a political treaty for use in the domestic politics of the Nation.

"I would take it out of politics, if I had the power, by postponing its consideration until after election. Not only would this take it from the political arena and not permit it to be used as a buffer and an alibi in a political campaign, but it would give us a short four months for the people of the United States to understand it and, understanding it, to express themselves concerning it. The treaty is a highly technical document. I am quite within the fact when I say that very few senators have any adequate conception of it, and even a smaller proportion necessarily of our people know what it is. Four months will do no harm to this treaty if it be what the Secretary of State, and its signers, say it is. If they are right, this brief time will justify them, but if they are wrong, and we act with the haste that they desire, then an irreparable injury, which never can be undone, will have been inflicted upon our country.

"It is nonsense to deny a people the right of investigation of what may affect their future welfare, and the denial upon the ground that international relations may be intimately discussed is a counsel of fear which should frighten nobody. For more than three months, what was considered at London? It was the relation of the navies of Great Britain, the United States and Japan. Every conceivable aspect, from mass combat to commerce protection, from submarines for immediate defense to great ships in far-flung battle array, was discussed.

Measured U. S. Navy.

"With meticulous care Great Britain and Japan measured our Navy in comparison with their own, and each was concerned in preserving either its equal balance or superiority. It wasn't a question of war at London. It isn't a question of war now. Nations, of course, wish in this world of realities, unfortunate as we may think it, to feel safe in any contingency. And in the last analysis it is peoples who are to be safeguarded; who, if not, must themselves pay the price; and when the very subject matter is their future protection, who have a better right of understanding and discussion than the very people themselves?

"The great preponderance of testimony is against this treaty. Among the witnesses who were summoned, and who testified because summoned, were: Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, Rear Admiral J. V. Chase; Rear Admiral J. M. Reeves; Rear Admiral George C. Day; Rear Admiral Henry L. Hough; Admiral Charles F. Hughes, Rear Admiral H. P. Jones, Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, Rear Admiral L. M. Nulton, Rear Admiral J. R. P. Pringle, Rear Admiral Samuel Shelburn Robison, Rear Admiral George R. Rock, Rear Admiral Frank H. Schofield; Rear Admiral W. H. Standley, Rear Admiral M. M. Taylor, Rear Admiral H. A. Wiley (retired), Rear Admiral R. E. Coontz, Capt. Adolphus Andrews, Capt. Alfred W. Johnson, Capt. J. K. Taussig, Commander Harold C. Train, Capt. D. W. Knox. All favor reduction and limitation of navies. Their testimony demonstrates to any disinterested person:

"1. That the treaty carries with it no economy, and does not reduce the burden of taxation of our people.

"2. That if we act under it, we immediately enter upon a building program that belies any cessation of competition; and what is worse, if the unsettled condition in Europe continues and the "escalator" clause is invoked, none can foresee the end of naval building.

No Parity With Britain.

"3. That we are not given parity with Great Britain. Even in battleships, with the scrapping of five by Great Britain and three by us, the Rodney and Nelson and their battle cruisers give Britain a marked superiority. And here is the complete refutation of the statement recently made that we obtain parity of our battleship fleet almost at once. According to authoritative testimony, the fact that we fail to build new battleships will make it necessary to modernize all of our old battleships, if we are to approach parity with Great Britain. The present disparity is primarily due to the fact that Great Britain since the Washington conference has built the two ultramodern battleships, the Rodney and Nelson.

"The modernization of our old battleships will cost approximately $118,000,000. For this great sum we could have nearly built three new battleships, instead of sinking vast expenditures into modernizing old ships which will not last as long and can never be as efficient as new ones would be. In contrast with this method of modernization, the British and Japanese, by a special provision of the treaty, hasten the scrapping and replacement of many of their old cruisers, and to them this appears to be the more sensible way of modernizing their navies. In the long run it certainly is the more economical way. And do not forget that recognizing our inferiority and our lack of parity, our representatives at London asked the right to construct a new superdreadnought like the Rodney or Nelson, and, of course, their request was immediately denied.

"As has been pointed out, the destroyer and submarine programs of the treaty are unfair to us because of the very substantial superiority we had in these classes when we went into the London conference, and which we yielded without commensurate return.

"4. The ratio of 5-3 with Japan accorded by the Washington conference is substantially increased in favor of Japan, to our disadvantage and the peril of our seaborne commerce.

Can Not Protect Commerce.

"5. We can not with the cruiser strength given us by Great Britain adequately protect our commerce. Great Britain with her bases and merchant marine with the allotted 8 and 6-inch gun cruisers can thoroughly well protect hers; but our lack of both bases and merchant marine, and the refusal to us of the larger gun cruiser, deny us exactly what Great Britain has, with meticulous care, preserved for herself.

"6. Our time honored naval policy, by which the primary duty of our Navy is to protect our commerce, is abandoned in favor of designing our Navy for fleet combat strength alone.

"7. The important cruiser part of the United States Navy must be built not as the United States requires, but according to British specifications.

"The Secretary of State suggests the 'warriors' of all nations are attacking the treaty, and he refers to a hazy press dispatch that some unfortunate officer in Japan committed suicide because of it. As an argument this is scarcely worthy a Secretary of State. The Japanese are a clever and a patriotic people. It may well be that observing the ease with which their representatives obtained exactly what they wished, some Japanese may resent that they didn't ask more and, by mere insisting, obtain greater concessions, but from the standpoint of those who in the Congress oppose this treaty, the question is neither British nor Japanese. It is American.

Afraid of Discussion.

"Here is a document which its sponsors dare not permit out people to discuss. A treaty, the papers and communications relating to which they refuse not only to the people, but to the Senate as part of the treaty-making power. A pact so difficult and complex that few have any adequate understanding of it, and one which requires detailed and prolonged study. An international agreement which, when first carefully scrutinized at home after execution abroad, demanded an exchange of notes with Great Britain and Japan to clairfy and explain one of its most important provisions

"Whatever incense may be burned at the altar of internationalism; whatever hosannahs of praise may be sung to peace and good will; whatever genuflections may be made to power that demands at all hazards a treaty as a demonstration of achievement and accomplishment, this document that is sought to be crammed down the throats of the American people has within it not only the germs of future misunderstanding and ill will, but above and beyond all this, it is unjust and unfair to our country. It robs us of that which we thought by sacrifices we had obtained in 1922. It may imperil our marvelously growing commerce, now equaling that of any nation on earth, and endanger even our national defense, and after all the boastful utterances concerning parity, it yields us only inferiority. It does not measure up to our material necessities and it falls far short of our ideals. It is a treaty that is un-American and Americans should reject it."

Inquiry Seeks to Trace Wabash Rumor Source

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain has started an inquiry to trace rumors that minority stockholders of the Wabash Railway Co. seek a receivership to protect their interest in the road. Wabash officials said there was no foundation to the report and asked Mr. Crain to investigate.

Wabash learned of the rumors in a wire from J. S. McNulty, of the Bronx, who said he had been approached by a committee who told him they were organizing minority interests.

FOES AID M'DONALD PARLEY ON JOBLESS

Lloyd George and Baldwin Agree to Confer Upon Nonpolitical Steps.

MONEY BILL ADVANCES

London, June 18 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today moved to take England's serious unemployment problem out of politics by inviting David Lloyd George and Stanley Baldwin, leaders of the Liberals and Conservatives, to a nonpartisan conference on measures for its relief.

Lloyd George, after the premier had delivered a speech covering the matter in the House of Commons, announced that he had accepted the invitation for the Liberals and hoped a solution would be found for the plight of nearly 2,000,000 jobless.

Mr. Baldwin had not indicated this evening what the attitude of the Conservatives would be.

Premier MacDonald in his speech said that if the leaders could agree on relief legislation, measures could be pushed through Parliament which would bring immediate results. Otherwise, he said, the Labor government necessarily would suffer delays by having to fight through all of its own legislation.

The prime minister emphasized that his invitation was not an attempt to form either a two-party or a three-party coalition, but was for the purpose of seriously considering without regard to politics what might best be done.

Commons previously had sat for nearly 22 hours, one of its longest continuous sessions in history, debating the finance bill. The government succeeded in passing the first clause of the bill, that dealing with the powers of special commissioners of income tax to inquire into share holdings, before recess was taken this noon. The vote was 222 to 90 supporting the chancellor. The unemployment debate began this afternoon.

BROCK AND SCHLEE MAKE RECORD TIME

made the initial West to East flight in 1919.

Brock and Schlee left here on their westward flight at 5:04 a. m. (Eastern standard time), Tuesday, arriving at San Diego at 3:56 p. m. (Pacific standard time). They had planned to make the round trip in 24 to 30 hours.

Meet Terrific Storm.

Somewhere in the vicinity of Tucson, Ariz., last night, the fliers encountered a terrific storm, they said. Brock was at the controls and Schlee at the radio. Schlee passed up a note to the pilot.

"I think we are going to have to bail out," it read.

Brock said he already had fastened a flashlight to his parachute straps, having had the same fear of their predicament. They were being bounced about the craft terribly, he said, and as they tried to run from one storm they ran into another.

"I have never been through such a night," said Schlee, who appeared tired and somewhat dazed. "It was one of the most severe storms we ever ran into."

NEW LEVELS STRUCK IN MARKET PLUNGE

situation was not comparable to that of last October, as the public is not loaded up with stocks as it was then.

The protracted decline in commodity prices, carrying such products as wheat, cotton and copper to the levels of 1914, has taken Wall street by surprise, however, and befogged the business outlook. Bankers who were quick to predict early business recovery after the autumn crash have now declined to offer any public comment.

Signs of Weakening Seen.

It is pointed out that commodity prices showed signs of weakening as far back as 1928, but may have been bolstered up in America by the orgy of speculation during that year and 1929. Wall street feels that the present recession has served to accentuate the rapid increase in productive capacity after completion of major readjustments after the World War, an increase which, for the moment at least, has outstripped the world's consuming capacity.

Wall street, for the time being, is not willing to make any definite prediction as to how long it will take to remedy this situation. One investment banker with important connections both in New York and London stated privately that he looked for some recovery in the fall, and decided recovery early in 1931.

Extreme losses of $5 and $10 were numerous in active shares on the stock exchange, but these were largely reduced to about $2 to $8. Several high-priced shares closed from $10 to $20 lower. Allied Chemical dropped $30, than rallied $10. Philadelphia Co., a comparatively inactive stock dropped $48. In the Chicago wheat pit, wheat futures tumbled about 4 cents a bushel, then reduced their losses to less than 2 cents. Cotton futures sold off about $1 a bale, recording new lows for the season, but rallied to close 45 to 80 cents a bale, net higher. Raw sugar futures again declined, with the July position sagging 3 points to 1.27 cents a pound, a new low record. Some custom smelters cut copper prices one-quarter of a cent to 11½ cents a pound, but the supply available at that price was quickly snapped up.

One of the letters, officers quoted Mrs Schroeder as saying, was received May 31, the day the body was found in the car. The other was mailed from Nashville, Tenn., June 6, she said.

Moldenhauer Firm On Plan to Retire

German Cabinet Attempts, in Vain, to Get Him to Stay on Job.

Berlin, June 18 (A.P.).—The cabinet in a special session tonight tried unsuccessfully to dissuade Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, financial minister, from his decision to resign on account of the unpopularity of his financial reform measure.

The outcome of the situation still was not clear when the meeting adjourned, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening merely announcing he would take up the matter with President Von Hinderburg.

Dr. Moldenhauer, meanwhile, agreed to remain in office until after the chancellor's conference with the president, who is spending a vacation on his estate, Neudeck, in East Prussia.

Lingle because he saw no significance in the words at the time.

Detective John Howe, Drury's partner, was asked regarding Kissane's reputation for veracity. He replied that it was bad. His opinion was founded, he said, on his observation of Kissane's associations and on conversations about him with other policemen.

"Would you call Lingle a gangster?" Howe was asked.

"No, I wouldn't, because I never knew him," the detective answered.

Alderman Burt, urging his resolution for an investigation of the police, asserted the city council must accept the responsibility for the situation and "do the work the State's attorney does not or can not do. He drew attention to the clean-up of Philadelphia by Brig. Gen. Smedley Butler.

"Is there any one," he asked, "who says these crimes could be committed without the connivance of police and gangsters?"

Parole Laws Attacked.

"Chicago is governed by police captains for the benefit of police captains. The remedy is not to transfer a captain from one situation to another, but to send the guilty ones to the penitentiary.

"Let us find out why the police captains ride in costly automobiles and live like Rockefellers while men are being shot down in the street."

Alderman Jacob M. Arvey pointed out that Illinois parole laws restrain convicts from leaving the State, while other States exile their paroled convicts and send them to jail if they come back. The Illinois law, he said, invites trouble.

Dexter Churchill Dayton, 26-year-old confessed strangler of his sweetheart, Marjorie O'Donnell, and Franklin Ellsworth Smith, 52-year-old bank watchman, who was convicted by a jury of first-degree murder in connection with the strangling of his 19-year-old daughter, Bessie Smith, but who recently won a new trial in the Court of Appeals.

While Mr. Rover refused to commit himself, it was understood that he favored acceptance of the pleas to the second degree charge rather than to try the present charge before a jury in the face of threats that insanity pleas are to be filed in behalf of both men. Dayton is represented by Attorneys Daniel S. Ring and Harvey Cobb, while Smith is represented by Attorney E. Russel Kelly.

Marjorie O'Donnell's dead body was found in a room in the Hotel Roosevelt last October 7, 1929, after Dayton is alleged to have told elevator boys to call the police and that he had killed his sweetheart. He is said to have claimed that he was drunk at the time of the slaying and that he intended to kill himself, but lost his nerve.

Dayton was indicted shortly afterward but it was considered that the indictment might be faulty and recently a new indictment was returned. Justice Peyton Gordon overruled a challenge to the array of the grand jury that returned the last indictment and it was expected that the defendant would be placed on trial next week.

Bessie Smith was found dead in her home on New Jersey avenue northwest near L street on September 26, 1928. Her father, following his arrest, is alleged to have confessed that he strangled his daughter following a row over a pork pudding. He was convicted by a jury on November 22, 1928, and sentenced to die in the electric chair the following April 27. A stay of execution was granted when the case was carried to the Court of Appeals and in its recent decision the higher court ordered a new trial on the grounds that the lower court had failed to submit to the jury in a case where insanity was the defense the question of "irresistible impulse."

Clara Bow Dodges Dallas Spotlight

Movie Star Says She Seeks to Smooth Things Out With Young Man.

Young loan plan, which amounted to Dallas, Tex., June 18 (A.P.).—Clara Bow, of the movies, remained virtually in seclusion in a hotel today while reporters sought her for a further explanation of her unexpected visit to Dallas.

One of the reasons she assigned for her visit here in talking with a reporter for the Dallas Times-Herald was that she wished to "straighten things out" with a young Dallas professional man. She was quoted as saying that her friendship for him while he was in California several years ago caused threats of a $150,000 alienation of affections suit which she said she settled for $30,000.

Last night Miss Bow was at the Club Bagdad in the Dallas-Fort Worth road with a group of several persons socially prominent in Dallas. Miss Bow seemed undecided as to the length of her stay in Dallas.

Events of the War 13 Years Ago Today

June 19, 1917.

Herbert Hoover, in four-hour conference with Senate leaders, declared victory depends upon the food supply. He charged speculators were making $50,000,000 monthly during congressional delay on food legislation.

Vice Admiral William S. Sims was placed in charge of allied naval forces in Irish waters.

The first two days of a week's campaign brought subscriptions totaling $35,000,000 into Red Cross coffers.

Lord Rhondda, of Great Britan, declared British war tactics were being held up by the delay of Congress in enacting food and other war legislation.

Marines Defeated Sandino Reports

Americans in Nicaragua Deny Capture of Sergeant Flier and Guns.

Mexico City June 18 (A.P.).—Gen Augustino Sandino's representative here issued a statement today saying the insurgent leader had returned to Nicaragua and had defeated the United States Marines in two encounters. The representative, Pedro Zepeda, declared Sandino's men had captured a Marine sergeant and an aviator and in addition had taken 10,000 rounds of ammunition and many guns.

Managua, Nicaragua, June 18 (A.P.) Headquarters of the Nicaraguan national guard today reported an unusually quiet week for bandit activities in the northern section, and said what contacts National Guardsmen and United States Marines have had since Augustino Sandino is supposed to have returned resulted disastrously for the bandits.

It was officially declared at the presidential mansion that Sandino never had been located in Nicaragua since he was reported to have left Mexico for this country.

Actor Strikes Girl 'Aid With Elephant; Fined

Chicago, June 18 (A.P.).—Amy Kingswell admired Wayman King in a professional way. She didn't mind his hurling knives at her or flicking cigarettes from her mouth with a long bull whip in their act.

She barred posies, however, particularly when accompanied with protestations of love and proposals of marriage, she told Judge Alfred Erickson today when King was arraigned on charges of disorderly conduct.

King, a sword swallower and handy with knives and whips, hit her. Miss Kingswell said with an elephant, a china one.

"A man of your talents," the court told King, "really shouldn't bury his light in one town, he should go to many places. Right off hand I'd suggest, er—ah, Detroit, for instance. Perhaps they haven't seen your act. Ten dollars and costs."

Nation Urged to Put Off Business Experiments, Strip for Action.

San Francisco, June 18 (A.P.).—America was advised today by E. N. Hurley, former chairman of the United States Shipping Board, to "stop, look and listen." Discussing Government "government and business," Mr. Hurley told the fifty-third annual convention of the National Electric Light Association that "instead of flattering ourselves that we are now in a position to indulge in all kinds of experiments, we had better strip for action."

"Were it not for the fact," he said, "that some of our foreign competitors for trade had previously handicapped themselves by socialistic experiments we are now urged to adopt, our position would be much worse."

He said the efficiency of the ship building business was "25 per cent less after the Government became responsible for wages. From the day the managers and men knew the pay roll was to be guaranteed our output of tonnage decreased."

Guard Slays Fugitive Refusing to Surrender

Cass, W. Va., June 18 (A.P.).—Refusing to surrender to a posse that surrounded him, Gilbert Tyree, fugitive from a prison road camp in Highland County, Va., was shot and killed here last night. Mayor G. M. Brice said Tyree threatened his pursuers with a pistol, and a guard from the prison camp shot him. Tyree had been sentenced to prison for stealing an automobile.

A coroner's jury today returned a verdict that J. A. Armentrout, road camp guard, killed Tyree in self-defense. Armentrout and all other members of the posse were exonerated.

PRESIDENT MAY INTERVENE TO SAVE 1931 DISTRICT BUDGET

relish a failure on the Republican record.

While the bill appears to be dead, there still is a chance for resurrecting it. True, the House has instructed its conferees to insist on their objection to the Senate provision for a $12,000,000 Federal contribution, but it did not bind the conferees not to accept a figure less than this.

Senate conferees were not bound on anything.

Cause of Disagreement.

The question of how much the Federal Government should contribute toward the support of the District government was the rock on which the bill was wrecked.

As passed by the House, the bill called for a Federal contribution of $9,000,000; as passed by the Senate a contribution of $12,000,000. When the bill went to conference all attempts to reconcile the two ended in failure.

The report announcing that Senate and House conferees had failed to agree was submitted to the Senate yesterday by Senator Bingham. Afterward he said that the bill was dead and that the only thing remaining to be done was to adopt a continuing resolution.

Terms of Resolution.

Under terms of this resolution, the current or 1930 appropriation would be continued; that is, so much of it would be continued as is needed to maintain the city and to go ahead on projects already started.

New projects, for which about $12,000,000 is provided in the 1931 bill, would have to be postponed.

In the debate in the House on Tuesday, Representative Simmons said:

"I may say to you that personally I have very good reason to believe that the bill will pass before the Congress adjourns."

Replying to Mr. Simmons yesterday, Senator Bingham declared:

"I do not know to what Mr. Simmons referred in that statement that personally he had good reason to believe that the bill would pass before Congress adjourned.

Reference to Garner.

"Certainly nothing that the five Senate conferees have stated in conference would lead him to believe that the Senate was willing to agree that the House should have its own way."

In view of that statement and another one by Minority Leader Garner that the Senate was bluffing and ultimately would surrender, Senator Bingham said, the House then proceeded by an overwhelming vote to insist on a $9,000,000 Federal contribution.

Answering a statement by Chairman Wood, of the House appropriations committee, that Senate conferees had failed to cite any good reason why the contribution should be placed at $12,000,000, Senator Bingham said:

"That is not a correct statement of the situation. The Senate conferees have repeatedly given their reasons, the first of which is that Washington is the Nation's Capital and that bridges and buildings and other improvements here in the nature of parks and so forth must be carried on on a monumental scale because it is the Nation's Capital and because it is only fair that the Nation itself should bear its proportionate share of the cost.

Reasons for Sum Given.

"The Senate conferees also called the attention of the House conferees to the fact that when the $9,000,000 lump sum was approved the total carried by the District appropriation bill was only about $30,000,000, and that if $9,000,000 was an appropriate contribution for the Federal Government to make when the total of the bill was $30,000,000, it was not an appropriate amount to pay when the total of the bill was $43,000,000, and that the amount should be raised for that reason."

Senator Bingham pointed out that in the House, Representative Moore (Democrat), of Virginia, had suggested that a commission be created to decide what would be a fair Federal contribution.

"This suggestion," said Senator Bingham, "was virtually laughed off the floor on the theory that such a commission would undoubtedly favor the Senate's theory and not the theory of the House.

Commission is Discussed.

"It was stated that the only commission that was needed were the members of the appropriations committee of the House, and that what they did was right and that what any one else should recommend was wrong.

"Mr. President, it is a very unfortunate situation. It is unfortunate for the Nation's Capital. It is most unfortunate for the consideration of new construction in the District.

"It has been repeatedly stated on this floor that the Senate conferees were not insisting on the accuracy or the inviolability of their figure of $12,000,000, but were willing to meet the House half way, or even to go farther than half way if that seemed reasonable; to agree on a common ground between the House's contention that $9,000,000 was a sacred sum and the Senate's contention that $12,000,000 was a fairer sum."

Proposal to Change.

The Senate conferees, he said, also offered to change the statutory law which says that the appropriation should be borne on a 60-40 basis—60 per cent by the local government and 40 per cent by the United States. They offered, he said, to put it on a 70—30 basis.

"This was also declined by the House," said Senator Bingham. "It should be stated further that the House conferees have indicated their unwillingness to compromise in the slightest degree or to meet the Senate at all on this proposition, although the Senate conferees have repeatedly offered to compromise.

"That is the situation, Mr. President. It is not a situation involving one senator, as was intimated by a debater in the other House yesterday, but it is the unanimous view of your conferees, after giving the matter prolonged study, that the only fair thing to do is to ask the House to compromise in the matter.

"The House has indicated its unwillingness, and therefore it was necessary for us to present this report indicating that we had been unable to agree."

The report was accepted without a dissenting vote.

The committee from the Board of Trade that called on the President yesterday was made up of George Plitt, the president; E. F. Colladay, E. C. Graham, Joshua W. Evans, jr., Charles W. Morris and Robert J. Cottrell.

Liner Roosevelt Freed From Reef in New York

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—The liner President Roosevelt, of the United States Lines, went aground in the mud and silt of Robbins Reef, in New York harbor, this morning, but tugs pulled her loose in less than two hours and she continued to her pier. In the maze of an overcast morning, the vessel thrust her nose into the reef which lies about 3 miles south of the lower tip of Manhattan, at 7:08 a. m. (Eastern standard time). She was floated at 8:55 a. m.

On board the liner, inbound from Southampton and Cherbourg, were 252 Gold Star Mothers, mostly from the Pacific Coast, returning from a pilgrimage to the battlefields of France. Capt. Theodore Van Beek was in command.

BOARD CAN NOT ACT ON SCHOOL HAZARDS

Education Body Prepared to Close Buildings; Unable to End Dangers.

UP TO COMMISSIONERS

Disclaiming any responsibility for fire hazards in District schools, the Board of Education voted yesterday to close any public school in Washington that is considered dangerous by the Fire or Health Departments, upon recommendation of the District Commissioners.

Explaining the policy of the Board of Education in regard to fire and health, Charles F. Carusi, president of the board, stated:

"The Board of Education stands ready at any time to close permanently or temporarily any public school building in Washington upon advices from the District Commissioners, based upon the recommendations of either the Health or Fire Departments that the use of such buildings involves a danger to the children from fires or insanitary conditions.

"The Board of Education considers the health and safety of the 75,000 public school children in the District as paramount to educational needs. The board indicates educational needs with respect to buildings or equipment but has neither the power nor personnel or responsibilities to cope with health and fire protection. These matters are under the supervision and control of the District Commissioners."

Mr. Carusi charged that despite reports that school officials have been informed of fire hazards for the past 11 years, the fire department has failed to supply the Board of Education with specific reports until this year. The president of the board further charged that the Fire Department did not supply this complete report until the Board of Education declined to accept former reports.

Mr. Carusi revealed that the school board in its recommended estimates for the 1932 budget has left a blank beside fire and health appropriations so that they might be filled in at the discretion of the District Commissioners on the basis of recommendations from the Fire Department.

The fire report on District schools, as finally accepted as complete and "in useful form," was read at the board meeting yesterday by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District schools. Prepared by Fire Chief George S. Watson, it revealed that fourteen District schools are in need of emergency improvements in addition to the fourteen the fire chief has condemned because of lack of fire escapes.

The schools requiring emergency action in varying degrees, as listed by Fire Chief Watson, are: The Armstrong, Central, Dunbar, Eastern, McKinley, Western, Brown, Business, Columbia Junior High, Shaw Junior High, Stevens, Twining, Deanwood and Powell Junior High.

proval yesterday.

The board will devote the major portion of a meeting next Wednesday to consideration of the kindergarten situation. Consideration will be given an appeal from the Central Labor Union to the board to not reduce the personnel of kindergartens, and Miss Catherine Watkins, superintendent of District schools, will be given the audience she requested several months ago. This audience was disadvised by Superintendent Ballou because of the inappropriateness of the time.

The board also voted yesterday to approve participation by public school children in the Edison awards. The board had disapproved this, but retracted the stand after learning that Thomas Edison had been offended. Dr. Hayden Johnson, colored member of the board, voted against the ap-

Students Tell Home Work Problems in Place of Usual Address.

The problem of home work in the high schools, the result of an investigation conducted by the graduating class of the Cardozo Business High School, was set forth at the commencement exercises of that institution last night by students in place of the customary commencement address. Diplomas were presented 24 students by Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, member of the Board of Education. The invocation was said by Dr. Walter H. Brooks.

it keeps 'em on the road./"

WITH every other car he'd ever driven, the 10,000-mile mark was the signal for extensive and expensive repairs. This one, of the same make, had gone more than 22,000 miles and never had the cylinder head off. Daily this West Virginia motorist expected trouble and daily the car seemed to run better. Finally he drove her into the shop.

He told the Service Manager to look it over and then telephone and let him know how many days it would take to put it in shape.

A half-hour later the Service Manager called. "Your car's ready, sir."

Amazed, the motorist hurried down.

"That was quick work," he began.

"There wasn't much to be done," was the answer. "We took out a few squeaks and rattles and made the carburetor adjustment leaner."

"But how about carbon? And the valves and rings? The car's gone over 22,000 miles and hasn't been touched."

"Well, if you want to spend some money, we can do it. But the motor's as good as the day you bought it."

The motorist smiled. "I don't know what's happened. Sounds too good to be true."

"What gas have you been using?" the Service Manager asked.

"Amoco—in this car."

"There's your answer, then—Amoco-Gas. It keeps 'em on the road and out of the shop."

AMOCO-GAS

LOW COST PER MILE is what counts

IT DOES MORE, IT'S WORTH MORE so it costs more per gallon

And so another motorist found that Amoco-Gas actually costs less per mile. He bought it because he liked its performance and he was sold for life when he discovered that it saved him money.

You're coming to Amoco-Gas—and lowest cost per mile.

MORROW'S VICTORY.

Dwight W. Morrow's victory over his party rivals in the New Jersey primary is so overwhelming that it seems to make his election to the Senate a foregone conclusion. No Democrat in New Jersey thus far mentioned can command the popular support that has been given to Mr. Morrow. He has achieved a personal triumph rarely equaled in American politics.

The fanatical wets throughout the country hail Mr. Morrow's victory as an immediate precursor of a reform of the prohibition situation. Their elation is quite natural, and as a matter of course they indulge in bright and baseless visions. They point to the fact that the prohibition question was the chief issue in New Jersey, and they conclude that Mr. Morrow's advocacy of repeal of the eighteenth amendment accounts for his victory. But before they jump to the conclusion that the New Jersey vote is an index of sentiment throughout the country they should consider other phases of the subject.

In the first place, New Jersey is wet, without regard to candidates. Mr. Morrow's enormous vote is largely due to his own character and personality. Evidently many moderate drys supported him, feeling that he would render great service to the State and Nation, without regard to his opinion on the liquor question. Moderate wets in large numbers would have supported him even if he had not stated his position on prohibition.

In States where the drys predominate the result in New Jersey will probably have no effect. Maine Republicans have just nominated a dry, Representative Wallace H. White, jr., and his nomination makes his election sure. His vote in the Senate will offset the vote of Mr. Morrow on any proposal to amend or repeal the eighteenth amendment.

Mr. Morrow did not discuss prohibition to any extent after making his declaration in favor of repeal. He dwelt upon the achievements of the Republican party, supported the new tariff legislation and the London treaty, counseled friendly relations with neighboring republics, and otherwise outlined his position on many public questions. He stands as a stalwart Republican, supporting President Hoover's policies. The Republicans of New Jersey recognize in him a man of great capacity, sound judgment, orthodox republicanism and even temperament—the possessor of qualities which are now unfortunately all too rare in the United States Senate. Accordingly they have chosen him as especially well qualified to represent them. Their choice is applauded throughout the country, because Republicans everywhere are disgusted with party traitors and are glad to see the States nominate genuine Republicans like Dwight Morrow.

NO WAR MATERIAL TO RUSSIA.

Civil war is raging in China on five separate and distinct fronts. The situation is aggravated by the spread of communism in the Yangtse valley. Vessels of a Russian volunteer fleet are hovering in coves off the coast, whence they transfer arms and ammunition to junks which land their cargoes on the mainland. Refugees from the communist-infected area report lootings, massacres and the confiscation of property.

The troubles of Great Britain in India are aggravated by the intrigues of communists among the "poor dumb millions." The red flag has been raised in several Indian riots. Agents of Moscow are fomenting trouble between the government and the Swarajists in the hope that the native uprisings may turn India to communism.

The situation in India and China gives cause enough to the State Department to refuse to sanction the manufacture and shipment to Russia of military airplanes by a Baltimore aircraft company. The United States is in duty bound not to lend its assistance to movements seeking to overthrow governments with which it is at peace. The Soviet, by its own frequent avowals, seeks to overthrow all governments. The influences it has thrown into China and India are part of its world-wide campaign of destruction. Military supplies exported from the United States to Russia would not only be used against friendly peoples, but ultimately might be turned against the United States itself. For every reason an embargo against the shipment of military supplies to the Soviet is necessary.

DEADLOCK OVER THE DISTRICT.

Against the House vote refusing to yield or compromise in the matter of adjusting the Federal contribution to the cost of the District government stands the Senate action of yesterday, putting an end to the conference on the District bill. The roll was not called in the Senate, and therefore its action may be regarded as taken unanimously. The District bill fails, and for the ensuing year the local government will be deprived of the appropriations for betterments and new projects.

At last the House has been stopped in its effort to impose an unjust burden upon the taxpayers of the District of Columbia. The Senate stands for an equitable contribution by the Federal Government toward the upkeep of the seat of government. In view of the great majority by which the House voted to continue the imposition upon the taxpayers, it was evident that nothing was to be gained by further arguments or appeals. The Senate therefore ended the controversy by interposing a veto upon the House proposal.

A survey of the fiscal relationship between the Government and the District of Columbia is unavoidable. The two houses of Congress can not settle the difficulty. It is a matter of comparatively minor importance, swollen into fictitious proportions by legislators who have no knowledge upon which to base their extreme views. Only $3,000,000 was involved in the controversy that has killed the District bill. Conferees have repeatedly disposed of twenty times that sum by compromise. A compromise on the District bill was impossible because the House conferees ignored the unwritten rule that compromise should always be sought.

Before it adjourns Congress should provide for an inquiry into the financial relations of the Federal and local governments. The inability of the United States Government to regulate the finances of the District government is a reproach to Congress. A joint committee of senators and representatives should be appointed to ascertain facts upon which Congress can intelligently dispose of this question.

TWO LOCAL REFORMS.

The District Commissioners have adopted two reforms that will promote the public welfare. The first imposes a penalty for using radio devices in such manner as to disturb the peace and good order of a neighborhood. The other provides for the dismissal of police officers found guilty of drunkenness, disobedience, malingering, or untruthfulness.

Life in the city, especially during the summer, has become well-nigh unbearable on account of the multitude of radio noises. Users of loud speakers as a rule are utterly disregardful of the comfort of their neighbors. Windows must be kept open if citizens are to obtain sleep, but radio users also open their windows and pour forth the audible poisons that murder sleep. It is now provided that when radio fans knowingly and wantonly bombard the public ear they may be sent to jail for 364 days in default of a fine of $40.

Discipline in the Police Department has been impossible under the old rules governing the trial board. The esprit de corps which theoretically works against unjust or unduly harsh punishments has too often induced the trial board to condone offenses richly deserving dismissal. An officer convicted of drunkenness is obviously unreliable and a menace to the public security. He should be dismissed automatically. Willful official falsehood, disobedience, and malingering are equally unpardonable. The new rule provides that when the trial board finds an officer guilty of any of these offenses it shall recommend his dismissal. The superintendent of police thereupon approves or disapproves of the recommendation and passes the case along to the Commissioners.

This rule will make it very difficult for an offender to remain on the force. The superintendent may have occasion sometimes to disapprove of the recommendation of dismissal, but he will find it very difficult indeed to maintain that an officer convicted of drunkenness, lying or disobedience is still valuable and necessary.

It may be that convictions will be less frequent, in view of the practically certain penalty of dismissal. But if the trial board should prove recreant to its duty in this respect, another reform can be made that will abolish the board or change its character.

TO ENGLAND VIA ICELAND.

An expedition headed by an explorer and geographer of world-wide fame is about to be organized in England to look for landing fields for airplanes. Those fields will not be sought near great centers of population, but in such remote places as Labrador, Greenland, Iceland, the Faroe Islands and the Shetlands. The purpose of this survey is to make possible an air route between North America and the British Islands over which a plane may fly without the necessity of "hopping" more than 300 miles at a stretch. This can be done now from Alaska along the stretch of the Aleutian Islands to the Siberian coast, thence across Asia and Europe to the shores of the North Sea, and so to the east coast of England. But that route would mean a journey of many thousand miles.

Those who have given consideration to the proposed airway are confident that the Labrador-Greenland-Iceland route is not only feasible but practical. Thus far, however, little is known of the most available terrain for landing purposes, and it is to meet this lack of knowledge that the expedition is planned. The Boston Transcript, in discussing the proposal, calls attention to the fact that Admiral Byrd has demonstrated that the South Pole as well as the North can be reached by airplane, and it suggests: "The time may come when what today appears to be a flight of the imagination will be a reality. In the meantime the news of the proposals serves to make cooling reading in the midst of accounts of sunstrokes and other suffering caused by the June heat wave in Boston." The Transcript is refreshed by the thought of a cry echoing through the airport: "All aboard for Greenland, Iceland and points east!"

IRELAND'S FARM PROGRESS.

Will Ireland become the rival of Central Europe in the production of beet sugar? It is the unexpected that often happens, and it certainly never was expected that the land of spuds, shamrocks and poteen would ever produce a surplus of sugar. Yet a recent survey of the wonderful progress made in that once "most distressful country" since the establishment of the Free State warrants that hope.

The electrification of Irish industries through the harnessing of the power of the River Shannon is well under way, and promises to overcome the country's deficiency in the matter of coal. Pending the industrial development which is expected to follow the great Shannon project, the Free State government is making vigorous efforts to create new Irish industries and, aided by a trade loans guarantee act, more than 100 new enterprises have been started. By far the most extensive of these is a beet sugar factory at Carlow, which was designed and built by experts from Belgium.

The peaty soil of southern Ireland, according to reports from those who have made the experiments, is capable of adding at least 20 per cent to the sugar content of the beet roots, as compared with those grown either in Europe or in the United States. Should this estimate prove to be even half true the success of the sugar industry in Ireland is assured.

But it is not only through the production of sugar that the future of Ireland is "sweetened." Through the wise counsel of the Cosgrave government there has been a marked revival in agricultural industry. Irish dairymen, farmers and stock raisers are rapidly regaining their former place in the markets, lost through careless and worse business methods in the past. The minister of agriculture has succeeded in the upbuilding of those agricultural industries which had suffered from the inexcusable actions of Limerick exporters in employing false labels and trade-marks upon inferior foreign farm and dairy products palmed off as genuine Irish butter, bacon and the like. Within the last four years agricultural exports from Ireland have increased upward of 25 per cent. In every line of agricultural development Ireland is making progress, while the rest of the world seems to be falling behind.

Alice Longworth won $20 on the tariff vote, and yet they said the bill would cost everybody money.

THE SPEED OF LIGHT

From the Christian Science Monitor.

The man who for almost a half century has given the world its most accurate measurements of the speed of light is setting out to perform his famous experiment over again.

Prof. Albert A. Michelson is on his way to a ranch near Santa Ana, Calif., where he intends to measure the velocity of light for the first time in a vacuum pipe. He left Chicago June 16.

This is Prof. Michelson's energetic way of going into retirement. For coincident with his departure on the new enterprise, the University of Chicago made it known that the distinguished head of its physics department had become "professor emeritus."

His present project, to measure light's velocity in a vacuum pipe is a new form of the experiment he began with remarkable success when he was a young graduate of the United States Naval Academy teaching midshipmen. He expects the present experiment to furnish the final information completing the work he began in the seventies, he said in an interview.

The advantage of this method of operating, he explained, is that the distance between stations (used as a course for the light beam's journey) can be more easily and possibly more accurately measured. But he does not look forward to startling new results. The present figure for the speed of light, 186,284 miles a second, which he obtained in his experiment two years ago, is probably the most accurate that can be obtained. He simply wants to make a final check.

His reason for doing this is that there was one measurement in his last experiment that he did not make himself. This was not a measure of time, but of distance, roughly 22 miles between the two mountain peaks he used. He does not doubt the accuracy of this measurement, made for him by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, but he feels he can not call his own work complete until he can take personal responsibility for every step.

"If the anticipated results," he added, "agree with those obtained two years ago, it may be stated that the uncertainty in the speed of light has been reduced from between 60 to 100 miles a second down to one mile."

And why has he worked so long on this particular experiment? It has very little practical value, the physicist admits. It is true that the accurate measurement of the velocity of light promises to make possible the use of light as a yardstick in ascertaining distances on unknown territory. But he holds that a study of this kind is worth while for its own sake, merely as an addition to human knowledge.

NATIONAL PARKS.

A park along the banks of the Potomac from Mount Vernon upstream to the Great Falls has been proposed in Congress, observes the Chicago Tribune. It will save the stately gorge of the Potomac from a pending power development and will give to the people of the United States a comprehensive park and playground around the National Capital. Rock Creek Park will be extended into the new system and Anacostia Park will be included.

In the Middle West the Apostle Islands will be studied by the Department of the Interior with a view to recommending them to Congress as a national park accessible to Chicago and the middle States. Associated with the study of the Apostle Islands should be an investigation of Isle Royale as a national park. Isle Royale lies north of the Apostle Islands in Lake Superior. The moose on Isle Royale are unafraid and gentle. They come by thousands to the lakes to browse on lily roots. The hills there and the valleys are unexplored. Isle Royale as well as the Apostles should be a public park.

National parks have proved to be one of the best of public investments. Money expended now on parks on the Potomac, in Lake Superior, in the Alleghenies and elsewhere east of the Mississippi is well spent.

ABOUT DOGS.

I like the homely yellow dog
That no one wants to steal,
The pup of doubtful parentage
That follows close at heel;
The comfortable cur that romps
With genuine delight
And has no beauty to be lost,
When he is moved to fight.

Oh, you may have your thoroughbred,
Your dog of fancy stock,
I'll take the mongrel pup instead
That roams the city block.
For if he runs when I get home
To wag his tail at me,
We two can be the best of friends
Without a pedigree.

Give me the sturdy, common dog
That's not inclined to roam,
But should it prompted be to stray
Can find his own way home.
Your handsome dog is whimsical,
'Twill often stop to board
With strangers, who await the day
You offer a reward.

I'll take the homely, faithful pup
Devoted to us all,
Who has no wish to run away
Or heed a stranger's call.
And though his legs imperfect are,
His body queer to see,
He'll make up in devotion what
He lacks in pedigree.

If the Injured Are Promised Damages, Every Rogue Will Limp.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

LAWS designed to punish those who injure their fellows afford rascals an easy way to fleece honest men.

When one man injures another, the victim may appeal to the law and collect damages—a just and reasonable provision, and yet one that enables rascals to rob honest men by pretending to be hurt.

When the "white slave" traffic became a national scandal, the law set a trap for men engaged in it—an effective trap, urgently needed, and yet a device easily adjusted to the business of blackmail.

And when the law gave women the right to collect alimony from discarded husbands, it invited every conscience-free Jezebel in the land to make a mockery of marriage and win a life income by her treachery.

Alimony, in many instances, is the fair and righteous payment of a debt.

A mother who rids herself of a faithless husband deserves income enough to support herself and the children.

A wife who can no longer tolerate a brutal man whose faithful partner she has been during the accumulation of a fortune deserves a fair share of the partnership property.

But there is neither justice nor common sense in permitting the childless and uninjured wife of a year to use the law as a club to collect a life pension.

Pension for what?

What has she done to earn a pension?

If she is damaged, let her establish the fact and collect damages in a lump sum.

If she is not damaged—if she regains her freedom unchanged and unhurt—by what queer interpretation of justice is the discarded husband required to feed and clothe her.

Does the fact that she lived at his expense for a year entitle her to his future earnings?

If the possession of her for a year placed him in her debt, is it a debt that only death can finish paying?

True, he vowed to cherish and protect her; but a contract obligates both parties, and he is in common justice free of its obligations when she is set free.

Punish him for brutality; require him to pay for damage done; make him support his children and their mother; take from him a fair share of partnership earnings; but in the name of common decency do not punish him for life because a woman has changed her mind.

True chivalry protects the weak, but it doesn't connive with them to get revenge by enslaving the strong.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE TWENTY-FIVE COW BRIDE.

("In Portuguese West Africa native belles are put in pens and fattened. The plumper they are the more desirable they are held as wives. For a real stout bride a Portuguese West African pays as high as twenty head of cattle. Slim maidens bring as low as five cows."—News Item.)

Parent (as a would-be husband appears)—What can I do for you, my good youth?

Applicant—I come for the hand of one of your daughters.

Parent—You come at the right time. They have been overeating for months. The oldest girl, Minna, put on her fifth chin this morning.

Applicant (eagerly)—What does Minna weigh now?

Parent (proudly)—I put her on the scales but an hour ago. She weighs 339 pounds 14 ounces. After lunch she will go a flat 340.

Applicant (soulfully)—A bride of my dreams! What are you asking for her?

Parent—Twenty-five cows, and she's a bargain.

Applicant (sadly)—I couldn't go that high for a wife.

Parent—She's worth more than that of any man's cattle. But what did you expect to pay?

Applicant—I only have ten cows to my name.

Parent—Marrying Minna is out of the question, then. Maybe you would be interested in Glakia. She's more of the ten-cow type.

Applicant—What's the matter with her?

Parent—She's just the dieting kind; that's all. We can't persuade her to weigh a pound over 170, the little ingrate.

Suitor (dejectedly)—Practically a skeleton.

Parent—Of course, the right man might be able to do a lot with her, but she won't overeat for me. You know . . . one of those salad-eating, sugar-banning women. Even counts her calories.

Suitor (in horror)—Uh! I wouldn't give a pair of goats for her.

Parent—I have another daughter, Bynya, who is a little heavier. She will weigh close to 225 if I keep her on pastry for another month or so.

Suitor (wistfully)—Couldn't we arrange terms on Minna, the 339-pound one?

Parent—What terms do you propose?

Suitor—Let me pay ten cows down and the rest in easy payments.

Parent—How often would you want to make the payments?

Suitor—Ten cows on receipt of the wife, and one cow a month for fifteen months.

Parent—I would have to add a carrying charge under such conditions.

Suitor—What would they amount to, oh, prospective father-in-law?

Parent—Three cows for insurance, six heifers for interest and a couple of lambs to cover financing charges.

Suitor—If I can't get the lambs, would you take a crate of geese?

Parent—I think so. Anything to please a son-in-law. Sign the contract . . . on the dotted line here. . . . Thanks. . . . And when will you take delivery?

Suitor—Send her over next Tuesday.

YEAH?

"And now," concluded King Carol in his address to the populace, "to work!" Well, it's good to know that he remembers the word.

John F. Curry, boss of Tammany Hall, has received an honorary college degree, but it is not believed the cap and gown will replace the brown derby and sack coat as Tammany emblems.

King Carol declares he is anxious to do everything to assure peace. Well, the first thing to do would seem to be to provide for a trap-door in the palace through which Carol can go when the Lord High Chamberlain announces, "A lady to see your royal highness!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Fans Well Pleased With Diplomatic Triumphs of the Old Fox—Much Expected of Great Shires, But Washington Sometimes Gives 'Em Polish.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To those who are not familiar with his early career, it is now being made plain why the overlord of the National Baseball Club has been called the "Old Fox."

In need of a consistent outfield slugger, as well as a first-base star to substitute for Joe Judge, he visits Br'er Bill Killifer and Br'er Donnie Bush and does a slick bit of trading for the talent necessary to make his club's fighting chance for the pennant a probability.

It is truly a bedtime story to make glad the dreams of the Federal City fans.

How the Old Fox managed to convince Br'er Killifer that he couldn't get along without a husky slugger to hit home runs over the stands of his band-box right-field, and that Goose Goslin was that slugger, trading Goslin for Manush and Crowder, is one of those things which Old Fox doesn't often divulge. Prevailing on Br'er Bush to part with the Great Shires for Braxton and Tate may also be classed as a marvelous hypnotic manifestation.

In getting Manush for the outfield the Old Fox increased the offensive consistency of the Johnsonian line-up, as everybody knows. By Shires the infield is rounded out to the queen's taste, and it may be assumed that he will furnish the "color" which, according to the press-box boys, went with Goslin.

In regard to Shires it is well to remember, however, that Washington is not Chicago. If he becomes in fact the Peppery Petrel to replace the Wild Goose of the Potomac, well and good, and the embattled fans will rejoice.

But our atmosphere is such that ballplayers who become acclimated here are as a rule very well behaved, sometimes marrying into the select circle of officialdom; and it is possible that the Shires ego may lose some of its zip in the Griff line-up.

After all, though, the main thing for the present is to win the pennant, and even should his celebrated tobacco cud change to slippery elm, and his Washington manners be marked by a trace of senatorial decorum, at least Judge's understudy is not likely to fall down on his first-base job.

Meanwhile, we hope that Braxton and Tate will deliver to the satisfaction of Br'er Bush, and that Br'er Killifer and his pop-eyed fans will have their wish as the Goose, having got the range, plays tennis with pitchers' offerings in four-baggers aplenty over the right-field bounds of Sportsman Park.

Barking Dogs a Nuisance as Well as Radio.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The new regulation prohibiting unnecessary noise of radio is a good thing. Many persons turn their loud speakers so that the full volume comes out, and is very annoying to other people who are trying to sleep.

Now that the radio question has been settled by a matter of law which will subject violators to as much as a year in jail, something should be done about the infernal barking of dogs at all hours of the day and night. City dogs should be trained not to bark at every person who passes, and if they can not be trained they should be kept in the house. The barking of one of these little beasts often keeps a whole neighborhood awake.

WASHINGTON AND JOCKEY HOLLOW.

Twenty-two months from now, in February, 1932, says the Morristown Jerseyman, the country and, to some extent, the whole world will be celebrating the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, which occurred in Virginia on February 22, 1732. In the City of Washington by that time there will have been built, by public subscription, assisted, probably, by an appropriation by Congress, a great Washington Memorial Hall, which is designed to be large enough to accommodate great conventions, and which will be designed to be one of the most beautiful public buildings in the City of Washington. In Virginia and in Massachusetts and New York the anniversary will be celebrated; plans to that end are going forward already.

For the better part of two years Washington conducted the war for American independence from Morristown, and during two winters his Continental Army was quartered in Jockey Hollow. What more appropriate than that the citizens of Morristown and Morris County should determine now that by the anniversary of 1932 Jockey Hollow will have been turned into a national shrine? There will not be a time in many years when the Congress of the United States will listen with better attention to a suggestion that the Government of the United States take over this plot of ground as a national park, just as it is taking over the battlefield of Saratoga in New York State as a national park. All that is needed now to create at the gateway of Morristown a national park of great and enduring beauty is a display of public spirit on the part of the people of the town and of the county.

BOLIVIAN SOLDIERS ADVANCE ON REBELS

March to Villazon Is Told in Dispatches From City Across Frontier.

UPRISING IS DISCOUNTED

Buenos Aires, June 18 (A.P.).—Dispatches to La Nacion from La Quiaca, across the Bolivian frontier from the town of Villazon, held by insurgent forces of Roberto Hinojosa, today reported that Bolivian troops were marching on Villazon from the railway junction at Uyuni.

Insurgents have posted sentries on hills surrounding Villazon, where they have concentrated a force estimated at about 100 men. Their total strength is supposed to be only a little over 100.

Villazon was quiet today, citizens joining the police in maintaining order.

A delegation from the large town of Tarija reported that the interior of Bolivia was quiet.

La Paz, Bolivia, June 18 (A.P.).—The Bolivian minister of the interior, Col. Toro, declared today that the insurgent movement in southern Bolivia led by Roberto Hinojosa, communist leader, was "without any importance whatsoever."

At the same time he admitted that the communists had advanced from their base at Villazon as far as the village of Moto, several miles inland, but said they had later returned to Villazon. The communists yesterday captured Villazon, a railway station close to the Argentine frontier.

The minister of the interior made light of communist agitation within the country.

At Mojo, Hinojosa's followers seized a railway locomotive and several freight cars and wounded the station master. Col. Toro asserted that eleven of Hinojosa's men had failed to return to Villazon, but did not know whether they had deserted the movement or gone on to spread it.

Hinojosa has been proclaimed provisional president by his followers, who issued a manifesto disavowing the cabinet and also Vice President Abdon Saavedra, at present exiled in Buenos Aires.

The only military measures thus far taken by the government have been orders to a company of soldiers at Uyuni Junction and to the police prefect at the important town of Tarija to withdraw slowly if attacked and thus lure the communists further from their base, until other forces dispatched from La Paz could arrive and cut off their retreat.

Col. Toro stated that despite denials from Saavedra he believed the exiled statesman was acting with Hinojosa.

"There is no doubt," he said, "that the Saavedra brothers are conniving with the present movement and probably supplied Hinojosa with funds."

It was reported that one of Saavedra's followers, Severo Ramirez, had taken control of the railway town of Tupiza. There is no garrison at Tupiza, which is defended only by a handful of policemen.

Treasury officials, who, at the time of the tax reduction, expressed hope that conditions might make it possible to continue the decreased rates, have expressed no opinion as to whether this could be done.

On Monday the Government had collected $3,527,626,535 for the fiscal year since last July 1 but had expended $3,730,182,600, leaving a deficit of $202,556,065 on that day. Receipts were $117,000,000 more than for the same period last year and expenditures $186,000,000 greater.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THIS business of Mr. Dwight Morrow being a presidential candidate in 1932 is more of the fantasy that surrounds the man than either serious or logical consideration.

But the Republicans do intend, or rather, they should make a portable senatorial candidate of him.

They ought to take him around to the various States in which they are up against it this year and enter him. They ought to run him in Massachusetts, in the gubernatorial race in New York, and there are those who say that the sun is not shining so brightly for Little Red Riding Hood out in Illinois.

In short, they ought to mount him on a railroad flat car and move him around to every point of attack like that big railroad gun which many experts say could take the place of army posts.

• • • •

BECAUSE there is no mistaking the fact that the Republicans have a find in Mr. Morrow. They are sorely in need of talent. Mr. Morrow comes to them in good time.

He is unlike them, too. Among them, in fact, he is as a diamond set in iron.

He does not move around stupidly talking about eating all the time. His idea of civilization is not to stuff a man's stomach until he is dull in the head. One gets the impression that Mr. Morrow frequently passes up a meal, while his fellow Republicans are never without their full dinner pail.

• • • •

IN his Republican company he reminds one of the brilliant, dashing little quarterback on a team composed of huskies who accomplish their ends by brute force while he attains his by cleverness and quickness of feet.

One sees him, too, not hanging back timidly in their midst but taking the ball and running with it on the first play, with the team lumbering after him on its heavy feet.

He will probably tire those Republican heavies quickly when he joins them down on the hill. He will have them panting and calling time out before they have come to know what it is all about.

And if he is really as good as he is touted to be, he will place his fellows on reduced rations for awhile so they will be able to think. They are not a bad lot and are not wholly beyond redemption. If Morrow will just remove the sandwich from their mouths they might come around all right.

The man has "political it" and that is something the Republicans, despite their long reign, have never had.

And one gets the impression that he does not care in what State he is running. Whoever considered him a Jerseyite until this campaign came up?

SACKETT CRITICIZES COST IMPOSED ON BUYER OF POWER

to his auditors for their influence to adjust differences between production costs and selling prices for power. He dwelt also upon agitation in the United States concerning Government-owned utilities enterprises.

Advance copies of his speech had been sent to the press several days ago and the attention of Mr. Insull had been called to statements they contained. Mr. Insull had asked him to omit the statements. The embassy had sent out word to hold up the address. Last evening the hold order was countermanded and the release advanced for this morning's newspapers.

Mr. Sackett informed Mr. Insull of his intention to follow the original text and Mr. Insull was reported to have visited the ambassador at his residence to withdraw his objections.

The American Ambassador, in the course of his address, said:

"One of the primary reasons for convening such a conference as this is to discuss and consider constructive criticisms in the field of its interests. As one who shared the responsibilities of early development of power service and has retained an interest in its welfare, I venture a suggestion in the hope of contributing to the betterment of this industry of power supply.

"Until the power business is brought into line with other industries in the relationship of its cost of production to the price paid by the consumer, there can be little justification for thinking that this great power industry is rapidly approaching perfection."

After asserting that "in most great centers, at least in America," consumers paid for household service from fifteen to twenty times the cost of the power, the envoy added that there is an extraordinary margin between cost and sales prices, to the reduction of which science may apply itself with the greatest benefit to the people as a whole.

"Perhaps the premises of this simple statement may be disputed. It may be argued that no such discrepancy exists; it may be excused or explained with the greatest ingenuity."

An audience of 3,000 in the Berlin "Sports Palace" to night was thrilled at the sound of Thomas A. Edison's voice from over the seas. Mr. Edison spoke to the delegates of the world power conference from Orange, N. J.

The delegates to the conference held a great banquet tonight attended by Ambassador Sackett and other members of the diplomatic corps. It was one of the biggest functions ever held in Berlin.

Wireless transmission with the United States was excellent

An attorney and business man of the Blue Grass State, Frederic M. Sackett, had been connected with public utilities for many years. Before his election to the Senate from Kentucky, in 1924, he was president of the Louisville Gas Co. and the Louisville Light Co., and also was active as a director in other public utility companies. He was actively engaged in coal mining.

Mr. Sackett is a native of Rhode Island and a graduate of the Harvard law school. He practiced law in Columbus, Ohio, several years before going to Louisville in 1900.

FEDERAL HANDOUTS DECRIED BY WRITER

Washington Fountain Head of Propaganda, Editors Are Informed.

RESOLUTION IS ADOPTED

Milwaukee, Wis., June 18 (A.P.).—The charge that official Washington is the fountain head of the most widespread propaganda in the entire country, was made by William Daley, Washington representative of the National Editorial Association, in an address before the association's convention.

He declared that "propaganda holds sway from the White House to the most obscure clerk. It is noteworthy that many a suspicious editor who frequently checks 'free publicity' seldom balks at printing 'news' manufactured by Government officials for the purpose of influencing public opinion.

"It is true that much trustworthy information emanates from the Census Bureau, the Treasury Department, and such sources, but the mere stamp of the Federal Government on a bulletin does not establish its news value."

The association adopted a resolution condemning and deploring "governmental encroachment in the field of business as represented by the sale of printed envelopes by and through the postal set-up."

The award of trophies for outstanding newspapers of the Nation was made. J. E. Emmerich, of the McComb (Miss.) Enterprise won the highest honor—the trophy for greatest community service.

Lee A. White, of the Detroit News, told the convention that there is no conflict between the great metropolitan newspaper and the rural weekly.

George B. Dolliver, of the Battle Creek (Mich.) Moon-Journal, today was elected president. Clayton Rand, of the Gulfport (Miss.) Guide, was named to the board of directors.

Two Live After Plane Dives Beneath Water

Pittsburgh, June 18 (A.P.).—An airplane dived into the Ohio River here today, carrying the pilot and a passenger beneath the surface, but both men were rescued. Capt. William Sellers was piloting the ship and Cecil P. Northrup, Washington, Pa., was a passenger.

They clung to the wings and were rescued by men in a motorboat. Northrup complained of severe pains in his side and was taken to a hospital. The ship, an amphibian, was about to make a landing near the Manchester Bridge. It had been stationed on the Ohio River here by the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries.

Two Arkansans Freed On Bond in Bribe Case

Little Rock, Ark., June 18 (A.P.).—Lieut. Gov. Lee Cazort and Ernest Dew, of this city, charged with violating the Arkansas corrupt practices act in an alleged attempt to bribe Judge John C. Sheffield, a gubernatorial candidate, to withdraw from the Democratic primary race, surrendered to authorities here today and were released on bond of $500 each.

They appeared at the office of Sheriff T. A. Cook and announced that they were ready to have warrants sent here from Helena, Ark., served on them.

2,000,000 IN COUNTRY

(Associated Press.)

The belief that it would be possible for Communists to overthrow the American Government during a war or a depression period was expressed yesterday before the special House committee investigating Communists by H. Ralph Burton, general counsel of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The witness said, however, he believed the "people would wake up," and added that Communists would not be able to maintain control.

Mr. Burton and Walter S. Steel, of Washington, general manager of the magazine National Republic, were witnesses during opening hearings. The committee heard a Commerce Department expert discuss importations of anthracite coal from Russia in a closed session.

Mr. Steele said there were more than 2,000,000 Communists in this country. He explained his organization had conducted a five-year investigation into activities of Communists in America.

TINKHAM RIDICULES CANNON CHALLENGE

Does Not Accept Dares of Discredited Persons, He Declares.

SENATE REPORT READY

(Associated Press.)

A chuckle and the remark that he did "not accept challenges from discredited persons" was the reply of Representative Tinkham yesterday to the dare of Bishop James Cannon, jr., that he lay aside his cloak of congressional immunity.

The Massachusetts Republican would not go beyond this assertion to newspapermen. His speech before the House Tuesday in which he voiced a scathing attack of the Southern Methodist bishop brought from Cannon in Louisville a demand that he lay aside his immunity from prosecution for libel by giving the statements to the press over his personal signature.

The bishop said the attack from the House floor "brands him as a blustering, cowardly congressman."

Meanwhile, a report from the Senate lobby committee recounting the story of the testimony by and concerning Cannon before that group is ready to be presented to the Senate when Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, can gain the floor. Although the report relates the incidents surrounding the refusal of the bishop to answer questions concerning the disposition of $48,300 in the anti-Smith campaign of 1928, it is understood to make no recommendations.

Mr. Tinkham caused the appearance of Bishop Cannon before the group by going before the committee and charging that the bishop had violated the corrupt practices act by failing to report the disposition of the fund.

$170,524 Shipment Of Liquor Seized

Two Box Car Loads Found Covered by Moss in Florida Raid.

Ocala, Fla., June 18 (A.P.).—Two railroad box car loads of liquor, hidden behind bales of moss and valued by officers at $170,524 at wholesale bootleg prices, were seized and destroyed by Federal prohibition agents here today.

The liquor was shipped from Moss, a small station on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. One car was consigned to New London, Wis., and the other to Cleveland, Ohio.

United States Commissioner Caruso said that the two cars seized were half of a four-car shipment, two cars of which slipped past the officers.

One hundred bales of moss were used to conceal the shipments of liquor seized.

Means on Way to Plan World Hop.

Detroit, June 17 (A.P.).—John Henry Mears, who formerly held the around-the-world speed record, and his pilot, Fred Melchior, took off from the Grosse Isle Airport for New York today to complete plans for their third trip. Mears will attempt to better the record set last fall by the Graf Zeppelin.

Fete on Boat Planned for Young Couple

Miss Whitside and Lieut. Samouce Will Be DeWitt Guests.

By JEAN ELIOT.

MAJ. GEN. AND MRS. JOHN L. DEWITT will entertain on Sunday evening for a party of young people, who have been asked to meet Miss Lillian Whitside, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Warren Whitside, whose marriage to Lieut. Wellington Alexander Samouce will take place on June 28. They have "commandeered" for the occasion the Army boat which runs from Washington to Fort Washington. Starting early in the afternoon they will take their guests for a cruise down the Potomac and supper will be served aboard.

Those fortunate enough to be invited to this pleasant fete are looking forward with enthusiasm to a revival of a form of entertaining which once enjoyed a considerable vogue. Through all the years that the Mayflower was used as the President's yacht, officers attached to the craft occasionally gave parties aboard, taking their guests for a short cruise, stopping in some pleasant little cove for a swim and serving a buffet supper on the return journey to Washington. And happy memories linger of Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh's famous river parties.

On several occasions this gracious hostess chartered a river steamer for the evening and entertained large groups of her friends. The start would be made at sundown, with a picnic supper served on deck and on the return voyage there would be dancing under the light of a full moon.

In the Coolidge administration the President and Mrs. Coolidge occasionally entertained large groups on the Mayflower and in the spring and autumn there were few week-ends that they did not have guests aboard the yacht over the week-end, cruising as far as Quantico to return on Sunday evening and anchor off Hains Point so that the President might be early at his desk on Monday morning.

This summer there have been few big river parties. But a good many Washingtonians enjoyed brief cruises on Col. Robert M. Thompson's houseboat, The Everglades, with his daughter, Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell, as hostess. Senator and Mrs. Jesse Metcalf, who have been living aboard their yacht, the Felicia, occasionally entertain guests. And Col. Stephen L'H. Slocum has been taking cruises aboard the Luneta with a few friends for company. Moreover, Mr. and Mrs. McElroy Moss give frequent parties on their smart little cabin cruiser, the Benita.

Several other parties are planned for Miss Whitside—to go back a bit—and last evening she and Lieut. Samouce were guests of honor at a dinner given by Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frank B. Cheatham for their daughter, Miss Virginia Cheatham. There were fourteen at the dinner, which was held at the Chevy Chase Club.

Danseuse Is Wed To Gatti-Casazza

Metropolitan Opera Head and Bride Sail After Jersey Wedding.

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Guilio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was married today to Miss Rosina Galli, premiere danseuse at the Metropolitan. The ceremony was performed at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Jersey City, N. J., this morning by Mgr. John A. Duffy, an announcement here said. They sailed this afternoon for Cannes on the steamship Vulcania.

Signor Gatti-Casazza has been general director of the Metropolitan Opera Company since 1908. He is widely known in operatic circles for his support and introduction of new composers and singers, and the business-like methods which he adopted in the management of opera.

His first wife was Mme. Frances Alda, a soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, whom he married in 1910. Fifteen years later there were rumors of discord and, in 1928, Mme. Alda announced that she had filed suit for divorce in Notals, Mexico. Shortly afterward the marriage was dissolved.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

It has been a long time, as such things go in the filium business, since any one has heard directly of William Fox, whom Harley L. Clarke deposed as president of the company bearing the name of the pioneer picture man. For seven weeks, I am given to believe, Mr. Fox has been hibernating in Atlantic City, combining a lot of pleasure with what one close associate describes as "considerable business." Now he is back in New York and folks are beginning to wonder.

Fox is said to have several irons in the fire, some closely relating to the motion picture industry, others in no way connected with that fluid racket. It is intimated that if one of them goes through, as anticipated, the industry will receive one of the surprises of its life.

One thing appears to be a certainty, and that is that the advisory board of the Fox Films Corporation, of which William Fox was supposed to be chairman, at some such nominal salary as $500,000 per year, never will materialize or hold a meeting. That seems to have been a genial fiction designed to make Mr. Fox's exit from the enterprises he had founded as graceful as might be.

Now the conjecturing is all about whether Mr. Clarke was crafty enough to make it a sure thing that Mr. Fox could not return to the battleground with a new company bearing the same name as the one he was forced to relinquish, or whether the Fox aggressive was so dented as to render him impotent opposition, even if he had some such plan in mind.

It is almost inconceivable that William Fox should be through—or that Harley Clark should deem him otherwise.

It all still makes very excellent watching!

There is another controversy that will stand a little peeping at, too, and that is the battle between Paramount-Publix and the Warner Brothers, put under way by a few caustic remarks at the spring sales conventions of the respective companies, as previously referred to briefly in this column.

The Warners have taken the bit in their teeth, apparently, and have gone in for theater acquisition in a large and expensive way in the Chicago territory, where Balaban & Katz—otherwise Publix—are supposed to be dominant by virtue of the expenditure of a vast amount of the Zukor bankroll, which is still left plenty vast. Wisconsin, Kentucky and Tennessee are also among the States in which the Warners are effectively strengthening their lines with an obvious view of making it a fight.

All of which does not alter the fact that Dick Leibert returns to the console of the Palace Theater concert organ day after tomorrow, to inaugurate an engagement that has already been numerously announced and frequently postponed. Dick has been ill, has sprained all, or a part of, his ankles, and been otherwise incapacitated since his many local friends were first thrilled by the rumor that he was coming back to the scene of his early triumphs in the remote days when organiogues were, as some clever word juggler has put it, in their infancy.

There will be some keen competition across the street at that. You, of course, remember that beginning tomorrow Amida, the Mexican electric spark, in company with Gus Edwards and others, will occupy the stage of the Earle Theater as the new week's special added attraction.

Speaking of the new week, the complete line-up, as it came to this desk on a sultry Wednesday afternoon, is as follows: Fox, Will Rogers, Irene Rich and Frank Albertson in "So This Is London;" RKO-Keith's, Eleanor Boardman, Jean Hersholt and Ralph Forbes in "Mamba;" Columbia, Richard E. Byrd in "With Byrd at the South Pole;" Earle, Reginald Denny in "What a Man;" Palace, Marion Davies and Lawrence Grey in "The Florodora Girl;" Metropolitan, Jack Oakie and Mary Brian in "The Social Lion."

By the way, since this seems to be a day given over largely to the concerns of the big concerns, if you know what I mean, that Richard A. Rowland threat to oust Joseph P. Kennedy and grab, himself, the leadership of the Pathe Co., proved to be as nearly complete a dud as any recent stockholders' meeting has divulged. Mr. Rowland and his cohorts didn't even get close.

There is a deal of rumbling rumbling around that the local Warner Brothers theaters are to establish, or possibly already have established, a personnel department, to see that the boys' buttons are all sewed on, hair combed, and everything. It is, I understand, or will be, under the punctilious direction of Mr. Guy Wonders, formerly of the Rivoli Theater in Baltimore.

So New Jersey, in the matter of its senatorial primaries, decided to adopt the well known motto of that dear, old, sunny Spain, manana—meaning to Morrow!

A Member of the Family

Southern Dairies is a worthy member of that great family of Southern industries whose common welfare is the aim of all. Being far the most active worker in the dairy industry in the Southeastern states, it is daily adding to the progress of what is destined to become the greatest single industry of the South.

It is an important member, also of the local business family in every city where it maintains an extensive plant, and in every town where its products are supplied, because it is working daily for the financial advantage and the health of the whole family.

There has been a large investment of capital to establish this great work, running into millions. A very moderate interest return is demanded on this investment—less than would be necessary were the investments smaller and scattered.

Other millions are spent annually, distributed through this wide territory for milk and cream, in payrolls and deliveries; and Southern Dairies organization is busy the year round, through its sales force and advertising, securing the widest possible market for these products, to insure steady demand.

Southern Dairies is not only a worthy member of the family—it is an extremely active and healthy member of the family.

INDIAN AUTHORITIES HUNT TAX-DODGERS

Movable Property Attached as Rains Bring Halt to Salt Raids.

PARADE HELD IN BOMBAY

Bombay, India, June 18 (A.P.).—With the coming of the rainy season, halting attacks of the Indian nationalists against the government salt works, the authorities today strengthened their fight against the nonpayment of taxes—which has succeeded the salt raids—in two widely separated areas.

In the Gujerat, where civil disobedience has been widespread since Mahatma Gandhi opened his campaign there March 12, the government has begun attaching movable property of those who refuse to pay land taxes. The evaders lock their doors and flee when tax collectors appear, so attachment was resorted to.

To the northeast, in the Punjab, police today arrested seventeen tax evaders in a village 20 miles from Delhi.

The nationalists in Bombay continued processions and demonstrations today. When Pandit Motilal Nehru, acting president of the all-India National Congress, reached here today, he led a parade of Nationalists from the Indian quarter to the Congress house.

When the procession ended the Pandit addressed a mass meeting and emphasized the need for intensifying the boycott program. He congratulated Bombay and the Gujeret District on the lead they had given to the civil disobedience movement.

Referring to suggestions that the campaign be called off as a preliminary to peace negotiations, he declared that any negotiations must always precede suspension of the movement.

V. J. Patel, former speaker of the Legislative Assembly, appealed to the students to give up their studies for twelve months and devote themselves to congress work.

A report from Peshawar said troops this morning occupied the town of Tangi and advanced to within 5 miles of a hostile Utman Khel force.

The Utman Khels are among the many aggressive tribesmen who have hidden in caves in the Peshawar area for many weeks. The government asserts it has bombed some of them out from the air, notably the force of the Haji of Turangzai.

Stage Fright Wins Man Court's Pity

Judge Accepts Personal Bond After Display of Voice Fails.

Thomas F. Hardy, 51 years old, of K street southeast near Ninth street, suffered stage fright in Police Court yesterday and as a result Judge Gus A. Schuldt took his personal bond. Hardy was charged with crying his wares on the street.

Policeman C. L. Hayden, who appeared against Hardy as complaining witness, declared the defendant was screaming "blackberries" at the "top of his voice."

Judge Schuldt ruled that the expression "top of his voice" was not descriptive enough and asked Hardy to demonstrate his vocal abilities. Hardy took a deep breath and threw back his head as though prepared to emit a deluge of sound. His best effort, however, was a husky whisper, which Judge Schuldt said he couldn't hear himself.

Son of G. U. Professor Wins Scholastic Honor

Daniel W. O'Donoghue, jr., son of D. W. O'Donoghue, former president of the District Bar Association and for more than 20 years on the faculty of the Georgetown Law School, was among the honor graduates last week at the University of Southern California. He received a degree of master of laws, magna cum laude, having made above 95 per cent average in his course during the year.

Young O'Donoghue was graduated from Georgetown College and also the law school. At the recent commencement at California, O'Donoghue, jr., was one of the few graduates who was called upon to rise as the degree was conferred on him, in recognition of his high scholastic standing.

FOUR JUNIOR HIGHS HOLD GRADUATIONS

484 Pupils Get Diplomas of Jefferson, Powell, Gordon and Stuart.

CITY RITES COMPLETED

Junior high school graduations were brought to a close yesterday in the white division, four schools holding exercises, the Jefferson, Powell, Gordon and Stuart Junior High Schools. A total of 484 pupils received diplomas, paving the way for entrance into high schools.

Ninety graduates at the Jefferson Junior High were presented with diplomas by Robert L. Haycock, second assistant superintendent of schools. Miss Mary Stewart, assistant director of Indian education, in the Interior Department, made the address to the graduates. The class was presented with a painting by the class president, Evelyn Stokes.

The exercises at Powell were presided over by Miss Rose Lee Hardy, assistant superintendent of schools. Norment Curtis, one of the graduates, welcomed the audience, and the valedictory was given by Ownita Harrah. Diplomas were given 105 boys and girls.

The Rev. George Farnham addressed the 187 graduates at the Gordon Junior High School, and Randolph Leigh presented the diplomas. Bard Rousseau, son of Admiral Rousseau, presented a gift to the school.

Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education, presided at the Stuart exercises and also presented the diplomas to 102 graduates. John Nuthall, the class president, gave the address of welcome, and Leona Harris offered the valedictory.

The names of all the graduates were printed in The Sunday Post.

Hoover to Speak On Buchanan Day

Memorial Will Be Unveiled in Meridian Hill Park Next Thursday.

An address by President Hoover will feature the unveiling of a monument to President James Buchanan in Meridian Hill Park next Thursday. The Rev. Godfrey Chobot, pastor of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, will deliver the invocation, and Bishop William F. McDowell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will pronounce the benediction.

Music will be supplied by the United States Marine Band and the Newsie Cadet Band, of Lancaster, Pa., President Buchanan's native city. The Lancaster band will also serenade President Hoover at the White House later in the day.

Congress set aside the site of the memorial to Buchanan under the act of June 27, 1918. The unveiling of the tablet was delayed for some time pending further improvement of Meridian Hill Park. The monument is the work of Hans Schuyler, sculptor, and William Gordon Beecher, architect.

Italian Rotarians Give Flag to Capital Club

An Italian flag, hand embroidered and ornamented, was presented to the Washington Rotary Club at a luncheon meeting in the Willard Hotel yesterday by Dr. Francesco Lasagna, of Parma, Italy, who made the presentation on behalf of Rotarians of his city. The Italian Ambassador, Nobile Giacomo de Martina, accompanied Dr. Lasagna.

In giving the flag to the club, Dr. Lasagna expressed the hope that it would serve as a constant reminder of the friendly feelings existing between Rotarians of the United States and Italy. President Arthur May, who presided at the luncheon, presented Dr. Lasagna with a copy of Thomas Moore's book, "Washington, Past and Present."

fountains OF refreshment ARE JUST AROUND THE CORNER

You get energy in a most refreshing form at your soda fountain

OF ALL American institutions, none is more popular than the soda fountain. The sprightly cold drinks, the stimulating hot beverages, the ices, parfaits, sundaes and candies served there, not only bring refreshment, but their sugar content supplies the system with quick energy and nourishment without taxing the digestive system.

A famous athletic trainer always permits his men to eat all the ice cream they want. A well-known physician in Philadelphia often advises business men who are his patients to drop in at a soda fountain in the late afternoon and drink a flavored milk shake. Fatigue and nervousness are overcome and dinner is eaten later with calm enjoyment.

Such indorsement of sugar should not be overlooked. Too often home diets are lacking in this important food. The use of sugar may help in overcoming loss of appetite and in promoting indirectly a more balanced and varied diet.

For example, try a dash of sugar in cooking vegetables. It will heighten their flavor and cause them to be eaten with more relish. A dash of sugar also improves the taste of meats. The sugar blending with the salt and meat juices creates a flavor that can't be described. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

THE GIRL IN THE AIR

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS—Janet Decker: Eighteen, with closely cropped head of burnt gold and a pair of very large and very quizzical eyes. She is a stenographer clerk in the Peerless Employment Bureau.

Fred Turner: An automobile mechanic, sadly soft on Janet.

Henry Frenda: A clerk in the office of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co. at Mount Tobe, and Fred's chief rival.

Bernice Terrell: Employed at Cooney's Laundry, and Janet's best friend.

Hugh Temple: An official and pilot of the Great Eastern.

Dick Tolbert: Son of Richard C. Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern.

Janet is fired from the Peerless Employment Bureau for kissing Fred Turner in the office. She goes after a job as flying stenographer to Tolbert and is hired by Temple. To get clothes, she borrows $100 from Henry Frenda, who gives her a book on aviation, and tells her about a mysterious wealthy lumberman who is boarding at his mother's house near the airport. Mrs. Decker agrees to Janet's taking the job at the last minute, and Dick Tolbert comes for her. They find Temple getting his amphibian biplane "Susie" ready for a flight when they arrive at the airport.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

And as the plane plunged downward she crushed her lips to his.

CHAPTER FIVE

Temple came down from his ladder as Tolbert and Janet approached and curtsied comically. "Susie and I extend you a most cordial welcome," he said to Janet. "Susie had her neck washed for the occasion."

"Susie?" said Janet, puzzled.

"His pet name for that crate you're going to fly in," Dick Tolbert explained.

"Call it a crate, if you want," said Temple; "She's the sweetest boat on the field. I'm going to tune her up pretty soon. Did you give Miss Decker the key to the airport, Dick?"

"I told her she could have the darned old airport, if she wanted it," Dick laughed.

Janet said: "Mr. Tolbert—I mean, Dick—and I just agreed to stick to first names. Wont you call me Janet, too? I despise 'Miss Decker.'"

"On the natural condition that you know me as 'Hugh'," said Temple. "It's a rotten name, but it's the best I can offer. Seems to me, however, you and Dick made a good deal of progress in your short ride; getting around to first names as soon as this. I told you you'd have to look out for this fellow."

"It was an interesting ride," Janet replied, wondering what Dick must be thinking of her. Why had she talked so much? She had practically told him that she had come on this new job with a line out for the boss' son. She didn't mean that, of course. She had simply tried to defend her theory that a working girl could rise out of the rut. If he hated her and avoided her from now on, she had no one to blame but herself.

Dick was saying: "I suppose we ought to take Janet in and introduce father, hadn't we?"

"He's not here yet, Dick. Probably come rolling in any minute. What time did he get in from Canada?"

"Just before dinner. I had wired him at Boston about the—the trouble down the line, and he was all excited. In his way, of course. Kept the telephone wires hot almost an hour."

"He called me about seven," Hugh said, "and I called . . . Janet . . . shortly after. Any notion what he's got up his sleeve?"

"Not the vaguest. But we're forgetting Janet. Shall we go in and show her the innards of the administration building?"

"Why not?" Hugh agreed. "She has a desk in there, though I doubt if she'll see it very often."

The administration building consisted of a large center section—one extremely commodious room in which any number of men and women were busy over desks and tables—and two wings. As they entered, a girl at the switchboard on their right stood up and motioned to Temple.

"Mr. Tolbert's on the wire," she said, in a subdued voice. "Shall I put the call on your phone?"

Temple excused himself, crossed the big room and disappeared through a door on the left.

A young man, flashily dressed, and wearing a fixed smile, came up and spoke to Dick. "Herrick just called from Albany," he told him, affecting an unnecessarily grave mien. "Said his oil pump wasn't working and he'd probably be held up for an hour."

Dick said: "Why didn't he discover that two hours ago? I suppose he's letting his passengers sit out in the cold while he makes repairs?"

"Not a doubt of it, Mr. Tolbert. I wonder some of these pilots don't use a little common sense once in a while."

The sauve creature went back to his desk. Dick said, barely above a whisper: "Name's Butler. Office manager and terribly important."

Janet nodded her agreement. The man had gotten on her nerves with his ingratiating manner.

Dick led the way across the room and waited for her to pass through the door on the right. Inside there was a small but comfortable office in which a young woman was feverishly typing.

Dick introduced them. "Miss Sears Miss Decker." To Janet he said: "Miss Sears is my secretary and occupies this desk by my door. As flying secretary to father"—that marvelous smile again—"You'll occupy the desk there. Think you'll like it?"

Janet was sure that she would, but at the moment she was looking at Miss Sears who, after a hasty bow, had resumed her work. She was not unattractive, rather tall for a woman and well proportioned. But her blonde hair looked as if it had changed shades of late, and her gray eyes in the instant that Janet had seen them, were small and sharp. Janet wondered if they would be congenial in this small inclosure.

"Come on in," said Dick, "and I'll show you a real office." He opened the door by Miss Sears' desk and followed Janet in. "Not so bad, is it?"

"Hmm!" Janet mused. "Who selected the pictures?"

Dick stepped back and closed the door easily. "I'm afraid she heard you," he told her. "Miss Sears insisted that the room was positively bare without pictures. Could they be worse?"

"Anything's possible," Janet sighed. "What you need on the walls is a couple of maps and maybe a picture or two of your prettiest airplanes. But not those things."

"If she ever goes on a vacation," Dick said, "I'll have you put things in order. She doesn't care for me particularly as it is; but she's really very competent. She handled father's work as well as mine until he got it into his head to drag a secretary all over the country with him. Miss Sears knows her business, but she draws the line at flying."

"What's your title, Dick?" Janet asked suddenly.

"Traffic manager, and it's not all title."

"And what is Hugh?"

"Executive officer. He's the big cheese next to father. But I stay home and do all the work while they go flying around looking for excitement. It isn't fair."

"Hmm. Aren't you both very young to hold such responsible positions?"

"It's a young man's game, Janet. The Great Eastern is not yet two years old, and Temple and I came into it just a year ago last June. He'd had aeronautical engineering and field management at M. I. T., and he's a genius anyway. He had the jump on me. I came from Harvard with an A. B., and a lot of ambition. Temple shot up because they couldn't keep him down. I got this job because I'm—shall I say it?—because I'm the boss' son."

Janet's eyes expressed her admiration. "You're a peach to put it that way, anyhow," she told him with feeling. "But I don't believe the last."

"It's true, nevertheless. We've both worked like devils since we came, and I've been able to hold my end up so far. But Hugh is the backbone of the whole works. Incidentally,"—he dropped his voice,—"Miss Sears is mad about him."

"Mad about who?"

"Temple. She thinks he's perfection itself."

Some one knocked on the door and Temple came in, frowning.

"Mr. Tolbert's held up," he said quickly. "Thinks he'll get out about five-thirty." he looked meaningly at Dick. "He's waiting for a package."

Immediately Janet sensed a hidden meaning in the word. 'Package', she gathered, meant something more to Dick than to her. She remembered Temple's words as they sat in Mrs. Terrell's living room: "The Great Eastern transports more cold cash than any other air transportation outfit in the country. . . . And sometimes there's trouble."

There had been trouble during the past twenty-four hours. Were they preparing for more of it?

"Isn't there something I can be doing until Mr. Tolbert comes?" Janet asked, as they strolled out to the field once more. "This thing of walking around like I owned the place is pleasant enough but it's not in my line."

"Miss Sears has been handling everything inside since father went on his vacation," Dick told her, "so there isn't much for you to worry about. You understand there's a certain amount of the work that she'll have to care for, anyway. You won't be here to do it."

Hugh said: "And what's more, you're entitled to a little time to get used to the setting. You've never been up, have you, Janet?"

"Not in an airplane, and elevators don't count, do they? I'm in a fever to get off the ground, though."

Hugh and Dick smiled at each other. "Well?" said Dick.

"Well?" Hugh repeated.

"What's the joke?" Janet was puzzled and inclined to be a little irritated, not knowing whether they were both trying to escape the task of taking her up, or politely contesting for the honor.

"The joke," Hugh explained, "is simply that there isn't a one-place ship on the field that will carry three in its cockpit, and there's really no fun taking your first hop in a cabin job."

"Meaning," Dick contributed, "that one of the two handsome Romeos now standing before you must forego the pleasure of giving you your initial flight. Which shall it be?"

"If I can't ride with both of you at the same time," Janet declared "I'll go back to the employment bureau. Besides, I think you're both trying to dodge the job."

"At the risk of being misunderstood, Dick," Hugh said quickly, "I'll settle the question by having the Postman run out and warmed up."

"For whom?"

"For you and Janet. There's plenty I can be doing while you're up. Take her over Waterbury and let her see how the old town looks from on top."

Dick protested feebly, but made no attempt to stop Hugh as he started off toward the hangars. "He always makes a piker of me, Janet. It's the first time in a good many months that I've seen him really anxious to take one of your sex up. But he's too good a sport to crowd me out."

"Yours is the first real friendship between men I've ever seen," Janet said softly. "Usually they're so darned hard-boiled toward each other."

The Postman, according to Janet, was a precious toy. It was a small monoplane with a silver nose, and silver wings. The fuselage was painted a battleship gray. Low and sturdy, and compact, it purred at the starting life like some stealthy beast of prey. The cockpit had been built to accommodate one comfortably, but it was provided against the possibility that the one was of generous proportions, and Janet, with Hugh's expert assistance, squeezed into the space not occupied by Dick.

Hugh saw that her belt was fastened, her goggles adjusted to her eyes, and her helmet securely buckled under her chin.

"O. K., Dick?" he yelled in competition with the increasing noise of the engine.

Dick raised a hand, made a hurried survey of the field and sky above it, and gave the signal for the chocks to be pulled out. A mechanic ran out on either side pulling a chock rope with him; Hugh trotted backward a dozen steps to avoid the dust; the hum of the engine became a deafening roar.

It was such a sensation as Janet had never before experienced. One moment they were shooting over the ground; the next, the little plane had turned its nose heavenward, climbing with the ease and grace of a bird.

Janet's hands clutched the cowl until her nails were white. Dick suddenly pulled them into her lap.

When she looked up at him, a little humiliated that she had betrayed her nerves, he was shaking his head and smiling. Magical smile! She felt strangely secure from that moment. This big boy knew what he was about and there was nothing of which she need be afraid while he sat beside her.

It was glorious, once that first fright had passed, the heavens were a gorgeous blue, except for little patches of cloud along the horizon.

Higher and higher they rose, until the airport was a doll's village and Susie, Temple's only love, was a beetle, still and white before the miniature hangars.

Conversation was practically impossible and after one attempt Janet gave it up. Woods, fields, little groups of houses slipped by far below. Janet observed that from this altitude the sharp edges and irregularities of the earth were lost. The Naugatuck River lay like a silver ribbon down the valley; the highway that ran by it was a narrow black line winding gracefully through the rounded hills. There was in everything a symmetrical design.

More woods, more fields, more villages—and then Dick was pointing straight ahead. He put his mouth to her ear and yelled "recognie anything?"

It was the thrill of a lifetime. There, towering up to meet them, was the station tower, the west face of its great clock plainly visible. As they drew nearer she recognized the Bronson library and, to the left of it, the city hall in all its marble glory.

Waterbury! She thought she had never really seen it before. Parts of it she had seen, to be sure, but never the whole, nestling between its hills like some mining village. How far away they must be for it to seem so small.

The Postman executed a great circle; and then the noise grew less deafening, and they were gliding downward.

She studied the pattern below and finally made out the Green.

At barely more than 1,500 feet the plane leveled. Directly below was Exchange Place. Then the Green. And, with a sense of nausea, she recognized the little building on West Main street in which was the employment bureau.

If only Miss Miller could step out now and see how her protege had fared in the few hours since she had left the employment office. She suddenly felt sorry for Miss Miller, for all those girls who, like herself, aspired to get out and above their colorless, workaday life. She wondered if she had really left it herself. What a tragedy if she should suddenly open her eyes and find she had dreamed it all.

Some time later she came out of a daze of confused thoughts to find Dick's arm slipping easily about her shoulders.

"Mind?" he cried casually. But she was afraid to face that smile she knew was there.

Mind? Why should she mind? Wasn't he the boss' son? Wasn't he splendid; independent of everything else? It was thrilling just to be so close to him, to feel his sturdy young body resting snugly against her own.

She shook her head, indifferently she hoped—and immediately felt his hand close gently on her arm.

The roar of the engine was a dull drone in her ears now. The wind came back over the little, transparent shield in a gale.

She made as if to snuggle closer to him, a physical impossibility, and dropped her head against his shoulder. When she looked up and saw his lips move, she heard no sound but knew he had spoken her name. His eyes were darkly tense, pleading . . .

As casually as though he were releasing the helm of a drifting boat, he took his hand from the control stick, shut off the engine, and caught her in his arms. For one brief instant she leaned far back, struggling against the inevitable. And then, as the nose of the Postman dropped and the little plane shot madly earthward, she closed her eyes and crushed her lips to his.

Ye, gods! And the plane's falling! Tomorrow there's enough action to fill a book!

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

BROADCASTING is to be done on a so much larger scale in the future that when we look back upon what we are doing now it will seem crude and primitive. Where today a soloist or two, or a small company of entertainers, gather in a studio, John D. Rockefeller, jr., at a cost of $250,000,000, proposes to erect in New York four immense theaters, and maybe a great symphony hall, intended for Stokowski, now conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, primarily for the purpose of assembling large opera companies and orchestras for broadcasting purposes.

This project, which has even New York blinking, provides for the attendance of audiences to witness these performances, but with the coming in of television five to ten years hence it is not difficult to foresee the time when the Rockefeller development will itself be out of date and it will be old-fashioned to attend any kind of a theater.

Folks will be able to sit a home, whether it be in Boston or Albuquerque, N. Mex., and see and hear everything.

A problem of the future will be to make the people spend more money than the price of a radio or television set to avail themselves of these performances. This may be solved through sound and sight entertainment being distributed by means of wires, instead of broadcast through the air. It might then be metered out at so much an hour through an attachment to the telephone or the electric light socket.

DIRECTLY after they arrived from a successful tour of Europe the choir of Negro singers of Hampton Institute, Virginia, hurried to the studios to resume their broadcasting.

In Europe the choir sang in Westminster Abbey and in the concert halls of the principal cities of the continent. While in Amsterdam they sang for the Queen of Holland.

The outlook for Washingtonians who could not secure tickets to the presentation of the National Geographic Society's medal to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, by President Hoover, tomorrow night, is not as bad as it might be, because the ceremonies will be broadcast (WRC, 8:30).

IF Representative Wallace White, of Maine, who has just won the senatorial nomination, wins in the fall elections, the Republican senators will acquire a first-class radio adviser.

Up to now they have had to depend upon Democrats for their expert radio advice.

Representative White is the co-author of the radio act, is the chairman of the House committee which handles radio, worked very closely with Mr. Hoover in radio when the latter was Secretary of Commerce.

Revealing the makings of a warm fight in the radio industry was the retort of Morris Metcalf, president of the Radio Manufacturers Association, that the Grigsby-Grunow Co. of Chicago, had been "requested" to resign and for quite another reason than that given by B. J. Grigsby.

Mr. Grigsby had been quoted as saying that his organization had resigned from the R. M. A. because the Radio Corporation dominated it.

A reader residing on F street northwest reports bad code interference with Station WBAL during daytime broadcasting hours. The radio division of the Department of Commerce suggests that amateurs in that neighborhood listen in on the Baltimore station the afternoons it is on the air, in an effort to identify the call letters used in the code transmission. There should be no code in that wave band.

THE Radio Commission's proposal to allow about twenty 50,000-watt stations to spring up where only nine blossomed before will be bad news for "Old Man Summer Static."

Kelvin Keech, announcer, hopes to visit his native Honolulu this summer. Keech learned the ukulele there, despite the story that the instrument isn't played in Hawaii.

In the MODE

Unusually chic street frock of beige crepe, with leaf-rib tucking and graceful cape: (Courtesy of, Drecoll-Beer, Paris.)

Paris, June 14.

THE much lower front decolletage is certainly in. In fact, it seems to me that with the back decolletage a bit higher and in the front a little lower, the question of how far up or down one can go has more or less balanced itself.

The shoulder strap decolletage is of course pretty formal, and only makes its appearance for formal gowns, very formal gowns—or on women with very pretty necks and shoulders. But square decolletages seem to be very popular, quite low in the front and quite wide on the shoulders.

One of the new decolletages that is quite low at either side-back, but with a strip of material right up the middle of the back is very flattering to a back that is inclined to be even a bit round-shouldered. Of course this type of decolletage has to fit very well, else it is ugly when the wearer moves.

Just simple lines, a bit of stitching here and there for trimming, and unusually beautiful and carefully chosen colors constitute Dre-coll-Beer smartness. The frock I have illustrated for you today, for instance, was beige—but what a lovely golden beige it was! And stitched in the front for trimming, then finished with a detachable cape which wasn't just any old cape, you understand, but one that had a definite reason and a definite set and a definite fit. How would you feel sitting in this outfit at one of the sidewalk cafes on the Champs Elysees one of these early summer days?

Lingerie certainly has to be compact these days—imagine if you can, making a smart and really comfortable bloom out of one square yard of material! And not for a small person either. And then better than that, those comfy and practical little lingerie shorts that are so-o-o-o nice for summer wear, out of a half yard of material! I tell you how to make both of them in one leaflet, so better get busy with that stamped, self-addressed envelope that you are going to send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, oh right away.

And what with Alana and a handsome doctor dropping in on me at this moment, I feel less leaflet-like every minute—'n you'd better tell me what you think you'd like to have me write a leaflet about pretty soon.

No fooling now, we're running dry again and always appreciate suggestions from our deah publik.

• • • •

The love of woman for fine lingerie and the art of delicacy of fine lingerie for women ever and anon comes to mind. The one without the other is a sad and sorry state, and the refinement of both is graciousness.

• • • •

If you could only "try on" the sketch of the beige grosgrain hat I've illustrated you'd see what I mean, if I know what I mean! I mean that all hats of the most famous modistes don't look like a million dollars on the head. Rose Descat has this idea bottled up and labeled!

The weekly Dare fashion letter, in each Sunday's Washington Post, has ideas and suggestions, well worth while. We hope you're looking for it regularly.

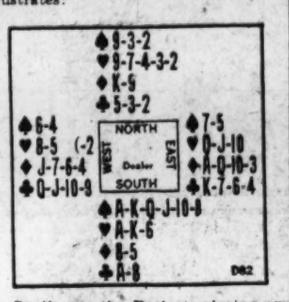
WORK ON BRIDGE

A Well Played Hand.

There is one rather rare element which may enter into the play of a hand in either Auction or Contract Bridge; it is the characteristic feature of the once "great American game" of Poker, and is called "Bluff." Establishing suits, taking proper finesses, finding hidden entries, producing brilliant squeezes, and knowing when to "exit," do not fully complete the equipment of the Bridge expert. At times when a Declarer is placed in a dangerous position, the only way out is to play as if the danger were nonexistent. The following hand illustrates:



South was the Declarer playing an Auction Bridge contract of one Spade. West properly opened with the Queen of Clubs from a four-card Queen-Jack-Ten-Nine suit in preference to leading from a five-card suit headed by Jack. When the Dummy's hand appeared, Declarer could count as winners six Spades, two Hearts and one Club, so he needed one more trick for game. With the Ace of Diamonds in the East hand, he could see a great probability of losing two Diamonds, one Heart and one Club; but with West holding the Diamond Ace, he need have no fear.

The Declarer who played this hand made his bluff on the very first trick—he permitted the Queen of Clubs to win. He hoped that by failing to play his Ace on this trick he would induce West to think that he had no King of Diamonds. Although East had not started a signal, West led another Club to trick 2; South won the second Club trick and leading the Ace and King of trumps exhausted the adverse trumps.

Now Declarer's opportunity arrived. He led a small Heart, hoping that it would be won by East; or that West would not lead a Diamond if he won. Fortunately for the Declarer, East had to win the heart; and then he led a Club. Of course South ruffed East's Club lead (being careful to use the Ten for that purpose); and then Declarer established two good Hearts in dummy by playing South's Ace and King. After that Dummy was put in with the Nine of trumps to run his Hearts and South discarded his two Diamonds. So Declarer made five-odd with a hand which seemed good for only three.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I AM seeking aid regarding a daisy I received for Easter. It is hardy and what care will it require after it has finished flowering? A. M. T.

Plant daisy in a sunny spot in your garden, where it will bloom all summer. Keep it well watered at all times. Do not attempt to bring it into the house next fall, but as soon as the frost has killed it, pull it up and throw it away.

Please tell me how to treat an iris bed which was planted last summer. MRS. A. M. W.

Keep the weeds from encroaching on the soil about the roots of the plants. Water the bed every day that it does not rain and scatter some bonemeal over the soil at this time. Use enough to whiten the ground.

Please tell me how to prevent the buds of narcissus from blasting. No matter whether the bulbs are planted in water or pebbles or in soil, the buds always dry up and fail to expand. B.

Do not plant the bulbs before the end of October. Keep in the dark until a definite root system is established. Bulbs with vigorous roots seldom suffer from bud blast.

Please tell me what is the trouble with a fern of which I am inclosing a frond. MRS. J. M.

Your fern is evidently suffering from a lack of water and fresh air.

Please tell me why the blossoms fall off my lemon tree. Also, please tell me how to keep the flowers of my hydrangea pink instead of blue. MRS. J. P.

The blossoms always fall off any tree before the fruit forms. In some soil the flowers of the hydrangea hortensis naturally come blue, occasionally the plants flower pink one season and blue the next. The most effective method to produce blue flowers artificially is to incorporate with each bushel of soil about one-half pound of alum, which should be broken up into pieces the size of a hickory nut. Iron fillings added to the soil will, as a rule, cause the flower to open pink.

When would you advise me to plant a Peruvian daffodil? ALICE T. L.

The Peruvian daffodil should be planted in June. The bulb can be taken up in October, and, after a few weeks' rest, potted and flowered in the house in winter or kept over for planting out another season.

Please tell me how to get rid of the insects which always attack my nasturtiums. MRS. ELSIE G. T.

Spray the foliage of these plants twice a week with any reliable nicotine spray, being sure that the liquid reaches the under surface of the leaves.

Please tell me how often to cut a new lawn in June. MRS. ANNIE T.

Mow your lawn whenever the blades of grass are of sufficient height to reach between the knives of the lawn mower.

What Today Means to You

"GEMINI."

IF June 19 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 7:45 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 11:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Mildly beneficial influences are in force on this date, which is marked for happiness and pleasures. Attend to important transactions during the morning hours and loan money to no one. Perplexing news will be broadcast.

The children born on this June 19 will be true sportsmen, fond of nature, quick witted and clever at figures. Their restlessness will be a marked feature, and it will be hard for them to choose a vocation to which they will stick. They will be highly emotional.

You have a great many good points and you know how to make the most of them. You never allow yourself to be depressed for long or to "let yourself go," when it would be fatal to do so. Your pride and your spirit both tend to keep you appearing fit to the outside world. Whether you know it or not, you are always practicing the common laws of psychology in your human relationships, so as to create proper effects or to bring about suitable reactions. In many respects you are an intelligent bluffer.

You have a quick brain and the trick of being able to think clearly of more than one thing at a time. You are able to cope with details, but not to the exclusion of a wider vision. As a woman you should make a most remarkable homemaker. You are not only capable and efficient, but are original and have good taste. As you love sociability, and have charm and diplomacy, you should make a popular hostess.

As a man, you should shine as both an organizer and an executant, and you should be free from labor troubles, as you know how to handle your helpers. You will have opportunities (man or woman) to serve the public. You are a convincing and self-possessed speaker and conversationalist. Disloyalty is not one of your faults or weaknesses.

1—Earl Haig, field marshal.
2—Charles Loring Brace, philanthropist.
3—William E. Coleman, author and student of spiritualism.
4—Sam Walter Foss, poet and librarian of public library, Somerville, Mass.
5—William A. Brady, theatrical manager.
6—King James II of England.

I've wondered just what sort of rug
The Goofus Bug would think was snug;
Because he is so temperamental
He's tried domestic, oriental,
Hooked rugs, Chinese, every kind—
The right one he can't seem to find.
I think I understand his feeling
For choosing rugs sets my head reeling!

Three Mothers Agree

When mother is tired, nervous or ill the whole home is upset. For her family's sake, every mother wants to be well and strong. These three women tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps them to care for their families.

Mrs. H. Dolhonde,
6318 York St.,
New Orleans, Louisiana

"Before my last baby was born, I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got such good results that I named her Catherine Lydia. I have six older children and five grandchildren, too. I am now taking the Vegetable Compound again because of my age. I eat and sleep better and I do all my housework, and my washing. I will do my best to answer letters."

Mrs. Harold Goodnow
36 Cane St.,
Fitchburg, Massachusetts

"I cannot praise your medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any mother has those tired feelings I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Lloyd R. Blasing,
Anaheim, California

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now on my fourth bottle and I feel much stronger. It has helped me in every way and I feel sure that other women in rundown condition will pick up if they will only take a few bottles."

Bobby Jones In Triple Tie For Lead

Card of 70 Matched by Smith, Cotton in British Open.

Georgian Escapes a Rain Storm That Hampers Others.

By FRANK H. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

HOYLAKE, England, June 18 (A.P.).—Shooting the Royal Liverpool links in 70 for the first round of the British open golf championship, Bobby Jones today hung up a target which remained unbeaten through the stress and storm although MacDonald Smith and Henry Cotton drew level with the Georgian by scoring 70's on their own account.

The young British pro and the veteran Scot, who has lived in the United States for 20 years, had fine chances to beat Jones and break the course record, which was equaled by the leading trio.

On the trail of the leaders camped "Long Jim" Barnes with 71, and Horton Smith followed with 72. Leo Diegel and young Don Moe were a bit farther back with scores of 74 along with Archie Compston leaving all the double quartet of Americans among the leaders except George Von Elm, who scored 81 and F. C. Stevens, jr., at 80. Von Elm had a nine at the fifth hole which ruined his chances, and Stevens, after a great start, going out in 35, fell back to 45 strokes for the second nine.

Weather Tempest
Strikes Course.

Soon after Jones finished a storm broke, with rain flooding the course, lightning flashing and thunder rumbling, but the stress and strain of chasing the American was more calamitous than the storm.

Player after player rounded the turn in par or thereabouts and with banners flying "Excelsior," scaled the famous short "Alps" hole triumphantly, got their four at the twelfth, and three at the short "rushes," and with this encouraging start homeward visualized hauling down the Georgian's flag, only to stumble and fall on the five punishing finishing holes which are long and tightly trapped and with rough-like hayfields awaiting errant shots.

First came Cotton with seventeen strokes left for the last five holes to score 69, but he failed, finally coming to the home hole needing a par four and taking five. The storm had cleared, but the strain was still there to take its toll of shots from the youngster.

M. Smith Stars in Blinding Rain.

Then came Mac Smith, whose sensational 33 for the first nine scored through an almost blinding rain was one of the great feats of the day. Smith came to the fourteenth hole without a five on his card and then took three in succession and had to hole a long putt for a birdie three at the home hole to get his 70.

Barnes finished with a brave gesture of two birdie threes but still found himself a stroke behind the leaders. Horton Smith played great golf after a poor start. He took a five at the first hole, par four at second and then six at the third, but he was out in 37, nevertheless, and came home in 35 to stand all even with par.

Gabriel Gonzales, of Madrid, with his set of local rules in Spanish and an interpreter, answered the starter's early morning call, but the Spaniard

MRS. HAYNES SETS LINKS RECORD

D. C. Woman Shoots 85 in Tourney at Gibson Island.

MRS. J. MARVIN HAYNES, of Columbia Club and former District amateur golf champion, yesterday established a new women's record for the course at Gibson Island with a card of 40—38—78. The previous best score was made two years ago by Virginia Holzderber, Middle Atlantic champion, who negotiated the 18 holes in 82 strokes. Mrs. S. F. Colladay, runner-up in the recent District amateur championship, and the only other Washington entrant in the tournament, was next to Mrs. Haynes with a card of 44—41—85.

Mrs. Haynes' low score was largely due to the fact that her putter proved a most trustworthy club. She had four one-putt greens on the first 9 and three on the second. She had three three-putt greens, with two putts on all the other greens, with a total of 32 putts for the round. She won a handsome sterling silver plate for qualifying with the low medal score. The final matches of the tournament will be played next Sunday.

The presence of Amos and Andy was all that was necessary to complete the tournament of the Washington and Baltimore Dental Golf Associations played yesterday on the course of the Indian Spring Club. Never before in the history of the two organizations have so many dentists competed against each other in a golf match, for no less than 76 of the tooth-pullers drove off from the first tee. Competition was a two-ball best-ball match, with two players from Baltimore paired against an equal number from this city. The Washington golfers won by 8 points against 7.

Dr. McLister's 77
Leads Field.

Dr. Walter R. McLister, Washington, with a score of 38—39—77, led the field with the low gross score. Dr. C. H. Sheid and Dr. Charles Waters, Baltimore, won the low net best-ball prize with a card of 81—23—58, while Dr. J. L. Barnard and Dr. A. G. Miller, Washington, were runners-up with 84—25—59. Dr. J. E. Black and Dr. W. M. Sweet, Washington, with 90—28—62, and Dr. Clarence E.

Double Play by Critz In Ninth Saves Giants

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 18 (A.P.).—The New York Giants took a hard-fought battle from the Pittsburgh Pirates today, 4 to 3, as they opened their second tour of the West. Scoring three runs in the seventh inning to break up a one run pitchers' battle, the Giants barely stood off a closing Pirate rush when Hugh Critz ended the game with an unassisted double play.

Singles in the first inning by Leach and Lindstrom sent New York off ahead, but Bill Walker and Heinie Meine continued in a tight duel until Walker left the game in the fifth due to a wrenched leg. His successor, Heving, did not fare so well after the Giants had given him a four-run lead and the Pirates got three counters back in the last three frames. Hub Pruett finally came in and pitched only to Paul Waner, who sent a hot liner that Critz managed to pull down over second and stepped on the base, doubling Grantham.

ST. GEORGES LEADER IN BAY LOOP

Kennedyville Beaten in Double-Header; Schedule.

KENNEDYVILLE, Md., June 18.—St. Georges advanced definitely to the leadership of the Chesapeake Bay League this week when in the weekly series of tilts among Eastern Shore of Maryland and Delaware clubs Kennedyville was twice defeated and the tie between the two teams was broken. A fielding slump is blamed for the break in the local club's hitherto strong defense and it is believed local flingers snapped temporarily under the strain of maintaining their position in the league.

Local batters also failed to come to the rescue against Middletown and St. Georges and were overwhelmed by offerings of Delaware pitchers. The first game was a play-off of a set-to postponed from May 24 on account of rain which stopped all three league games. The St. Georges-Galena play-off remains to be staged.

Rawley Shows Form
On Mound.

Among outstanding performnaces of Chesapeake moundsmen was the work of Rawley, of Middletown, who pitched an almost airtight game and had Kennedyville at his mercy throughout the contest. This Delaware flinger is improving as the season gets underway and is expected to be one of the mainstays of the Blue Hen outfit. In the second game played by Middletown, however, Galena fell on the offerings of Schuman and battered down the opposition until 12 runs had crossed the plate before Rawley was called in to stop the carnage. Middletown still holds the cellar position in the league, with six games lost and one victory.

The remainder of the season's schedule is announced by President Joseph R. Baird as follows:

June 21, Kennedyville at Newark, Cecilton at Galena, Middletown at St. Georges; 28, Kennedyville at Cecilton; Galena at Middletown, Newark at St. Georges.

July 4, Galena at Kennedyville, Middletown at Cecilton, St. Georges at Newark. 5, Kennedyville at Galena, Cecilton at Middletown, Newark at St. Georges; 12, Middletown at Newark, St. Georges at Galena, Middletown at Newark, St. Georges at Galena at Middletown, Galena at St. Georges, Cecilton at Kennedyville; 26, Galena at Kennedyville, Middletown at Cecilton, St. Georges at Newark.

August 2, Kennedyville at Middletown, Cecilton at St. Georges, Newark at Galena; 9, Cecilton at Newark, St. Georges at Kennedyville, Galena at Middletown; 16, Middletown at St. Georges, Newark at Kennedyville, Galena at Cecilton; 23, Middletown at Galena, Newark at Cecilton, Kennedyville at St. Georges; 30, Kennedyville at Newark, Cecilton at Galena, St. Georges at Middletown.

September 1, Galena at Newark, Middletown at Kennedyville, St. Georges at Cecilton.

3 Home Runs In Row Win For A's

Indians Beaten, 7-2, by Long-Distance Barrage in 5th.

Simmons, Foxx and Miller Equal 1925 Feat of Yankees.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18 (A.P.).—The Athletics met Cleveland's threat to take first place in the American League today with a heavy slugging attack that culminated in three successive home runs by Simmons, Foxx and Miller in the fifth inning and drove Wesley Ferrell to cover, giving Philadelphia a 7-to-2 victory in the opening game of the series. The Mackmen increased their lead over the idle Yankees to a game and a half.

The Athletics started on Ferrell when they scored three runs in the first inning on Bishop's triple, a single by Foxx and Miller's double mixed with an error by Lind and a pass to Cochrane. To this they added a run in the third, in which inning the Indians also counted.

Eddie Morgan hit his twelfth home run of the season in the first half of the fifth inning with one out in the home half. Simmons hit his eleventh homer of the season into the stands behind center field. Foxx followed with his fifteenth of the year to the roof of the pavilion. Bing Miller then made it three straight by colliding with his fifth.

Mahaffey Puzzling
To Tribe Batters.

Mahaffey went the distance for the Mackmen, giving up eleven hits, but puzzling the Tribesmen in the pinches. The victory increased the Athletics' lead over the Yankees to one and a half games and dropped Cleveland out of the third place tie with Washington.

The feat of hitting three successive home runs equaled the American League record for long-distance clouting in one inning. In 1902, the Cleveland Indians established the mark when Lajoie, Hickman and Bradley hit successive homers and Meusel, Ruth and Gehrig, of the New York Yankees, equaled the feat in 1925. The Pittsburgh Pirates made four homers in one inning in 1894 for a major league record, but these were not successive.

About 10,000 attended the game.

Harvard Beats Yale Nine, 9-5; Ties Series

Cambridge, Mass., June 18 (A.P.).—Playing through several heavy showers, the Harvard Baseball Team today ended its season by swamping Yale by a 14-to-4 score. The victory gave the Crimson an even break in its objective series for Yale won, 9 to 5, yesterday at New Haven.

Like last winter's hockey series, the 1930 baseball issue will remain deadlocked for no provision was made for a third and "rubber" game.

Shires Done With Boasting, He Says, Admitting Ability

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.
Waving his hat in salute to Washington fandom, Art Shires, new addition to the Nats, is pictured on his arrival at Union Station yesterday afternoon.

'Born Hitter' Through With 'I Am' Stuff, He Declares.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

ART SHIRES is in town.

That, in itself, ought to be worth a couple of exclamation points.

The newest addition to the Nats arrived in the Capital yesterday afternoon with his former mates of the White Sox prepared to take up his duties at first base in this afternoon's game between the Nats and the Chicago Club.

Capital fandom are awaiting the effect of Shires' presence in the Nats' bid for the pennant but the bombastic Texan wasted no time yesterday in giving the club a big boost in the sartorial league with a two-hour session in his hotel barber shop. The well-dressed ball player, that Shires, and well-groomed, too.

The young man who was traded to the Nats by the White Sox for Garland Braxton and Bennie Tate is much the same Shires who rocked the big leagues last season with his brash escapades and utterances born of a self confidence that is rare.

Much the same Shires, but a bit different.

Will Do Lot of Good For New Club.

"No, don't say I'm going to win the pennant for Washington," he told his interviewer. "I'm done with that stuff."

Then, displaying no more consciousness of tooting his own horn than he did in flicking the ashes from his cigarette, he added: "I'm a good ball player and I'll do this club a lot of good."

That's the new Shires. Trying to put the soft pedal on his egotism and succeeding only in part. Shires' acquaintance with he upright pronoun is still very intimate but he apparently is beginning to realize it. A paradox in braggadocio.

The conventional expression of pleasure at joining his new club and his intention to give his best for Walter Johnson was voiced by the fiery Texan who at 22 years of age has had a major league career thrill-packed like no other rookie since the days of Ty Cobb.

Lauds Judge as Great
Ball Player.

"Joe Judge is a great ball player. I know that and I don't expect to win his job away from him," Shires said. "But Washington needs a man like me around. I'm a young fellow, and with me in the lineup Washington will have an infield that will be good for five or six more years."

Shires' current batting average of .264 apparently is no disturbing factor with the Texan. "I was in bad shape in most of those 36 games I played in, and you remember the last time I was in Washington I was out there playing with my back taped up so tightly I could hardly swing a bat."

Then. "Hitters are born," Shires said. "I always could hit and I've hit over .300 ever since I have been in the big leagues. I don't worry about that. I'll hit—either right or left handed pitching. There's no difference," he added, refuting in a fell swoop one of the best-known theories of the game.

It was an old football injury that suffered a fresh wound early in the season in a collision with Hodapp, of Cleveland, at first base that put Shires out of the game for a long period. "I was in uniform the next day and three days later I was back in the line-up," Shires explained.

Is Old-Fashioned
Ball Player.

"Baseball has softened up since the old days and I'm just an old-fashioned ball player. That's the way I learned to play under Derrill Pratt in the Texas League and that's the way I'm going to play. I'll take my chances on getting hurt, but I'm in there playing for all I'm worth.

Shires was philosophical about his treatment by the fans. "I don't care whether they are cheering me or razzing me, it doesn't make any difference. I'm going to do all I can to win that ball game when I'm playing. The fans pay their money for their entertainment and it's o. k. with me any way they get it.

"But any club needs a lot of pep and hustle and I'm a born hustler. But I'm behaving now and I'm through with all that 'I am' stuff."

Johnson Sees End of Slump When Hurlers Recover Form.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

MANAGER Walter Johnson last night led his Nationals back to the Capital after an exceptionally poor road trip, which proved to be merely a continuation of the slump which the Nats started in New York on May 29, and which saw them suddenly drop from a four-game league lead to second place by the time the Athletics were through with them in the series preceding the Western tour.

Of their last seventeen games the Washington Club has won but five, this quintet of victories coming on their first swing through the Western sector. Recent trades seem to have bolstered the Johnsons in many respects, but it was poor pitching which caused their downfall.

In practically all of their losses, the Nats scored enough runs ordinarily to give them victory, but always something happened—usually the cracking of the pitcher. Game after game saw the Nats in front. Frequently late in the contest, but the same old trouble has bobbed up and the boxmen suddenly have lost all effectiveness with the relief pitcher who was then rushed in usually proving little or no better.

Has Confidence
In Pitchers.

Johnson is confident that there is plenty of class to his mound staff and each day looks for some one of his hurlers to start showing the good brand of ball of which he is capable, but disappointments have been piling up, one upon the other.

That this poor road record in the West has not shot the team down lower in the race than it has, is merely a break. It so happened that neither the Mackmen nor the Indians, whom they have been watching closest, made any headway either. Meanwhile while they have been casting their eyes upward, the Yankees have been sawing wood and saying nothing and the race has now developed into a four-cornered affair instead of a three-cornered one, "Ruth & Co." having sneaked into second place ahead of both the Nats and Indians.

Home stays are supposed to give the native players the edge. This did not prove to be the case when the Nats last entertained, for they won but one more than they lost in the last thirteen games stand against the invaders from the "wild and woolly."

White Sox First Of Invaders.

This afternoon the Nats open their second home stand against the teams from the opposite sector, with the Chicago White Sox as their guests. This series extends through Sunday, with the Cleveland Indians opening a scheduled three-game set here Monday, when a postponed game will be played as part of a double-header. Detroit, for three games, and St. Louis, for four, come next, after which the Nats entertain the Yankees in four games, including an Independence Day double-header, with a jump to Boston coming just before Johnson leads his men West again.

Gen. Alvin Crowder is due to do the twirling for the Nats in this afternoon's game. Starting against his former mates in St. Louis last Sunday almost immediately after he had been acquired, he turned in a good effort until the ninth, when he faltered slightly. Previously he had allowed but five hits, but then came Gullic's double, Melillo's single, on which West was charged with a three-base error, and, before the general knew it, the game was over. Better things are expected of him this afternoon.

There is no question but what Manush and Crowder have strengthened the Nats among the regulars, or that Harris is a better man than was Barnes for utility hitting purposes. Already Dave has been used three times and twice he has come through with hits, while he walked

FT. MYER AND BENNING WIN TO REACH POLO FINAL

Cavalry Four Gains 11-10 Victory

Noble's Last-Minute Goal Eliminates War Whites.

Ft. Benning Advances to Last Round, Beating Blues, 12-4.

A GOAL by Lieut. Charles Noble ten seconds before the final bell rang enabled the Third Cavalry Yellow Polo Team of Fort Myer, Va., to eke out an 11-to-10 decision over the War Department White Team yesterday on the Potomac Park Polo Field and earn the right to meet the Fort Benning Team, of Georgia, Friday for the Invitation Cup championship.

The Fort Benning Four assured itself of playing in the final game by snowing under the War Department Blue Team, 12 to 4, in the first game of the day. While the opener was somewhat of a rout for the crack Southern quartet, the second game of the day developed into a battle from the start, with no handicap being granted either side.

War Whites Stage Brilliant Rally.

After being outplayed throughout the first half of the game, the War Whites staged a brilliant comeback in the fourth and fifth chukkers, which left them but one point behind, 9 to 8, as the final period started. A goal by that rising star, Lieut. Makinney, of the Cavalry, however, put the horsemen two points to the good, just at the resumption of play.

But Col. Chaffee, never willing to concede defeat, galloped up the field dribbling the ball, and 30 yards from the goal gave it a smart sock to send it through the uprights. A few moments later, after a slight mix-up in front of the Cavalry goal, Lieut. Bosserman drove the ball through for the tying counter.

Deadlocked at 10-all, Lieut. Noble then sent all visions of an extra chukker glimmering when he drove through from a short distance for the all-decisive score, just as the timer was getting ready to strike the bell.

Makinney Leads With 5 Goals.

Makinney again made his presence felt throughout the afternoon by scoring five times for the winners to lead the two teams in scoring. His teammate, Lieut. Robinson, was one behind him tied with Lieut. Bosserman, of the War Whites, while Col. Chaffee scored three times.

Lieut. Herbert Baker, of Fort Benning, continued to prove his ability by leading the Southerners to victory with five goals.

FEATURE RACE.

SIDNEY GRANT should repeat in this seven furlongs test. He beat a good field in his last race. CHEERS should be the contender. JEAN VALJEAN was hailed last year as one of the outstanding horses of his age, but repeatedly disappointed the Keene Stable and those who followed his fortunes. He has a flight of speed, but is a bad finisher, and has not lived up even to an average racer. He should be third. Any hope that he would show improvement this year has been swept aside, and he has little chance of winning from over night fields in cheap races. SIDNEY GRANT has been running well all this season, while the probable contender, CHEERS, is inconsistent.

FIRST RACE—PRETTY ROSE, despite her 112-pound package, is the top horse in the opener and barring ill luck in the field of fourteen should win. Chief contention should come from BURNT BROWN, who gets a five-pound concession from PRETTY ROSE BLUE CANOPY, on past form, can win the race. KITTY KEANE is a possibility.

SECOND RACE—The Greentree Stable's REVERBERATE is selected to win the second race for 2-year-old fillies. She will be at a long price, but she beat a good field earlier in the year and may run back to that race. TAN FACE won her last start and will be the favorite, no doubt, and will win if REVERBERATE should fall. ZEBRA is a show possibility.

THIRD RACE—ZETA appears to be a standout in the third race for fillies and mares. The chief opposition will come from THAT'S IT, winner a few days ago, it is highly probable. BETTY ANN failed to get in the money in her last race this week, but she should run back to her old form, which would make her close up with the leaders. ZETA is one of the most consistent fillies of her age racing in the West, and is a daughter of ZEV.

FOURTH RACE—The fourth race is also for fillies, 2-year-olds. This makes the first four races on the card of seven events for fillies and mares, which is out of the ordinary. GLIDELIA, from the Rancocas Stable, is selected to beat the favorite, MARTHA JONES. The latter on recent form seems to be the class, but when GLIDELIA runs back to her Jamaica race in which she scored easily from some of the fastest young racers in the East, it would be hard for MARTHA JONES to match it. J. N. Camden has an entry of NISIA and BAGIEL. NISIA seems to be the pick of the pair and should get third money.

SIXTH RACE — The sixth race should go to LADY CLARENCE on form. VOLTMETER will be a close contender. UPSEDAISY should make it a close race. The Greentree entry seems somewhat over its head in this race. JOVIAL FRIAR has an outside chance. BAKED APPLE won in Maryland at long odds.

SEVENTH RACE—SETH'S BALLOT is selected to win the seventh event in a well balanced field of sprinters. FLORHI is rated the contender and is a recent winner while THEORIST JANE is always dangerous in this kind of field.

MISS ALABAMA, outrun to the stretch run, slipped through on the inside and was up to nose out PATRICIA ANN. PATRICIA ANN raced an even race. WHISP was kept on the outside and showed a good effort. † Greentree Stable entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANFLI, $6.12, $5.06, $3.28; BAGGAGE MAID, $13.22, $5.80; BY MISTAKE, $3.74.

CANFLI forced the early pace and soon overhauled KAMAL II, went into lead entering stretch and drew out safely, but was under a drive from the furlong pole to keep BAGGAGE MAID safe. BAGGAGE MAID raced into contention in first three furlongs, headed the winner closest up through the stretch and made a strong bid at end. BY MISTAKE made up ground rapidly from a slow beginning and was running evenly at end. ZAILA raced evenly, but could not improve position. KAMAL II showed a flash of speed, then quit.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:27. Winner, C. N. Freeman's ch. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MASTER ACE, $7.56, $4.32, $3.22; BUNCH OF LILLIES, $5.42, $4.04; NURSIE, $5.02.

MASTER ACE was rated in close pursuit of the pace, made his move entering the stretch on the outside of the leaders, wore down NURSIE, took the lead and held BUNCH OF LILLIES safe in final drive. BUNCH OF LILLIES, bothered for early speed, closed much ground and finished strongly. NURSIE, a forward factor, overtook MONOPLANE and assumed a brief lead just around final turn, but faltered in the final drive. MONOPLANE showed the way to stretch turn, but tired badly. PRIDE closed a good gap from a very slow beginning. COLONEL GILMORE tired after showing early speed.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. The Meridian Athletic Club. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 3:56. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HYMAN, $4.94, $2.88, $2.18; POLINOS, $5.62, $2.52; BLUE LAW, $2.28.

HYMAN, away fast, displayed high speed, kept well in front of his field throughout, and was an easy winner. POLINOS, always in closest pursuit of the leader, saved ground and kept his position safe, outlasting BLUE LAW. BLUE LAW, away slowly, but showing keen speed and gaining rapidly, made a threat in the stretch run, but tired under pressure. BUG HUNTER showed speed in a good effort. HYANNISPORT was outrun. BLUNDER raced very green.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Drexel Boulevard Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:27. Off at 4:28. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLUB HOUSE, $12.00, $3.64, $2.74; JOCK, $2.80, $2.36; MORSUN, $3.12.

CLUB HOUSE had much speed, forced the pace to the stretch and headed MORSUN reaching last furlong, drew clear and easily held JOCK safe in final drive. JOCK was taken up after the start and raced head and head to midway of home stretch, where he was roused strongly, getting up to outfinish MORSUN in final drive. MORSUN set a fast pace, but faltered in final furlong when challenged. GOLDEN PRINCE could not improve his position. PAUL BUNYAN worked out an additional quarter, completing the mile in 1:39.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,400. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:56½. Off at 5:03. Winner B. Hancock's b. f. (3), by Campfire—Chewink. Trained by A. Baker. Value to winner, $1,100; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:46, 1:12, 1:25.

CHELYS worked her way up fast on outside entering the stretch, headed ZACAWEISTA and drew WILLA into the lead and, holding on gamely, outstayed WILLA in long, hard final drive. WILLA had her speed and forced the pace throughout, raced ZACAWEISTA into defeat and, holding on resolutely, was gradually overhauling CHELYS at the end. NORA D. was slightly outpaced to the stretch turn, then reached contention and, continuing well, bested remainder in the final issue. SUITOR was prominent from start, had no excuse, and tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving. Went to post at 5:33. Off at 5:34½. Winner, A. A. Baroni's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WIRT G. BOWMAN, $10.40, $4.94, $3.98; CHARIOT, $15.02, $8.10; DON FERNANDO, $6.20.

WIRT G. BOWMAN improved his position gradually, wore down DON FERNANDO and CHARIOT, but tired and barely outlasted CHARIOT. CHARIOT had best early speed, set a good pace to the stretch, came again after being headed, outfinished DON FERNANDO and almost overhauled the winner. DON FERNANDO, a forward factor, raced into short lead on inside in stretch, faltered in drive, but saved the show. FAIRY MAIDEN made up ground. DUNMORE bucked at the start, broke in the air and was in trouble in close quarters on inside throughout.

Bannockburn Wins Match.

In a team match between the Bannockburn Club and the Loudoun County Golf and Country Club last Tuesday the Bannockburn players were victorious, winning 6 points as against 4 for the Purcellville team. Competition was in foursomes, 3 points for each match, 1 for each individual contest and 1 for best ball.

The golfers of the Veterans' Bureau gathered at the Bannockburn Club at dinner last night in honor of Leo F. Pass, who recently won the golf championship of the bureau. Previous to the dinner there was a blind bogey tournament, 73 being the lucky number. This also was won by Pass with a score of 74—0—74, this figure being the nearest to the lucky number. E. P. Cranford and E. J. Rhodes, each with 71, missed out by two strokes.

383 STOCKS TOUCH YEAR'S LOW MARKS

Index of 90 Leading Issues Hits Bottom; Losses Up to 30 Points.

6,425,600 SHARES SOLD

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—The storm clouds that gathered in times of drastic economic readjustment broke noisily over the country's financial markets today, loosing a torrent of liquidation that swept stocks and commodities to new lows for the year before support was effective.

Selling of the Nation's seasoned investment shares, as well as the more speculative equities, proceeded at a rather alarming rate until the final hour when the decline was checked and a moderate rally reduced extreme losses of 5 to 10 points in high-grade stocks. Net losses of 2 to 8 points, however, were numerous and the composite price of 90 leading shares touched a new 1930 low for the second time this week. Three hundred and eighty-three stocks recorded new 1930 minimums.

It was the second largest day of the year on the New York Stock Exchange. Until the liquidation withered in the face of supporting orders, the volume seemed headed for 8,000,000 shares, but turnover in the last fifty minutes fell below 1,000,000 shares and the total for the strenuous five-hour session was 6,425,600.

When the market reached bottom early in the afternoon the price index stood about 15 points above the figure for November 13, which marked the culmination of the fall panic. The rally resulted in an improvement of about 2 points from the day's minimum, and the closing average showed a net loss of 5.7 points from yesterday's final.

Commodities Also Slump.

The course of stocks was closely paralleled by the grains. In Chicago, wheat broke about 4 cents a bushel to new lows for the season, but the decline was subsequently reduced to around 2 cents. Corn, also extremely weak, was able to cut its losses to around a cent. All the active cotton months broke into new low ground, but recovered so consistently that final prices represented net advances of 9 to 16 points. July sugar sold at its lowest for all time and the other positions made new lows for the movement. The close was off 3 to 4 points.

Sentiment in the stock market seemed to represent the cumulative effect of the business depression, the protracted heaviness of the commodities, and also the apparent absence of concerted banking support. The opinion was expressed, however, that the large banking interests seemed to prefer to allow the decline to take its course, so long as it was orderly. There was no lack of buying orders today, but a large share of this support came from the so-called bargain hunters, whose small purchases were not sufficient to offset the selling. Investment trusts, some of which have been liquidating stocks in recent weeks, were said to be buying on a scale-down.

The decline of the early hours was interrupted shortly after noon by a feeble rally as the market bounded off a cushion of support. This improvement was short-lived, however, and the day's best advance did not come until the final dealings when some of the short lines were covered.

Steel Output Again Drops.

There was nothing in the day's news to indicate a radical change in the current outlook. Iron Age reported that a sharp drop in steel orders from automobile manufacturers and an increasingly general tendency by other leading makers of steel toward retrenchment were too substantial to be offset by the business in pipe and structural material. The production rate was placed at 65 per cent of rated capacity, off 4 per cent from last week. One of the financial news agencies carried an analysis of the steel situation which said that diminished earnings were in prospect because the reduction in operations this summer might run below the normal seasonal curtailment.

Shares to which the market normally looks for leadership were weakest today. United States Steel got down to 155, or within 5 points of its low in the panic. American Telephone broke to 201¼. American Can to 113½, Consolidated Gas to 102½, General Motors to 39¼, Radio to 33⅛, and Standard Oil of New Jersey to 60⅜. Can closed at 115½, or 7¾ points net lower or the largest loss in the group.

Maximum losses of 15 to 30 points came out in Allied Chemical, Case, American Machine & Foundry, and Eastman Kodak. Such stocks as Worthington Pump, American Tobacco, Houston Oil, Diamond Match, Western Union and Westinghouse dropped 10 to 13 before recovering.

Foreign exchanges were mostly steady. The Spanish peseta recovered a few points. Sterling was slightly higher.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Reactions from an opening advance in the cotton market carried all the active months into new low ground for the season today and was attributed to further liquidation and scattered selling promoted by the early declines in grain and stocks.

The decline to 13.20 for July and 12.59 for October seemed to bring increased trade buying, however, and there were quick rallies in the late trading, with July selling up to 13.61 and the new October to 12.94. Closing prices were within a few points of the best and the tone was steady at net advances of 9 to 16 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 12 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables, while there seemed to be a little buying on expectations of unfavorable features in the weekly report of the Weather Bureau. The decline met considerable pressure and the announcement by R. H. Hooper & Co. that the firm was unable to meet its obligations, apparently helped to unsettle the tone of the early market.

There appeared to be considerable July for sale. The break extended to 12.85 for the old October and 12.70 for the new December contracts during the afternoon, but trade buying was more active at these figures and the market showed increasing activity and strength in the late trading. Old October advanced to 13.17 and closed at 13.14 and the new December sold up to 13.05, closing at 13.02.

There were rumors during the afternoon that some inquiries were being received here from Europe asking for quotations on cotton for forward shipment and according to local brokers, there were also indications of some increase in commission house interest, although buying was said to be restricted by the favorable average of crop advices, continued poor reports from the goods trade and the unsettled ruling of other markets. The late rally in cotton was probably helped by the rallies in grain and reports of a better tone in the afternoon stock market.

Liverpool cables said liquidation had been absorbed by Bombay buying and covering and reported an improved inquiry for cotton cloths. Exports today were 3,367 bales, making 6,575,491 so far this season. Port receipts, 6,212. United States port stocks, 1,110,671.

BONDS DROP HEAVILY IN LARGE TURNOVERS

Convertibles Lead General Downward Move; 25 Lows Recorded.

HIGH LIEN ISSUES FIRM

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Bond priced dropped sharply today as selling pressure on the stock market extended to fixed income bearing securities. The reactionary trend set in markedly during the afternoon to raise the volume of sales above $13,971,000 and to carry more than 25 issues to the lowest point of the year.

The averages showed the drop was the sharpest in several months and was ascribed to nervous selling and forced liquidation of bonds by speculators in equity issues. Losses ranged from a small fraction to nine points, and the number of bonds which weathered the day without any loss in price were comparatively few.

Some prime issues held steady or gained a small fraction but others in the gilt-edged class, yielded to the pressure and lost ¼ to nearly a point. Convertibles and second-string bonds which have suffered downward price adjustments lally since the current reaction in stocks began sank further.

B. & O. Touches New Low.

The trend among convertibles was uniformly downward and the turnover large. Those which ended the day in new low ground for the year included St. Paul 5s, Rock Island 4½s, Atchison 4½s, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Dodge Bros. 6s, General Theaters 6s, Warner Brothers 6s and American International 5½.

The weakness of most of the bond market accentuated the strength of the issues with high ratings. Such lien issues as those of American Telephone, Atchison, Canadian National, Rock Island, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas & Electric and Montana Power were unchanged or up fractionally in active trading.

In the domestic list, a noticeable feature was the appearance of many issues which generally are inactive, and they sold mostly at lower prices for the year. Declines of one and two points were common. At new 1930 lows were Seaboard issues, Canadian Pacific 5s of '54, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, Erie 5s of '67; New York, Ontario & Western 4s, International Hydro-Electric 6s, Chile Copper 5s, Fisk Rubber 8s, Hudson Coal 5s, National Dairy 5½s, and Pure Oil 5½s. National Dairy, which is one of the most active industrials, lost ⅞ of a point. Texas Corporation 5s, in which trading has been extensive, gained ¼ of a point.

European Governments Mixed.

Liquidation in foreign bonds lent a decidedly easier tone to the group. Bolivian 7s dropped nine points to a new low for the year, and Berlin City 6s, Belgium 8s, and Mexico 5s were also in new low ground. European governments, such as British, French, and German, showed mixed gains and losses of small proportions.

Losses in United States Governments were the most extensive in several weeks and averaged about ⅛ of a point, with Treasury issues yielding most. Liberty 4th 4¼s found the strongest support and gained 2-32ds.

Offerings tomorrow will include $1,000,000 City of St. Paul, Minn., 4½ per cent bonds, and $200,000 East Providence, R. I., 4¼ bonds. COL. LANDIS LEAVES ON 3-MONTH STAY Chesapeake Beach Railway Manager Going to Western Kansas.

TO ACT AS CORECEIVER

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Col. Lee H. Landis, general manager of the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co., leaves Washington tomorrow on a three-month leave of absence to assume the duties of coreceiver of the Wichita Northwestern Railway, in western Kansas. His duties with the Chesapeake Beach Line will be assumed by Eugene Fox, vice president of the company.

The Kansas company operates between Pratt, Larned and Kinsley, Kans., and has been in a receivership for some time. O. P. Byers, the receiver, is in poor health and the appointment of Col. Landis was asked by E. E. Gann, on behalf of about 30 creditors. The road was built in 1912, and operates about 100 miles of track. It is the opinion of Col. Landis that a reduction of taxes and tax debts may make it possible to relieve its financial situation, particularly as the section it serves is developing favorably.

Col. Landis has had long experience as a railroad executive, having begun his career with the Santa Fe. He was chief transportation officer with the A. E. F., and later general manager of the Alaskan Railroad, operated by the United States Government. He was also associated for several years with the Western Pacific.

Earnings Have Doubled.

Last July he became general manager of the Chesapeake Beach Railway. Since then its freight earnings have doubled, and last year, for the first time in 20 years, the company showed net earnings. The building of the new amusement resort, Seaside Park, at Chesapeake Beach, the improved physical condition of the railroad property, the development of the Chesapeake Beach townsite, and in particular the proposed ferry to the Eastern Shore, are considered highly favorable factors for the company's future success.

The Fidelity Investment Association, with local offices, the largest institution in the country devoted exclusively to the sale of annuities, reports sales for May of $3,946,000, establishing a new monthly record. This compares with $3,074,000 for May, 1929, an increase of $872,000. Sales for the five months of the current year totaled $18,872,000, compared with $12,760,000 for the corresponding period of last year, a gain of $6,112,000.

Resources of the association have reached a total of more than $22,000,000 from a beginning of $62,934 in January, 1912. The offices in operation now total 26. New offices have been opened this year in Atlanta, Ga.; Richmond, Va.; Saginaw, Mich., and Youngstown, Ohio.

Directors in Capital.

The association's board of directors includes the following local men: Robert V. Fleming, president, Riggs National Bank; John Marshall, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States; Howard Sutherland, Alien Property Custodian, and Charles H. March, member of Federal Trade Commission.

Plans for expansion of the branch office of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., at Seventeenth and G streets northwest, will be executed this fall. They provide for removal of the safe deposit department from the street floor to the basement where important changes will be made to accommodate safe deposit vaults and customers' rooms. Removal of the department from the ground floor will permit additional lobby space.

At the annual meeting of the District of Columbia Institute of Certified Public Accountants yesterday the following were elected to the board of governors: Harold C. Anderson, Wayne Kendrick and Arthur J. Linn. In addition to these, other members of the board are Oscar J. Bernstein, James B. Grice, Howard C. Beck and Dwight N. Burnham. Officers elected for the year were: President, Mr. Burnham; vice president, Mr. Grice; secretary-treasurer Mr. Bernstein.

The regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent and an extra dividend of 1 per cent on the capital stock of the American Security & Trust Co. has been declared, payable July 10 to stockholders of record at the close of business June 30.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 18 (A.P.).—Record low prices for grain went hand in hand today with fresh severe flattening out of stock market values. Much notice by wheat traders was also taken of statements ascribed to Chairman Alexander Legge of the Federal Farm Board that no Government sponsored purchasing of surplus domestic wheat would be done until an emergency be declared.

Evidence of curtailment of foreign buying of United States wheat had a further bearish influence, and so too did measures taken abroad, apparently as a counterblow against effects of the new tariff enacted at Washington.

Following a maximum downward smash of 4¼ cents a bushel, however, wheat partly recovered, owing more or less to reports that the Canadian crop outlook is still dubious. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1⅛@2¼c lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¾c to 1¼c down, oats ½c to ⅞c off and provisions showing 10c to 25c drop.

The descent of wheat values in Chicago today was preceded by an unexpected sudden reversal of the course of wheat prices at Liverpool. Instead of proving responsive to yesterday's severe quotations here, the Liverpool market took a decided downward swing, and dispatches were received saying a big import house in England was selling wheat futures there, sales at Liverpool owing to lack of confidence in stability of values.

Then came disclosure that yesterday's immense export business in North American wheat had consisted nearly altogether of wheat grown in Canada, that no bread wheat whatever had been purchased from the United States, and that the only European buying of wheat raised in this country was a little wheat of the durum variety useful to manufacture macaroni.

Bottom prices of the day in the wheat pit here were reached after circulation of reports of an address made by Chairman Legge, of the Farm Board, at a Gathering of bankers in Kansas City, that it was reported as saying in answer to a question as how far lower wheat would have to go before an emergency was declared: "How low does wheat have to go before the farmers realize that it is unproductive to plant such large acreages."

The subsequent rallies in wheat prices here as the day drew to an end were simultaneous with Canadian advices that rains over many sections had been too much and the crop outlook for Canada was yet uncertain.

Corn, oats and rye fluctuated with wheat, and were governed by the course of that cereal. Corn and rye, as well as wheat, outdid the season's low price record, but oats refrained.

Provisions weakened with grain and with hog values as well.

CROWDER OPPOSES WHITE SOX TODAY

his other time up. With Art "The Great" Shires scheduled to play first for the Nats today, he should prove an improvement over Hayes, although it must be admitted that "Sonny Boy" did not do badly as Judge's relief, when it is considered that he never had played in that position before.

Crowd Will Welcome New Players.

Despite the fact that the Nats disappointed while away, the fact that they are still battling around the top must not be overlooked, and indications are that a goodly gathering will be on hand today to welcome them home and also to get a look at Shires, Manush and Crowder in Washington uniforms, not to mention the treat promised them of seeing whether or not the heavy blue Chisox livery is becoming to Barnes, Braxton and Tate.

Granting that Tate is a good little catcher, the one of those players traded who is likely to be most missed is Braxton. In fact, he might have come in quite handy in that game in St. Louis Tuesday. With the southpaw screw ball artist gone, Johnson has been figuring on depending upon Fred Marberry to again fill the relief roles which he has made famous. But Marberry seems to have lost the zip on his fast ball and can not "bust 'em" past the batters as of yore. What the Browns did to him Tuesday is a crime, and he has been in trouble in practically every game in which he has participated this season. If the big Texan does not round too in short order, it's just going to be too bad for the Johnsons.

Nats Outhit Foes On Road.

Notwithstanding the poor pitching shown by the Washington flingers, the Nats managed to out hit their collective opponents, the trouble being that more of the enemy shots were timely, while sixteen errors against nine for their opponents did not make the road any easier for Johnson's boxmen. Several of these miscues cost the Nats decisions and a glance at the figure picture shown below also brings out the fact that, of the five games on the trip which were decided by a single run, the Capital Cityans came out on top but once.

Although many of his mates outhit him, Joe Cronin certainly made his trip average of .267 count. He cracked out a trio of home runs, drove 17 mates past the registering station and scored 10 times himself, tying with Rice as high-scorer and leading in the important item of "runs responsible for."

Here are the figures for the trip. Read em and weep:

Manush Has Batting Edge On Goslin.

Heinie Manush, obtained by the Nats from the Browns, along with Pitcher Alvin Crowder, in exchange for Goose Goslin, had a little the better of it after the two fly-chasers had traded uniforms just before the series in St. Louis started. Manush was at bat sixteen times in the four games, cracked out six hits, including a double and homer, drove home one run, scored two, and contributed in the molding of three others. He walked twice, having an average of .375.

Goslin hit at a .357 clip, getting five hits in fourteen times up and also cracking out a homer and double. He was responsible for two runs, scored three himself and figured in the scoring of one other. He coaxed four passes and, like Manush, failed to strike out during the series.

Afield, Goslin turned in three brilliant catches and uncorked one pretty throw to the plate which would have nailed his man had the catcher not muffed it. Manush had no difficult chances and his only peg home was overly strong and would have cost the Nats a run but for some fancy backing-up by Pitcher Crowder.

JONES' 70 CREATES TRIPLE TIE ABROAD

came home with his championship hopes blighted by an 84. This, however, was as good as Cyril Tolley's score and better than George Duncan could boast. Duncan's card showed two glittering eights.

Fifth Is Disastrous For Von Elm.

Von Elm's chances were practically ruined by his nine at the fifth. He took three shots in a bunker, two in tall grass and a couple of putts for this substantial aggregate.

Don Moe showed the way for the Americans early in the day and his 74 was a good score for Hoylake.

Jones, with his marching gallery, was a midday attraction. The American star played well and was rolling his putts to the brink of the cup, only to see most of them remain out. Only two long ones dropped. It was a typical Jones round which might have been 67 instead of 70. Bob thought himself unlucky until soon after he finished the skies opened and flooded the course, resulting in the lower half of the field going out to a certain drenching.

Bobby is among the leaders where golfers always look for him, but he is not out in front as he was at St. Andrews three years ago when his first round 68 gave him an advantage of five strokes.

The starting times will be reversed tomorrow, with Archie Compston the first of the favorites to go out. The Americans will follow, MacDonald Smith and Barnes playing in the morning and Stevens, Horton Smith, Diegel, Jones, Von Elm and Moe in the afternoon.

After tomorrow's round the field will be reduced by the forced retirement of all players fifteen or more strokes behind the leader.

NEW COUNTY SCHOOL VIRTUALLY ASSURED

Fairfax Group to Consider Location for Vocational Institute.

MANY CLUBS TO MEET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245. Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The establishment of a centrally located vocational high school in Fairfax County seems to be virtually assured, following the joint meeting yesterday of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors and the County School Board, during which the resolution offered by School Trustee Herbert Williams, of Providence District, was adopted. The resolution calls for the appointment of two members of the board of supervisors, two members of the school board and one citizen, to consider the best and most feasible location for such a school. This committee is to make its report to another joint meeting of the two boards. In the meantime the two boards believe there should be no expenditure of money for an agricultural building at Herndon until this committee makes its report.

Dr. F. M. Brooks, chairman of the school board, appointed Mr. Williams and John T. DeBell, of Centerville District, to represent the school board, and W. E. P. Reid, chairman of the board of supervisors, appointed Mark Turner, of Dranesville District, and Kyle Davis, of Lee District, to represent that board. After a conference of both chairmen, Crockett C. Carr, of Legato, was selected to represent the citizens of the county on the committee.

A movement to have a vocational school in the center of the county was launched some months ago and yesterday morning a delegation from the educational committee of the Fairfax Chamber of Commerce appeared before the two boards and stated there had been much dissatisfaction on the part of the people of the county in regard to the school board's action last month in transferring the vocational portion of the Floris School to Herndon, which is located on the northwest corner of the county and is not easily reached by the pupils of the greater part of the county. This delegation was not opposed to the consolidation of schools at Herndon, but asked that the boards consider moving the vocational school to the center of the county. It suggested the old county poor farm on the Little River turnpike, about a mile west of Fairfax, as a suitable site. They stated that they had no opposition to any person or community in the county, but it was their wish to best serve the greater number of people.

Grange Indorses Plan.

A delegation from the Pomona Grange of Fairfax County, composed of R. Colton Lewis, Franklin Williams and Ronald Blake, also appeared and indorsed the suggestion of the committee from the chamber of commerce. The members stated that they hoped to see a vocational school located in the central part of the county in the near future. Mr. Blake and H. B. Derr, county agricultural agent, stated that many persons in the county did not know of the vocational school which has been located at Floris.

On being notified of his appointment to the committee for locating the vocational school, Mr. Carr made the following statement: "That at the present time it would be best for the citizens of the county to leave sentiment out of the school question and not to consider it from a too local standpoint. It should be considered on a county-wide basis, as other children in the county are equally entitled to the benefits of a vocational school, and it was not right to spend the taxpayers' money unless the boards go forward on a constructive basis." He declared that he would work for the benefit of the most people at the least expense as at the present time the records show that only 5 per cent of the high school pupils in Fairfax County are benefited by the present high school facilities.

Several members of the board expressed themselves as willing to discontinue the vocational school rather than to spend a large amount of money at Herndon. Divisional Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson suggested that the agricultural course might be temporarily given in a number of schools of the county on a day-unit basis until money was available for the establishment of a centrally located school. It was decided to ask W. S. Newman, State supervisor of agricultural training in the schools, to offer advice on the question. As soon as the committee and Superintendent Newman make their reports another joint meeting of the two boards will be held. Yesterday's action of the two boards was vigorously opposed by trustees Joseph Murphy, of Dranesville district, and Fred Robinson, of the Town of Herndon.

Money for New Schools.

The afternoon session of the two boards was devoted to considering the report of the special committees from Mount Vernon and Lee Districts in regard to locating school centers and the financing of new school buildings in these districts. It was decided that in Mount Vernon District $70,000 would be needed for new buildings, of which there should be a bond issue of $40,000 and a loan from the State literary fund of $30,000. Of this amount $21,000 would be spent on new buildings at Franconia, $21,000 at Woodlawn, $21,000 at Groveton and $7,000 for building an auditorium at the Potters Hill School. The $40,000 bond issue would be repaid as follows: $4,000 at the end of five years, $7,500 more at the end of ten years, $10,000 more at the end of fifteen years and the balance of 18,500 at the end of twenty years. Both the bond issue and literary loans could be paid under present 25-cent special school levy, allowed by the State law.

It was decided that when the citizens of Mount Vernon District would present a petition for a bond issue to the school board the school board would certify it to the board of supervisors, who, in turn, would submit it to the Fairfax County Circuit Court, and if approved by the court the people of Mount Vernon District could vote on the question.

The committee from Lee District expressed the immediate needs of increased school facilities at Lorton, adjacent to the District of Columbia Workhouse. They recommended that $20,000 be borrowed by that district from the State literary funds and that an additional $10,000 might be given by the District of Columbia. This question is to be discussed with the Commissioners. On the motion of Kyle Davis, supervisor from Lee District, the meeting decided that, provided the District of Columbia would give one-third of the total of the cost of a building, Lee District would furnish the other two-thirds, the total cost of the building not to exceed $30,000. The District of Columbia's portion might be given in labor and material, as the majority of pupils attending Lorton School are those of the employes of the workhouse, who pay no taxes to Fairfax County.

The action of the joint board meeting yesterday is not binding on either board, as the meeting was merely one of advisory nature between the two boards, and is believed to be expression of the sentiments of a greater portion of the citizens of the county.

The Confederate State Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, will hold its meeting this evening at the home of Miss Hazel Davis, at Burke.

Two men and a girl giving their names as Alexandria Holderman, 21; Luther Weger, 28, and Alice Holderman, 18, of Elkhart, Ind., were arrested by Sheriff Eppa P. Kirby of Fairfax County about midnight Tuesday. They are being held for investigation.

They were arrested after they were seen taking tires off a car parked in the rear of the Service Garage in Fairfax. When the sheriff appeared on the scene they had the tire off the car and when they saw him they fled and were caught after a chase of several blocks.

The sheriff stated yesterday that the car they were driving had two sets of tags on it and a 50-gallon gasoline drum tied on the rear. A number of cartons of cigarets and cigars, candy, two large rings of keys were also found in the car. The girl was dressed as a boy when arrested.

According to the sheriff the girl stated the cigars and cigarets had been stolen by them and gasoline had been stolen once. She later gave her last name as Pearson and said that she had been absent from her home for over a week.

Crockett C. Carr, of Legato, was yesterday appointed and sworn in as secretary of the Fairfax County Tax Equalization Board. The appointment was confirmed by the county board of supervisors. Mr. Carr was at one time a tax assessor for the county and has had much experience with tax matters.

Postoffice Yeggs Visit Petersburg

$80 in Cash and Stamps Is Loot That Is Reported by Officials.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, W. Va., June 18.—Postoffice inspectors have been called here to undertake investigation of robbery of the local office late Sunday night. Local authorities reported no clews except fingerprints. Postoffice officials estimated that the safe crackers secured $30 in cash and $50 in stamps of various denominations.

The combination was torn loose from the outside door of the safe, and then the robbers inserted nitroglycerine and blew open the safe, after which the process was repeated on the heavier inside panel.

Several drawers on the inside containing several hundred dollars were protected by a combination lock that defied efforts of the looters, and this money was untouched. They also overlooked $30 in cash lying near the registry window.

TOWN TO CELEBRATE BYRD HOME-COMING

Winchester Churchmen Are Urged to Turn Out in Numbers Sunday.

HERO TO RECEIVE BOWL

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 18.—Church members generally were urged today by the Winchester Ministerial Association to turn out en masse next Sunday afternoon in a unified tribute in honor of Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, when the municipal government presents him with a solid silver bowl at the Handley High School Stadium.

The pastors' meeting unanimously adopted a resolution, applauding the idea of holding a thanksgiving service in honor of the safe return of Admiral Byrd, whom they referred to as "our hero citizen," and urged all churchmen to join in the tribute at Handley Stadium. The exercises, which are to be held at 4 p. m., will not conflict with any church service.

Anticipating an unusually large volume of motor traffic over the six main highways converging at Winchester, the State motor vehicle director has ordered a dozen or more special motorcycle officers to come to Winchester to cooperate with local police authorities in handling incoming and outgoing traffic on the day Admiral Byrd comes to his home town, after his receptions in New York, Washington and Richmond.

The chamber of commerce has received nearly 1,000 letters from persons all over the United States, in which they inclose envelopes to be dispatched by air mail from Winchester the day Admiral Byrd is presented with the silver bowl by Mayor F. A. Shryock. Most of the persons asked that the special cachet of the Byrd expedition be placed on the envelopes. In years to come they will be worth-while souvenirs of the return of the Antarctic expedition.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA, her brows knit, was puzzled over Dr. Albert Einstein's new theory—an elaboration on the old idea of relativity; called the concert of space.

"I just can not understand it," said Luella, throwing the newspaper aside. She was hardly to be blamed for that. It seems that some two or three hundred scientists, at the meeting in Berlin, felt the same way about it.

"And yet it is all very simple," I remarked, whereupon Luella uncorked the old phrase of derision:

"Says you!"

After all, Dr. Einstein, speaking in German, could hardly expect to be understood by the Americans present.

"You know how to count in German, don't you Luella?"

* * * *

SHE started to count: "Ein, zwei, drei, vier, fuenf, sechs, sieben, acht, neun, zehn——"

"Bravo!"

"Shall I go any further——?"

There was no need. Right there at the first word of the counting, ein, was the key to the Einstein theory—a mathematical study, to be sure, but with quite some philosophy rolled into it.

"How's that?" she asked.

"Well," I explained, "Dr. Einstein is a great believer in moderation—as his name implies."

"His name?"

"Certainly, his name."

SHE thought for awhile. "What's his name got to do with it?"

"Analyze the name—translate it!"

Gently, taking her step by step through the profound process, I pointed out to her the Einstein theory: "Ein, in German, means one, doesn't it?"

"Yes," she admitted, "one."

"All right, what does stein mean?"

As she was thinking this out, I began to sing the "Stein Song." Not that terrible wail from Maine; but that old love song—

"For it's always fair weather
When good fellows get together
With a stein on the table,
And a good song ringing clear."

* * * *

A LIGHT of recognition came into Luella's eyes: "So that's what it means," she mused, "a flagon!"

"Of course that's what it means—nothing else. Einstein, one stein—one stein on the table, for each man."

"And that's the doctrine of relativity?"

"More than that, it's the philosophy of moderation—moderation in all things; even in steins. The line, as relativity students sing it, is: 'Einstein on the table'——"

"What would Einstein be doing on the table?" asked Luella, and I had to laugh.

"He'd be explaining the Einstein theory——"

She hustled out of the room, slamming the door.

VIRGINIA RICH FIELD OF FUTURE INDUSTRY

Coal and Iron Ores, Together With Wonderful Harbors, Lauded by Chemists.

NATIVE LABOR IS AMPLE

Richmond, Va., June 18 (A.P.).—Virginia is described as preeminently suited for industrial purposes in a new review of the State's progress compiled by Arthur D. Little, Inc., well-known consulting chemist, of Cambridge, Mass., and sent to the State Conservation and Development Department.

"Virginia," says the review, "is a pleasant place to live in; it has a mild and healthful climate. There is a good supply of land in desirable localities and at low cost. The soil is fertile; all desirable food crops can be grown."

A movement to Virginia and other States with similar resources has been brought about, says the review, by a departure of industries from large and congested cities to suburban or rural sections where there is greater breathing space, land at a cheaper price and more normal living conditions.

Coal and Natural Gas.

"Virginia," says the review, "has vast deposits of coal of the best quality for power generation and it has available from its errant daughter to the westward a large potential supply of natural gas. It has developed water power sufficient for its present needs, and electric power is available through connections with the distribution system in the Carolinas.

"The white labor in Virginia is of the best type. It is almost entirely American Anglo-Saxon, predominantly rural in type, is alert and intelligent, and is not of a kind to be easily disturbed by labor troubles or propaganda. There is a large reserve. As yet, few women have been drawn into industry, but many will be available when needed.

"At Hampton Roads is one of the world's finest harbors, with almost unlimited anchorage facilities, and the three ports of this harbor—Norfolk, Newport News and Portsmouth—have developed adequate terminal facilities, with grain elevators, coal pockets, freight piers and storage facilities.

Connect With Interior.

The harbor connects with the interior of the State by several navigable rivers. From this harbor, some of the country's largest markets are within one night's sail.

"Radiating from this seaport are several systems of railways, which cross the State to its western boundary, there connecting with the whole system throughout the country, and making connection within the State with several trunk lines leading to other large centers in the Atlantic States. These railways have very modern equipment and adequate terminal facilities.

"Beneath the surface Virginia has, besides its coal, ores of iron, copper, lead, zinc, nickel and cobalt, magnesium and titanium. It has extensive resources in building stones, clays, infusorial earth, soapstone, salt and gypsum."

CONCLAVE PLANNED BY VIRGINIA LEGION

Convention at Harrisonburg Slated to Open on September 7.

BYRD WILL BE INVITED

Richmond, Va., June 18 (A.P.).—The twelfth annual State convention of the Virginia Department of the American Legion will be held at Harrisonburg on September 7, 8, 9 and 10, dates supplanting the previously announced time of August 24, 25, 26 and 27, W. Glenn Elliott, State adjutant, said today.

Lack of housing facilities on the earlier dates and their conflict with other State meetings caused the change, Adjutant Elliott said. The sessions will be held at the Harrisonburg State Teachers College.

Notable American military leaders are being invited to speak to the convention, among them Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, superintendent of Virginia Military Institute and former commander of the United States Marine Corps. Gen. Lejeune has accepted the department's invitation.

Byrd and Gibbons Invited.

Others to whom invitations will be extended are Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and Floyd Gibbons, war-time newspaper correspondent, nationally-known writer and radio announcer, Adjutant Elliott said.

Invitations have already been sent to Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, national director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, Washington; Watson B. Miller, national chairman of the American Legion rehabilitation committee, Washington; Robert M. Tolson, national secretary of the American Legion rehabilitation committee, Washington; Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, Middleburg, former chief of the United States Army Air Corps, and Frank Samuels, Indianapolis, assistant national adjutant of the legion.

Approximately 2,500 delegates from the legion and the legion auxiliary are expected for the convention, which will open with registrations on Sunday, September 7, and a meeting of the department executive committee.

Forty and Eight Banquet.

Reports will be heard during the second day from the department commander, Col. B. M. Roszel, Winchester, the credentials committee, rules and permanent organization committees and department officers. The annual banquet of the Forty and Eight will be held in the evening, with election of officers.

Standing committees will report Tuesday and the delegates will hear Col. E. W. Jordan, director of the United States Veterans Bureau at Richmond. Official delegates to the national convention will be nominated.

Wednesday, September 10, the last day, the 1931 convention city will be selected, officers will be elected and delegates and alternates named to the national convention.

Recreational activities will be provided in the form of visits to nearby caverns, swimming and golf.

Actress Arrested On Theft Charge

Woman Friend Is Released on Count Preferred by Former Soldier.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 18.—Miss Elmo C. Ryols, 27, of New York City, who says she is an actress, is in jail here facing grand jury action on a robbery charge, following complaint by W. E. Yeatts to the police that the young woman and her companion, Mrs. Lucy Brown, of Winston Salem, N. C., had robbed him of his purse containing nearly $100. Mrs. Brown was acquitted at the preliminary hearing of the robbery charge, but is held as a material witness.

The evidence was that Yeatts, discharged from the United States Army because of disabilities, was en route home by bus from Washington, D. C., where the women also boarded the bus. The three became friendly and upon arrival here planned a party. They secured whisky, according to Yeatts, and it was while he momentarily drowsed in a cafe that his purse was taken. Awakening, he found the money missing and the women gone. They were arrested a short time later, but the money was not found.

Chicagoan Named Baltimore Robber

Willie Niemoth Grabbed Bag With $47,000 Pay Roll, Says Witness.

Baltimore, June 18 (A.P.).—A triple identification of Willie Niemoth, alleged Chicago gangster, as one of the four bandits who snatched $47,000 from a paymaster of Henry Sonneborn & Co., in 1926, was established today at Niemoth's trial.

One of the witnesses who made the identification was Robert Speller, a Negro, formerly in the prohibition service, who testified, on cross-examination, he had changed his name because of fear of being "taken for a ride." He testified today that Niemoth was the man he saw grab a satchel of money with one hand while he clutched a pistol with the other.

Niemoth's counsel was W. W. O'Brien, former assistant State's attorney for Cook County, Illinois, who said witnesses would be introduced to prove that Niemoth was in Chicago the day of the crime. "It's not true that he is a gangster," Mrs. Niemoth said. "He's in the garage business."
